

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.
FACTS ABOUT BUTTER—HOW IT IS MADE IN THE EAST.
From the Scientific American.
Our English word butter, is derived from the Latin butrum, while the Latin word is of exceedingly doubtful origin, but has most probably come from the Greek language.
It is not known positively whether butter was ever made previous to the Christian era, but in our translation of the Bible, the word butter frequently appears. In Genesis, chapter xviii verse 8, we read: "And he took butter and the calf which he had dressed and set it before them," etc. And in Deuteronomy, chapter xxxi ver e 14, the phrase "butter of kine" is made use of. Also in the Book of Proverbs, chapter xxv, verse 33, we read, "Surely the churning of milk bringeth forth butter." The word appears also in other passages. But in all these the words refer to something of a fluid nature; whenever the word "butter" appears in the Bible it should read, according to the most biblical critics, thick milk or cream. The original Hebrew words met-hab (translated churning) signify to squeeze or press, and therefore, the latter quotation above should read, "the pressing of milk bringeth forth milk," and this agrees better with what follows in the same passage, and the wringing of the nose bringeth forth blood.
It is not until about the birth of Christ—probably before—that we have any definite mention of butter, as we understand the word. But it appears at this time and indeed for several centuries thereafter, that it was only used instead of oil, as an ointment or as a medicine. The ancient Burgundians were accustomed to besmear their hair with butter, and the ancient Christians of Egypt burned butter in their lamps at their altars instead of oil, a practice also accredited to the Abyssinians. Butter use to be allowed to be burned instead of oil in the Catholic churches during Christmas time and this accounts for the name of "butter tower" which we find at Rouen, in Notre Dame, and elsewhere. "In A. D. 1560, George d'Amboise, Archbishop of Rouen, finding the oil foul in his diocese, during Lent, permitted the use of butter in the lamps, on condition that each person should pay six deniers for the indulgence, with which sum the tower was built."
It is a very difficult matter to find out among what nation the practice of making butter originated. Some writers affirm that the ancient Scythians were acquainted with the art 400 years B. C., as did also the Indians (inhabitants of India). Plutarch speaks of a visit paid by a Lacedaemonian lady, to Berdica, the wife of Deiotarus, and says that the one smelled so much of butter and the other perfume, that neither of them could endure the other. But this must surely have been bad butter. Pliny says that the ancient Germans and Britons (barbarians in his time) made butter and used it as food, and ascribes the invention to these nations. And it is generally believed that the Greeks obtained their knowledge of butter from the Thracians or the Scythians, and the Romans from the Germans.
But whether the ancients knew how to make butter or not, it is quite certain that they did not know how to give it the firmness or consistency of the butter made at the present day. "With them it was poured out like oil; with us it is cut and spread." Their butter, too, must have been very inferior to ours in quality.
We are all acquainted with our present mode of churning; other nations have some really funny ways of making butter.
In northern Africa, in Egypt and Arabia the cream is put into a goat's skin turned inside out, pressed to and fro like kneading bread. And sometimes they place it on an inclined plane and let it roll to the bottom, and then replace it to run the same course. This method, it is said, produces butter in a short time. Sometimes the skins are kneaded in Bengal they churn every morning that they might have fresh butter for breakfast. They simply stir the milk rapidly with a stick. In some parts of the East they make butter of the milk of the buffalo; but this is in every way inferior to that made from cow's milk.
In treating animals that are ailing from some unknown cause, it is best to act with caution in giving physic. Generally warm gruel or mashes, with a change of feed, in which some flaxseed meal or gently laxative medicine has been mixed, with warm shelter, will effect a cure when violent and mistaken remedies would be only a sudden means of death. Almost all complaints spring from exposure or overwork or bad feed.
The Edinburgh Review relates an anecdote of M. de Sainte Beuve. He once fought a duel. When the principals took their positions it was raining hard. Sainte Beuve had his pistol in his hand, and with the other hand he held up his umbrella. The seconds protested, "I have no objection to being killed," said he, "but to being wet—no!"
A good instance of "sharp practice" is that of a man in Ohio, who was acquitted of murder on a plea of insanity. He had secured his lawyers by giving them a mortgage on his farm, but now repudiates the mortgage on the ground that he was insane when he made it, according to the showing of these same lawyers.
