

MIFFLINTOWN: Wednesday Morning, May 28, 1873.

B. F. SCHWEIER, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.

GEORGE ROWELL & CO., 40 Park Row, New York.

S. M. PETTINGILL & CO., 37 Park Row, N. Y.

THE able and good M. Thiers has resigned the Presidency of the French Republic, and is succeeded by the quiet, strong and ambitious Marshal McMahon. It is French are ever given to praying, and they desire the perpetuity of a Republic they should now pray, that President McMahon's head and heart be kept pure and undefiled. He is strong enough if he so desires to place the French people under the government of a monarchy. Unhappy France!

UNITED STATES troops marched into Mexico and killed and captured a number of Indians who had murdered people in Texas and driven away their horses and cattle.

THERE are certain circles in New York still in a state of excitement of the sanity or insanity of George Francis Train. Train himself says that he is of sane mind and the owner of property worth two millions five hundred and five thousand dollars.

PRESIDENT GRANT issued a proclamation commanding the riotous and disorderly persons in the State of Louisiana, to disperse and retire peacefully to their respective abodes within twenty days from the date of Proclamation which was on the 22nd inst.

A despatch from Prairie City Illinois under date of the 23 says: A fearful tornado passed a mile and a half north of here yesterday afternoon. The storm traveled eastward sweeping nearly everything before it for half a mile in width, blowing down houses, barns, out houses, fences, telegraph poles, and killing and injuring several persons. A number of horses and cattle were killed and injured.

On the 22nd Lieutenant General Sheridan sent a despatch from Chicago to the Secretary of War as follows:

"General Angar telegraphs that Colonel Mackenzie, with six companies of the Fourth Cavalry and twenty five Scoutmen, struck a camp of Kick apoo and Lipon Indians, about eighty miles from Fort Clark, Texas, early on the 18th inst., having marched all the night previous. They killed nineteen Indians, wounded two, and captured one buck, a former chief of the Lipons, and forty one women and children, besides destroying two villages with their accumulated property. He had three of his men wounded, one mortally. He had already over fifty captured ponies."

A PROHIBITION law is favored by the committee in the Canadian Parliament, which has been studying the connection between intemperance and crime. They assert upon official information that four-fifths of the crimes committed in that country result from this vice; for instance, 21,236 commitments of 28,289 made in Quebec and Ontario were to be traced directly to intoxication. The committee fortify their statements by the opinions of 153 doctors, who agree that disease and premature death are the results of indulgence in ardent spirits. The fiscal objection to prohibiting the liquor traffic, that to do so would deprive the State of an annual revenue, which last year was $5,034,543 48, they meet by the argument that an equal sum would be saved, under prohibition, in the cost of hospitals, jails, courts, and the other appliances with which society now struggles against intemperance.

A despatch from Harrisburg to the Philadelphia Inquirer under date of May 24th says: A case of great importance to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was argued in the Supreme Court today. It involved the right of the plaintiff to recover damages for the killing of a man on a crossing at a public highway, where the plaintiff proved affirmatively that the person killed did not stop, look nor listen before he drove on the crossing. Counsel for the company contended that this was negligence in law, and this was denied on the other side.

The question was fairly raised by counsel, and the court seemed duly impressed with his argument. Great interest is felt in the case here, as it is thought to involve the safety of passengers and travelers, and is an entirely new point. The case is of great importance to the railroad company, as it would hold them responsible in every case of injury at a public crossing if decided against them. It is thought the decision of the court below will be reversed.

The case referred to by despatch is the one commonly known in this county as the "Beale Case." E. D. Parker is the "counsel" who carried the case up to the Supreme Court.

Half of Captain Jack's Band Surrendered.

Captain Hasbrouck left Boyle's Camp May 7, and has been scouting ever since. His command consists of Battery B, Fourth Artillery, troops B and G, First Artillery, and Warm Spring Indians numbering in all 210 men.

Captain Jack had charge of troops B and G, with which he harassed the Indians. His men fought well in every instance, and paid little heed to hunger so that they vanquished the Indians—Captain Hasbrouck especially prizes the gallantry of B troop and a portion of G in the charge at Dry Lake.

The men scaled a ridge twenty-five feet high in the face of the Modocs, and drove them away. Captain Jackson led the right, and Lieutenant Moss the left, and Lieutenants Bontelle and Kyle held the other bold positions. Captain Hasbrouck has not lost a man since the Dry Lake engagement. Artna, Chokus, Longlegs, One-eyed Dixie, and two Modoc residents of this ranch, last evening interviewed the five women captured by Captain Hasbrouck's command, and from them gleaned interesting accounts of the Modoc operations during the few months.

