CONFIDENCE GAME.— Shortly after the Cincinnati Express train had left Pittsburg, on Wednesday afternoon, a passenger on board named Thomas Gordon, from Ohio, entered into conversation and became favorably impressed with a fellow passenger seated beside him and who represented himself as being a Philadelphia merchant During the conversation the reported merchant stated that he was out of money but had a number of check in his possession which could not be honored until his arrival at home and requested the loan of seventy-five dollars until he reached Philadelphia.—Mr. Gordon generously loaned the stranger that amount and received in exchange therefore a check on the "National Bank of the Republic," of Philadelphia. When the train arrived in this city Mr. Gordon and his newly made friend separated in quest of something to eat which was the last seen of the Philadelphia merchant He had swindled his generous friend and decamped with the cash.—Altoona Tribune

A DREADFUL LEAP—A Boy Accidentally Leaps from the River Bridge to the Frozen River Below—On last Saturday the Mifflin Bridge Company had a man employed in making some repairs in the floor of the bridge that crosses the river at this place. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon the workman had an opening in the floor of some six or eight plank. Just at this time a party of boys, running at the headlong rate peculiar to boys, entered the bridge, and before either the boys or the man there comprehended the danger, Charles Crawford, aged about 13 years, nephew to Senator Crawford, leaped into the opening, and, to the horror of his companions and Mr. Wilson, disappeared from their sight. Mr. Wilson with all speed hastened below to the boy on the ice, picked him up and carried him to the toll-house, from which he was subsequently carried to his mother's residence His uncle, Dr. Crawford, was speedily summoned, and rendered all the attention required. How the boy escaped with his life is the wonder of the community. He was not even rendered unconscious by the fall of 26 feet. the distance from the bridge to the ice. He lit on his right hip. No bones were broken, but he was considerably bruised, and had to keep his bed for several days It is believed, however, that no serious results will follow the fall.

REV. E. W KIRBY'S woman scrape is defined by the Chambersburg Valley Spirit as follows:

"Mr. King left this place on a visit to Scotland, of which country he is a native, on the 3d of July last and returned on the 5th of September. During his absence the offense charged in the indictment was committed six different times Upon his return he noticed a change in his wife's appearance and demeanor, and on charging her with infidelity she confessed her guilt. The information was made soon after and immediately upon the arrest of the defendent the latter, at the bidding of his congregation, suspended his ministrations. The trial began on Wednesday forenoon and continued until nine o'clock on Thursday night, the arguments of counsel and the charge of the court occupying Thursday afternoon and evening. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty on Friday morning, and on Saturday morning His Honor Judge Hall sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of $200 and costs and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for the period of thirty days.

"This case excited extraordinary interest, and, during the whole taial, the crowd in attendance was very great. Whilst the arguments were being made the seats were all filled and every foot of standing room was occupied. A considerable number of ministers were in attendance, some as witnesses for the defendent on character. On this latter point the testimony of five gentlemen from Milton, Pa., weighed fearfully against the defendant."

AN exchange says: How to burn kerosene without danger is a conundrum just solved. Take an ordinary lamp and fill it as nearly as possible with wick, placing little pieces of sponge wherever space appears, pour on the oil, and the lamp will burn as long as any of the kerosene remains in the wick. So arranged it is impossible for a lamp to explode.

TREASURER'S NOTICE.—W. C. Laird, County Treasurer, hereby gives notice that he will not honor or cash any county order issued after Dec. 31, 1871, unless the order is endorsed by the person to whom it was issued. He also gives notice that during next Court week, and all subsequent Courts, he will have his office in the Sheriff's office in the Court House, where he can at all reasonable hours be found.

W. C. LAIRD.

ON Sunday a week Mrs. George W. Mertz, (nee Miss Minnie Muttersbaugh,) of Derry township, whilst carrying an armful of wood slipped upon the ice and fell to the ground. She arose and entered the house, making a jocular remark about the fall, not knowing that she had sustained serious injury. Soon afterward, however, her symptoms created alarm, and physicians were sent for. She grew gradually worse until Tuesday morning last, when death claimed her as its own Only six weeks ago, (the 13th of December,) she was a bride. Now her cold form rests in the tomb. Thus are the ways of Providence inscrutible. "In the midst of life we are in death."—Lewistown Democrat.

