The San Juan Boundary Line.

The San Juan boundary question has been a matter of dispute between Great Britain and the United States, since the treaty of the Buchanan international boundary line of 1846.

There are a number of islands off the main land of Washington Territory.

Among them is the island of San Juan which is about fifteen miles in length, and its widest part about seven; it is twelve miles from the colonial capital of Victoria, and contains upwards of forty thousand acres.

It is very fertile, has valuable fisheries, quarries and a spacious harbor. In a military point of view the possession of the island is quite important, as it commands to a certain extent the main channel between British territory and America, and in a strategic view, neutralizes the importance of Vancouver's island to the English.

The treaty above referred to, stipulated that the line of separation between the countries when it reached the islands on the Pacific coast should be through the main channel to the ocean.

The whole question turned on which is the main channel. The English claimed such a channel that the island in question fell to their side of the line.

The Americans declared a different channel to be the main channel and the one through which the boundary line should run.

By the adoption of the American view of the location of the line, the island would become the property of the United States, and this was what our English cousins most devoutly prayed against.

The occupancy of the island in 1859, very nearly culminated in a war. Since then it has been jointly occupied by both Nations.

Through the Washington treaty the question became a subject for arbitration. The Emperor of Germany was chosen to decide which of the channels should become the boundary line.

Greeley's Former Views.

We give below a few of the writings and sayings of Mr. Greeley. They are submitted without a word of comment, rather than to ask how has Mr. Greeley found it in his heart to become the Presidential candidate of the men that he thus reviled, and how can those reviled support him?

"Gen. Grant will be far better qualified for that momentous trust in 1872 than he was in 1868."—HORACE GREELEY, January 5, 1871.

"Let the soldier understand that he is enrolled to fight a parcel of knaves, all liable to indictment, trial, sentence and execution—men who have wickedly disturbed the peace of the world without provocation—men with whom no terms are to be made—Dick Turpin, who call themselves g-nerals and Captain Kyds, who call themselves commanders. A thief is a thief—a liar is a liar—a perjurer is a perjurer; and every Southern traitor, who is morally responsible, is all three together!"—HORACE GREELEY, August 16, 1872.

"The brain, the heart, the soul of the present Democratic party is the rebel element at the South, with its Northern allies and sympathizers. It is rebel at the core to-day."—HORACE GREELEY, February, 1871.

"Every one who chooses to live by pugilism, or gambling, or harlotry, with nearly every keeper of a tipping house, is politically a Democrat."—HORACE GREELEY, January 7, 1868.

"Point wherever you please to an election district which you will pronounce morally rotten given up in great part to debauchery and vice, whose voters subsist mainly by keeping policy offices, gambling houses, grog shops and dens of infamy, and that district will be found at nearly or quite every election giving a majority for that which styles itself the 'Democratic' party. Take all the haunts of debauchery in the land, and you will find nine tenths of their master spirits active partisans of that same Democracy."—HORACE GREELEY, May 17, 1868.

"I have no doubt that the policy you suggest is that which your party [the Democrats] ought to adopt. You only err as to the proper candidate. I am not the man you need. Your party is mostly Free Trade and I am a fervent Protectionist. I have no doubt that I might be nominated and elected by your help, but it would place us all in a false position."—HORACE GREELEY, in Tribune, December 30, 1871.

"President Grant has expressed precisely the opinion we should have expected from him concerning the Gratz Brown movement in Missouri. He considers it an effort to disorganize the Republican party without cause, which no good Republican who has the interests of the country and of the party at heart can fail zealously to combat. How any man professing Republicanism can fail to take the same view is one of the mysteries which only Revenue Reformers, Tammany Republicans and other political nondescripts can be expected to understand."—Tribune, Sept. 21, 1870.

"The baffled survivors of slavery still cling to the wreck of their fallen dragon, and hope to set it again on its pedestal. If they can no longer buy and sell men, women and children they can still degrade and oppress the image of God."—They can pretend to fear that four millions of humble, despised, moneyless, landless blacks, just freed from the shackles they had worn for ages, will rule and domineer over twenty-eight millions of comparatively educated, intelligent, wealthy whites if the laws shall treat them exactly alike. Yet the hypocrites or cowards who set up this pretense boast of their superiority to negroes. Why, then, do they act as if consciously inferior to them?"—New York Tribune.

"Republicans! God's finger has written plainly on the eventful history of our last ten years His approval of your cause and His resolve that it shall triumph. It must be that the great work of rendering this land of equal rights and equal laws shall go on to its perfect consummation. Blessed are they who shall have proved faithful to it, alike in dark and in brighter hours. On, then, to the struggle of to-morrow!"—Tribune, November 4, 1867.