The captives are Mrs. Wachmetel, Boston Charley's two sisters, the mother of Black Jim, and one maiden whose relatives have attained no notable distinction. They report that Shacknasty Frank, Shacknasty Jake, Shacknasty Bill, Steamboat Frank, Ellen's Man, Hooker Jim's father, Boston Nick and several other Modocs have been killed, and many wounded. Curly-headed Jack carried a piece of lead in his body several days, and when last seen was apparently 'booked' for the happy hunting grounds. The inability of Little John to travel at a rapid pace delayed the band. Hasbrouck encountered and got the Modoco this last difficulty. The account of the cause of disaffection among the Modocs after the battle is interesting. Captain Jack consulted a stolen chronometer and, after sundry gestures and exclamations, informed his followers that they would shed rifle bullets as a duck does water, and escape unharmed.

The confidence this statement inspired was rapidly dispelled by Captain Hasbrouck's encounter, when several Modocs were killed and others wounded. Indignation reigned supreme in Jack's household. The Cottonwood branch of the tribe from Fairchild's decided that they would fight no more. This resolution led to Jack's chastisement departure.

The Cottonwoods, numbering twenty warriors and fifty women and children, hurried to the Snow Mountains, at the southern end of the lava deposit, preparatory to traveling to the Yainox reservation, and imploring pardon from the Great Father at Washington. The sudden advent of Hasbrouck's cavalry and Warm Spring Indians disturbed their peaceful meditations and caused them to run or fight. During the stampede Mrs. Hendricks, alias "Limpey," threw her six months' old infant to the ground in the hope of escaping, but was soon after killed by a Warm Spring warrior. The babe was brought hither and turned over to a squaw.

Artna also learned from Modoc women that the Cottonwood Indians earnestly desired any action looking to the restoration of peace, and would yield to the soldiers if an opportunity were offered to them. About this time the Warm Spring Indians, who were outside the interviewing apartment, commenced singing one of their national melodies, and drawing their knives across their moccasins, which caused uneasiness among the squaws, and terminated the consultation.

Capt Hasbrouck said he was willing to have the Modocs surrender, and would afford them every facility for so doing. Artna, Chokus and Dixie, who have hitherto been of great service to the government, caught the idea immediately and wanted to be employed as emissaries. They were provided with horses and provender for two days, and sent after the Modocs.

The women were taken into General Davis' tent in the presence of General Hardie, Colonel Gillem and Captain Hasbrouck, Fairchild interpreting. True to their nature they talked a long while, but said little. Finally Artna said the Indians were fifteen miles from here, and they numbered 15 warriors and 50 squaws and children. The Great Spirit had caused their hearts to bleed for the white people, and they all wanted to return to the fold and live in peace among the whiter, but, in the present condition of affairs, a due regard for their lives prevented them from appearing within reach of the army.

They wanted a peace talk, and said: "Let the White Father (meaning General Davis) come out and see them alone, and talk over matters. Through that medium the parties might come to an amicable understanding, but no Modoc would surrender without a peace talk." Dixie corroborated the statements of Artna.

The interview lasted an hour and three-quarters. At the close General Davis told Artna and Dixie to go back to the Modoc camp to-morrow morning and tell the Indians he should not come out for a peace talk; that he did not believe in peace talks away from his men, and that the Indians must come to him if they wanted to talk. He would allow them to surrender, and they had until Friday morning to make their appearance at his headquarters.

After that time he should shoot every Modoc found with a gun. The women of Fairchild would not return to the Modoc camp. That question will be settled in the morning.

YREKA, May 23.—From J. H. McCoy, who has just come in from Fairchild's, in eight hours and fifty minutes, we learn that the Hot Creek band were brought in by Fairchild's party. Their surrender was apparently unconditional. They gave up their arms and were put under guard. The band numbered fifty-five men, women and children, including fifteen warriors. Among the latter are Bogus Charley, Shacknasty Jim, Curly-Head Doctor, Frank and others—the best fighting men Captain Jack had.—Boston is believed to have been killed. The troops are hunting for Hooker Jim. It is supposed that there are twenty warriors with Captain Jack, whose whereabouts is unknown, though it is surmised that he is in the Pitt River Mountains.

FAIRCHILD'S RANCHE, May 22.—P. M.—At one o'clock this afternoon One-eyed Dixie returned to General Davis' headquarters at a slashing pace, his horse being completely blown. He made obeisance, and at once let his tongue loose, reporting that the Indians were close at hand and ready to enter camp under escort. All they asked was Fairchild to come out and meet them—No soldiers need come. The presence of Fairchild would be considered a guarantee of good faith.