A FORMER RESIDENT OF ALTOONA STRUCK DEAD AT HIS WIFE'S GRAVE.—From a late Sacramento paper we learn that Mr. Joseph Griffith, a former resident of this city, but more recently employed on the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, and residing in Virginia City, Nevada, on the 13th ult., met with a sudden death which occurred under rather singular circumstances. On the day referred to, accompanied by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Kelley, and his daughter, Mr. Griffith visited the grave of his wife, in Helvetia Cemetery, near Virginia City, and while standing at the head of the grave, examining the tombstone, he dropped dead. The heart that had throbbed with love for the wife and mourned over her death, ceased its pulsations at her sepulture, and there amid the homes of the dead the spirit of the widowered husband winged its way in search of its mate in the spirit land. Mr. Griffith has relatives living in Altoona. He had been afflicted for some time with disease of the heart, which was the cause of his death.—Altoona Tribune

AN INCIDENT.—The following little story is told at the expense of a young lady school teacher in Altoona, who is very properly anxious in regard to the prevention of small-pox in her school, and therefore strickly enforces the rule that whenever a case of sickness is reported in the family of any one of her pupils, the pupil must bring a certificate from the family physician stating that the disease is not contagious, failing in which the pupil must remain away until all danger is over. A few days ago she was informed that one of her pupils, a little girl of Teutonic extraction, had sickness in her family. On being questioned, the girl admitted that she had sick at her house; that her mother was sick, and that she had marks on her face She was accordingly sent home. She returned in a few days, however, and reported that her "father was sick" She was again sent home, with orders not to come again without a certificate from the family physician. The next day she returned to school and shyly siding up to the teacher, with her fingers in her mouth and her little bonnet swinging by the strings, she said: "Miss—, we've got a leettle baby at our house, but mother told me to tell you that it isn't catching." The teacher said she was very glad it wasn't "catching," and told her pupil to take her seat.—Hollidaysburg Standard.

EXPERIMENTS WITH ONIONS.—John B. Wolf, M. D., of Washington, forwarded to the Farmers' Club, New York, the following communication:

On shipboard, at New Orleans, in the year 1749, in charge of one hundred marines, with cholera among them, I observed that those who ate freely of onions, supposing them to be healthy, were attacked certainly and fatally.—Onions and salt cured the bite of a rattlesnake on my son, and are considered specific in all snake bites. I have found four separate witnesses of phenomena connected with small-pox and fever.

1 Onions in rooms with small-pox rot rapidly.

2. Blisters rise in them.

3. They retain and communicate the virus many weeks after the epidemic has subsided.

4. Applied to the feet of fever patients, they rapidly turn black.

5. They prevent the spread of small-pox in thickly populated tenements by absorbing the virus.

6. A man with hydrophobia, in his frenzy, ate voraciously of onions, and recovered.

From all these facts may be deducted:

1. That onions should not be eaten when there is a prevailing epidemic.

2. That onions sliced and frequently changed are good disinfectants.

3. That experiments should be made to test the extent of their usefulness.—For many years I have opposed vaccination as ordinarily done, and hence hail with satisfaction any means of mitigating the virus of this distemper.—Carlisle Herald.

LOAN ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of a number of our citizens favorable to the organization of a Loan Association was held in Mr. Lyons' office, on last Saturday evening, and the introductory movement inaugurated to the complete and permanent organization of such an association was made. The full scope of said association will be fully explained by the committee on resolutions and by-laws, at the next meeting, which will be held on to-morrow night, February 1st, at the Patterson School House. Loan and building associations have long been in successful and beneficial operation in cities and many towns in this State. We here reproduce an article on said associations that appeared in last Saturday's Press It sheds a great deal of light on the subject. Read it carefully:

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Much has been said of co-operative associations for manufacturing and for carrying on other branches of productive industry, as well as of co-operative stores, but what are known as building and loan associations, representing another application of the same mutual principle, are comparatively little understood. The latter offer very decided advantages not only to the working people, but to all persons in receipt of wages or a fixed salary, whether shop girls or railroad superintendents.

