A Traveler's Story.

"Is this seat engaged, sir?" I glanced up from the paper I was read ing, and met the smiling regard of a genial looking gentleman in the prime of life. "It is not, sir."

$ Good and responsible Agents wanted. "With your permission, then," as he seated himself beside me.

The train had already started, and presently the conductor made his appearance, collecting the tickets. Reaching anything? us, he detached the appropriate company from our tickets, handing back the remainder with the usual checks.

HAVING opened out a GROCERY AND "but I perceive you place your ticket in my steps to the hotel, not without slight your wallet."

'It is unwise, unsafe."

"Why do you consider it so?" I inquired with curiosity, naturning the wallet to "Suppose, through carelessness, or we may say, accident, your wallet is lostyour pocket may be picked, for instance." "Your money and your check are both Confectioneries, Nuts. &c., situation. I can see clearly enough --were you ever so placed ?" "Once; only once."

"How is that?" "You wish to profit by my experience? Well, I don't know that I mind telling you the story. It may serve to amus you, if nothing more. It occurred a number of years ago, and no consequence. I had taken the early express train, and being somewhat tired and altogether would admit I slept soundly, for I Mso, Shorts, Bean, Ship stuff and Chip could in those days sleep well almost anywhere, and did not awaken until the conductor came for my ticket. The essential piece of paste board could not be found. I was positive I had purchased their orders at the Store of John Erka in Millin, or at Pennell's Store in Patterson, or addressing a note to Box 35, Patterson having shown it to the baggage clerk at Post Office. GRAIN OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT AT the time of checking my trunk.

The conductor grew impatient passe to the other end of the car, and returned to me. I had made the discovery that my pocket book had been picked, and in proof of my story showed him my baggage check.

My search for the lost ticket had brought to light about a dollar and eighty cents. I told the conductor this was every cent I had about me. He said it was about fifty cents short of the usual fare to Lauerdale city, but that he would pass me through for it rather than stop the train. From Lauerdale, a city of much importance, I could write to my partner in the county. While thus occupied, the customers be-Pardon the question naturally suggested gan to present themselves, expressing great dissatisfaction on learning how matters stood. Now although I am a proud man, I am not, thank God, cursed with that species of vanity which prevents a man's doing certain kinds of hon est labor simply because they are not genteel. Here was an opportunity afforded me at least to earn the price of my breakfast. I took advantage of it Told the first man who entered after I sleepy, had stretched myself upon a seat had completed shaving myself I would for as comfortable a nap as circumstances shave him. I did so. In fact, I did quite a good business for a couple of hours, and if any of the unfortunate individuals who came under my hand bad any doubt of my fitness for the business, they certainly expressed none. At the expiration of this time I began to think I had done sufficient, and feeling rather hungry, having no breakfast, I divided the proceeds with the boy, and prepared to return to my hotel But I was not done yet. As I was brushing my hat a young dandified specimen of humanity came in Resolved that he should be the last. I went to work on him.
