

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

THE MORGAN HORSE.

There has been much discussion as to the origin of the Morgan horse, and yet we have very little knowledge on the subject that is definite.

It was the custom to run him short races on the country roads, and it is said that he was never beaten in these contests.

It was also the custom to test his strength by hitching him in front of heavy loads. Where the horse came from and what was his breeding are left largely to conjecture.

Of course the pedigree could be given to the horse that would not be open to objection. All the facts in his remarkable career to a channel of pure blood, and give the lie to the story that he was a mongrel, was of obscure origin.

SOWN CORN FOR FODDER.

There is no question that farmers have a good deal of solicitude every year as to the question of sufficient feed for stock, and when, as was the case last year, the grass crop is short—the inquiry is for some substitute for hay.

It is good feed for milk cows, and stock of all kinds like it, and no other yields so well to pay better with as little expense and trouble.

Suck Horses—Lined tea is not only a valuable restorative for horses, but is exceedingly useful in cases of inflammation of the membranes, peculiar to the organs of respiration and digestion.

SOFT SOAP FOR THE LADIES.—Mrs. Randolph, the author of the Virginia household, gives the following mode of preparing a cosmetic soap for washing the hands: Take a pound of castile or any old soap, scrape it into small pieces and put it on the fire with a little water, stir it till it becomes a paste, pour it into a bowl, and when cold add some lavender water or essence of any kind, beat it with a spoon until well mixed, thicken it with corn meal and keep it in pots closely. This is very nice and good.

A Correspondent of the Country Gentleman had four horses that contracted the habit of crib-biting. He painted the woodwork of the stable with crude petroleum, and was amused by the grimaces of the animals over the smell and taste, but rejoiced that in his case it effected a cure.