The building and loan association is in the nature of a saving bank, all the depositors in which are stockholders and entitled to a pro rata share of the profits which their aggregated savings earn It is a perfectly mutual concern, there being no preferred class of stockholders, and, as usually managed, the officers for the most part serving without salaries.—The expenses are exceedingly small.

A prominent feature of such associations is the privilege accorded to members of borrowing money, in amounts proportioned to the number of their shares of stock on remarkably favorable terms. This enables a poor man to become the absolute owner of a house in from eight to eleven years by paying annually but a small sum in addition to the rent of it.

A law passed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania in 1859 provides for the incorporation of building and loan associations, and prescribes certain general rules and limitations respecting them,—Some of the details of their working are a little complex, but the plan in the main is very simple, and entirely within the comprehension of everybody. A man—or woman either—who can save ten dollars a month, may take ten shares of stock, which have a nominal or prospective value of $200 each. By continuing monthly payments of $10 during a term which varies from eight to eleven years, he can withdraw the sum of $2,000 at the end of that time. Supposing the association to run nine years and six months (which is about the average period under good management), such a stockholder actually pays but $1,140 in return for the $2,000 which he obtains. He thus realizes an average annual interest of very nearly eight per cent. on his money, while five per cent. is the highest ever allowed by saving banks, and four per cent. is the more usual rate.

This example shows the paramount advantages of such mutual socities simply as a depository for savings. Of course a smaller or larger amount of stock may be taken with proportionate results.

Men who desire to borrow moderate amounts of money, either for the purpose of purchasing or building a house, or starting in buiness, find quite as great an advantage from the possession of stock in a building and loan association, though they may be obliged to pay a considerable premium in addition to legal interest, That premium goes to swell the common fund, and the larger the profits thus made by the association the sooner its objects is accomplished and the end of its existence reached, when the borrower is not only relieved from further payments of interest, but his note and mortgage are canceled without the payment or any principal beyond the amounts which have been received from him as monthly dues on his shares of stock.

The stock in these associations may be transferred at any time, and always for more than it cost; thus there is no possibility of loss, provided honest or responsible officers are chosen. The principles and workings of this plan cannot all be explained within the limits of a newspaper article. Several books have been written concerning it, and a monthly journal.—The Building Association Journal—devoted to the subject, has been published in Philadelphia for more than a year past.

The idea of such associations originated in Scotland about 1815. The first one in this country was organized in Frankford, Philadelphia, January 3, 1831. The number now in this city is estimated at 350, and the average of capital invested in them at upwards of $25,000,000.

The employes of the Press are taking steps to organize a building and loan association, for which they expect to obtain a charter at the nex term of court.

WE have often wondered whether there is a person in all New England, who does not know and appreciate the value of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment as a family medicine? It is adapted to most all purposes, and is the best pain killer that can be used.

IT is said that Rev. Lyman Beecher, the father of more brains than any other man in this country, raised and educated his family on a salary of eight hundred a year.

A dozen or more of newspapers say this in their local columns: A young lady sends us the following recipe, 'How to prevent chappy cheeks: Have nothing to do with cheeky chaps.'

SOME days ago a man in the Selinsgrove bank would have used the cancelling hammer of that institution on the head of the editor of the Times, if a bystander had not interposed his arm. An exchange wonders what in the world the editor have been doing in the bank.

A TERRIBLE accident occurred on the Philad'a and Erie Railroad, on the night of the 29th inst. Four passenger cars and one baggage car were consumed by fire. A broken rail threw the train from the track down an embankment. Between sixty and seventy passengers were on the train, most of whom were injured.

DIED.