"The wealthy and fashionable people, as well as other people of the country, had their attention keenly drawn to Chicago within the past few days to divorce proceedings, instituted by a father to recover his daughter, a girl of seventeen from the marital relationship with his coachman, who, by false representations, impressed the girl favorably and induced her to marry him secretly. The coachman says she is his lawful wife and he will defend his claim in the courts. The other case of attention was at Washington, D. C., and also within the past few days it was the death of Annie Dean, in a house of a colored woman with whom she has lived five years. She too, was the wife of her father's coachman, who beguiled her into a marriage, but when he found that he could not obtain money from her parents, left her. Her parents cast her off and she became degraded and led a life of shame. How sad the fate of such women."

"The Philadelphia Democracy are exercised to such a degree over the October election that they have read a number of their prominent men out of the party. Among those read out stands William McMullin."

"The Congressional vote in this district is John B. Parker..... 17,545 Abner Rutherford..... 13,486 Packer's majority..... 4,059"

"CURTIN'S majority in 1860 was 32,164; Hantranf's majority in 1872 was 35,627."

"The Republican majority in Pennsylvania on the Congressional vote is 50,776"

The Horse Epidemic.

A LETTER FROM GEN. ROBERTS, U. S. A., TO MR. BONNER, ON THE HORSE EPIDEMIC.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 23.

MR. BONNER—Dear Sir: In the Spring of 1868 a disease broke out among my cavalry horses at Fort Sumner, New Mexico, that appears to me identical with that now raging among horses in our cities, and in a very few days became an epidemic.

At first it defied all treatment, and the great majority of horses attacked by it died. On examining the throats of the dead horses, I found the lining membrane of the larynx highly inflamed and thickened, and a thick mucus pus filling it, causing suffocation. I ordered all horses, on the first appearance of the disease, to be thoroughly rubbed between the lower jaws and along the larynx down the neck with spirits of turpentine, causing a very severe external irritation and blister.

I saved every horse thus treated, and in a very few days entirely broke the distemper and checked the epidemic.

I do not doubt that thousands of horses, where this epidemic prevails, can be saved by adopting this treatment. It acts more quickly as a counter-irritant than any other remedy I know, and relieves the fever of the membrane of the larynx in a very few hours. Besides, spirits of turpentine is always at hand, and can be more readily applied than any other counter-irritant. It should be thoroughly rubbed in through the hair to the skin, for a distance of some twelve or fifteen inches, under the jaws and down the neck of the horse immediately over the larynx. The remedy is severe and makes the skin sore for several weeks, and for an hour causes great suffering to the horse.

But it acts promptly and effectively, and in my judgment it will be found the best and perhaps the only cure for this fatal malady, causing such suffering and loss among horses throughout the country. My love of horses induces me to address you, and to ask you to give to this communication such place in your paper as to reach the public in the most prompt and general way, and stay one of the greatest misfortunes now threatening all communities, and destroying by thousands the noblest animal created for the service of man.

Very truly yours, B. S. ROBERTS, Brevet Brig. Gen., U. S. A.

Anecdote of Grant.

A correspondent of the Louisville Commercial has the following:

A volunteer soldier of the late war, with whom I am acquainted, a man of truth and honor, who was with General Grant at Vicksburg and other important places, tells the following: A fop of a lieutenant, with a $300 suit on his back, kicked a soldier who among others was unloading a boat, but as the lieutenant thought, was rather slow. A common-looking man, without shoulder straps, walked up to him and inquired of him the company and regiment to which he belonged. He named them. Said the man without shoulder straps: "Go and report yourself to your superior officer, dismissed by order of General Grant." The lieutenant departed, crest fallen, and the General rolled up his sleeves and assisted the boys to unload the boat.

Wonder if that lieutenant will vote for Greeley? That same soldier assures us that it would require a thousand such speeches as Sumner's to convince him that President Grant is either a tyrant or a thief, or anything of that sort.

NEARLY every branch of trade is being impeded by the horse disease in New York. Late despatches state that there is no abatement, but that, on the contrary, it is spreading faster and faster. Thousands of men are thrown out of employment through the sickness of the horses, while along the piers great masses of freight are piled up and cannot be removed. Strange as it may seem few deaths have occurred so far as reported. The streets of Rochester are said to be deserted, and wagons and carts are being drawn by men. Boston appears to be suffering as badly as New York and Rochester; all departments of business are at a stand still. Other cities have been attacked. Detroit and the lumbering district of Michigan are compelled to stop the running of the cars, etc. One case is reported (from Boston) where a driver had caught the disease.

THE PHRYNOLOGICAL JOURNAL.—This Magazine has been before the public so long and become so well established, that the publisher hardly feels called upon to more than announce a new volume. Its name has become a household word in all parts of the country. It will, as heretofore, be devoted to all that will improve men Physically, Mentally and Morally. Containing all that is new on PHERNOLOGY, or the Brain and its Functions; ETHNOLOGY, or the Natural History of Man; PHYSIOGNOMY, or the Signs of Character exhibited in the Human Face and Form; PSYCHOLOGY, or the Science of the Soul; SOCIOLOGY, or Man in his Private and Public Relations; HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY, or Man in the Past and in the Present. Terms, $3.00 a year. Single numbers, 30 cents. Ten copies, $20.00, and an extra copy to agent. Besides these club rates, the most liberal Premiums are offered. A list of which will be sent on application. Local agents wanted everywhere, and cash commissions given. Address S. R. WELLS, Publisher, 389 Broadway, New York.

