ACCIDENT.—On last Friday morning Mr. George Heikes, of Millford township, drove his carriage on to the upper crossing of the railroad at Patterson, without noticing that a train of freight cars was backing from the direction of Perrysville. The rear car of the train struck the hind end of the carriage and smashed it to pieces, without, however, injuring the driver or any of the horses.

A DISTRESSING accident occurred at Lewistown on Saturday evening last, on the bridge between Lewistown and the depot. An engine of the Sunbury and Lewistown railroad ran into the omnibus returning with passengers from the Cincinnati express, instantly killing William Hilden, the driver, and one of the horses. John Vanlear, one of the passengers, had one of his shoulders broken and was otherwise injured. The other passengers, six or seven in number, escaped injury, some of them leaping from the omnibus before the collision took place.

On Monday evening of last week Charles Calvin Kinslow, aged about 7 years, met with an accident that resulted in almost instant death. The child was riding in a cart in which lay a barrel of cider which Mr. Alexander McManahan, of Millford township, with whom the boy lived, was hauling to his residence, which he had about reached, when the "dumpstick" jolted out of its place, causing the boy to fall on and behind the barrel of cider to roll on him. The boy was so badly hurt that he lived but a few minutes.

CONSIDERABLE excitement was caused on Cherry street, on Monday evening, by the burning of a coal chimney. We do not understand how it is that nearly everybody denounces the negligence of those who fail to take proper care of their chimneys, and yet so many of them are so careless as to allow them to remain unattended for ten or twelve years. As the cold and stormy season is approaching, every person should see to it that their chimneys are clean, for it is well known to all that the danger arising from foul chimneys in stormy weather is of a two fold character; not only is the danger from sparks greater in windy weather, but chimneys take fire much more readily.

MR. McCLEURE, who resides two miles north of East Waterford, some time since discovered a bee tree in the woods. Last Thursday evening he and some friends went to the woods to cut the tree and get the honey. While busily engaged in storing their vessels with honey their attention was attracted by a succession of queer growls, proceeding from a point higher in the trunk of the tree than where they were working. An investigation revealed the fact that a family of coons had a lodging place there. Their hole of escape having been closed by the fall of the tree, they were quarrelling dreadfully over their mishap. A hole was quickly cut, so as to let the animals out. As a coon appeared at the hole to escape a blow on the head from an axe secured the game. Four, all full grown, was the number taken from the tree.—The honey-gathering was then resumed, and resulted in a yield of 51 pounds. Quite a profitable night's sport.

News from Neighboring Counties. MIFFLIN COUNTY. The Gazette says: On Tuesday of last week William Thomas and Joseph Hoot started out for the purpose of hunting squirrels, pheasants, &c., on the narrow side of Shade Mountain, and when about two miles from town Thomas heard an animal approaching through the brush, and presently a cub bear came up in close proximity to him. Having only a fine shot in his gun, and not knowing how near the old one might be, he was in doubt whether to shoot or not; but as the cub seemed anxious to find out to what tribe he belonged and was still making for him, he fired at it and called on Hoot, who was a short distance away, to shoot also, which he did. The bear was hit, reared up and then ran. After consulting as to the propriety of following the animal, they finally did so, and found it about thirty yards from the spot dead, several shot having penetrated the heart. It weighed 47 pounds dressed.

Hardy, a colored workman on the brick row building by John Davis, Esq., on Dorcas street, fell from the top rung of a ladder, which broke down to the first story, dislocating his arm.

HUNTINGDON COUNTY. The Huntingdon Journal says: A few days ago a little girl dropped eighty cents on the street. An individual, following a few yards behind her, was seen to stoop down and pick up what resembled money, and after looking about to see whether any person observed him called it in his pocket, but when called upon to fork over he acknowledged he had picked up a piece of green paper, but denied that he had the money. Under the law this is larceny. The Monitor is responsible for the following: they were at the Fair last week; they came to town in an open buggy; he had his arm around her waist and a cigar in one corner of his mouth and she leaned lovingly on him like a sick kitten against a door-jam. They had a cord of gingerbread under the buggy seat, and were prepared for a high old time.

It also relates the following accidents: Mr. W. K. Burchnell was engaged, as usual, in driving around unman-geable, ran over a boy named Rupp, of Shading Valley, cutting his leg, but not seriously injuring him. The second: A number of parties were rapidly coursing around the ring when one of the horses becoming frightened, dashed into a crowd congregated at the opening of the ring, and knocked down several persons, stepping on the neck of Mr. Keith, of Water street, and cutting it badly. Two other persons were hurt that day, but whether from this cause or another we have been unable to ascertain. Mr. Jacob Miller, of Oneida, township, was cut in the thigh and a boy was hurt, whether badly or otherwise nobody seemed to know.

On Tuesday night, 8th inst., at about 12 o'clock, one of those shocking rail road accidents so common occurred at this point. The Mixed train had been in the station a moment or two and the engineer, named Isaac Bell, had gotten off his engine for the purpose of oiling it, but was heard to say to a party he was talking with "look out, there comes Philadelphia," and stepped off the track, but started for his engine again, when he was struck by the locomotive of Philadelphia Express train and thrown under the wheels, which passed over his right arm, angling it from below the elbow to near the shoulder. He had a gash cut in his head, above his right eye, but which is not serious. The limb will probably be amputated this (Wednesday) morning. Bell resides in Altoona, and has no family. It is not thought that he will recover.