THE Pennsylvania Congressional delegation numbers 25 Republicans and 5 Democrats.

THE horse disease is reported to be in Philadelphia.

SHORT ITEMS.

Four hundred artificial eyes are sold every week in Paris.

It is estimated that there are 80,000 Jews in New York city.

A progressive Chinaman has outraged the traditions of his country by marrying a St. Louis woman.

The water wheels of a paper mill in Bradford county were recently filled with eels and stopped.

Jack Hays, the leader of the Texas Rangers during the Mexican war, is now living on the interest of $200,000, at Alameda, California.

Miss Ellen M. Wellington, of Athol, Mass., picked $150 worth of berries the season just passed. Her illustrious umeasake, the Iron Duke, would have gloried in that girl.

A father living in Titusville, who has two or three very courteous girls, placed a notice on his front door the other night, which read: "Shut down for thirty days. No stove in the parlor, and but one lamp."

A Fort Worth despatch says a band of Kiowas have murdered a family of white persons, and driven off a large quantity of stock from the vicinity. The murder was committed between Palo Pinto and Weatherford, in the usual barbarous style.

Governor Brown, of Tennessee, says that, by the census, that State is the ninth in population, the twelfth in wealth and the second in ignorance. There are, he states, 140,000 persons, between the ages of ten and twenty-one, who cannot read or write.

A Miss Sophia Smith, of Massachusetts, has lately bequeathed $350,000 for the endowment of a new college for women at Northampton. The object of the foundation is stated in the deed of gift to be to furnish young women with means and modes of instruction equal to those now enjoyed by young men.

We hear to-day of a terrible accident at Hokendauqua. A lady, whose name we could not learn, was carrying a child up stairs and had a lamp in her hand. As she ascended the stairs, she tripped, the lamp fell and exploded, setting fire to her clothing and burning her so terribly that she died this morning.—Allentown News, 17th.

On election day a woman appeared at the Sixth ward polls in Cleveland, Ohio, leading her husband by the arm. Ticket distributors crowded around him, but she waved them, saying, "Never mind, I vote this man." She marched him up to the ballot box, saw that he voted, and afterwards led up two other men whom she served in the same manner. Who says a woman has no political influence?

A shipment of choice California fruit was recently made from San Francisco to Dublin, Ireland, to fill a special order. The consignment consisted of three boxes pears and three boxes grapes, all fine varieties, carefully selected and well packed. The freight paid the express company on the same amounted to over $70. It is a long distance to send perishable goods, but it is expected they will reach their destination in not more than twenty days, in good order.

A Hollidaysburg German lately complained to Chief Burgess Lemon (State Senator elect.) that if the boys didn't stop going in swimming in the viaduct where his daughters could see them, he would make trouble. "Ah, Conrad," replied the Senator with that dignity for which he is proverbial, "if I remember rightly your house is half a mile or more from the viaduct." "Yaw, dat ish so," replied the German, "but den you see my gals dey got spy glass."

Chief of Police McWilliams, of Jersey City, and Detective Doyle, were placed on trial on the 24th inst., for complicity in the Jersey City Bank robbery. Deran, one of the robbers, testified that McWilliams met him in New York and told him there was $2,000,000 in the bank, and that for twenty per cent. of the plunder he agreed to have the handcuffs so fixed on the hands of robbers as to permit them to slip them off and escape. Great excitement prevails as the trial progresses.

The Memphis appeal says: The heroic exertions of a bold adventurer, who jumped off a steamboat coming up the river and thereby saved the life of a pretty and favorite pooch dog, is likely to gain him a fortune and a wife. An aged maid of money and soursness, who was a passenger on the City of Helena, from Vicksburg to St. Louis, dropped her dog into the water as the steamer was coming up. The bold and impetuous youth sympathized with the lady and saved the life of her pup while risking his own. He became a fast friend of the lady, had his quarters transferred from the deck to the cabin and has every prospect of becoming a husband and a millionaire in St. Louis within a month. The boat reached here last night.

A curious invention has just been invented for cutting wood without a saw. A galvanic current in sufficient quantity, when passed over white platinum wire, raises its temperature to a white heat.—The inventor discovered that wood, a comparatively dry substance, even when green could be cut in the same way—By arranging the wire with handles, or rather means, so as to guide it readily, trees, logs or planks may be cut as desired. There is here, therefore, a simple and easily applied force, which may be employed to fell trees, divide them into logs, and perform all the operations of the saw and the axe. The surface of the wood is slightly charred, but the layer is very thin. The battery employed need only be of the simplest character.