"Where is Artna?" asked General Davis. "Tied up," said Dixie: "long ride and no water." The absence of Artna gave rise to suspicions of foul play, which were only dispelled by her sudden advent. She, too, reined her foaming horse before General Davis, and said the Indians were hovering about the hills next here, waiting to surrender to the troops.

Fairchild, Blair and two or three employees of the former, with whom the Indians were acquainted mounted swift steeds, at the request of General Davis, and started with Dixie at five o'clock P. M. The news of the intended surrender of the Indians spread through the camp like wildfire. The soldiers, Warm Spring Indians and scouts were alike elated at the prospect of a peaceful victory. The squaw Dixie told General Davis that before she started, the Modocs feared the soldiers would kill them the instant they entered the camp.

First came Blair, manager of Fairchild's Rancho, mounted; fifty yards behind him was Fairchild, and, further still, twelve Modoc bucks with their squaws and popovers. Among the bucks were Bogus Charley, Steamboat Frank, Curly-headed Doctor and others of lesser note. They were dressed in motley gub nearly all of them wearing a portion of the regular uniform of the United States army, and every buck carried a Springfield rifle. The women were dressed in clothes that had evidently been used by the fair sex within the confines of civilization. The Modocs said nothing, and no one approached them until General Davis came forward. He met the procession fifty paces from the house and was formally introduced to Bogus Charley.

He smiled sweetly on the general and shook his hand, and then all the leading warriors came forward and greeted him cordially. Then every buck laid his gun beside him and waited orders. General Davis said:—"Give up your pistols and all your other arms." Each buck said he had not any arms. "Then," said the general, "I shall give you a camp where you can remain to night, and if you try to run or escape you will be shot dead." The order was explained and all obediences promised.

The procession then moved across Cottonwood creek to a clump of trees. At this point the tail end of the crowd came in. These were half-naked children, aged squaws, who could hardly hobble, blind, lame, halt, boy and the scum of the tribe. There were sixty three persons, men, women and children, twelve bucks, twenty squaws and their children. Fairchild says there are twenty bucks missing from the Cottonwood branch of the tribe. Bogus Charley said Boston Charley had been killed. The disaffection heretofore reported is corroborated by the captain of the Modocs, who parted company with Captain Jack eight days ago.

Captain Ives is now drawing rations and arranging for a feast. Captain E. M. Camp arrived from Van Bremer's this afternoon. Companies E and G of the Twelfth Infantry, will remain here on guard. Captain Kingsbury commands Company E. General Wheaton and Captain Winters reached here this morning.

The artillery has been divided into squadrons, and the Warm Spring Indians into small parties, for purpose of following Captain Jack's faction of the Modoc tribe, and the respective commands will start out in a day or two.

2 O'CLOCK P. M.—Another Modoc has just entered camp and surrendered. It is Hooker Jim, the Lost River murderer. WASHINGTON, May 23.—The following was received here to-night:—"SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—To General Sherman, Washington.—General Davis reports that about half of the Modocs, being whipped and hard pressed by Captain Hasbrouck, have surrendered unconditionally. Davis says he will push the pursuit of Jack and his party, and hopes to end the war soon."

J. M. SCHOFIELD, Major-General.

A Williamsporter, on Saturday a week caught a Siamese twin eel. It had two heads, four eyes and two bodies.

A despatch from Washington Iowa under date of the 23d says: A terrific tornado or whirlwind, accompanied by hail and rain, passed over this section, about six miles north of Washington, yesterday afternoon. Houses, barns, fences, trees, cattle and human beings were caught up and whirled through the air like mere toys, and then dashed to the ground with such violence as to produce instant destruction.

One can scarcely conceive the devastation or realize the force of the tornado. School was in session at a school house six miles north of here, and the tornado tore the building to pieces and carried a 14 year old daughter of Henry Rothmel about a quarter of a mile from school. When found she was mashed to jelly. Miss Smith, the teacher, and six or eight other scholars were injured, some of them severely.

The wife of Henry Walters was killed. A Miss Gardner and a son of Abo G been lie at the point of death. Jacob Seck was seriously hurt. A Mr. Baker was hurt in the back. The family of J. Campbell near Keota were injured. Mrs. McCoy was seriously hurt.

The lives of many persons were saved by their hastily getting into the cellars of their houses. Sad havoc was made with all kinds of stock.

Hail stones fell that measured nine inches in diameter. The roaring of the tornado was fearful, and could have been easily heard ten miles. At this place, six miles away, it was perfectly appalling, surpassing in terror anything ever heard.

A telegram from Keota last evening says five persons were killed about three miles from that place. One child was torn to pieces.

The loss of life and property by the tornado was much greater than at first reported. Six more persons have died since morning, and the destruction of property is enormous. In the town of Lancaster but one house was left standing. No one is reported killed, but a large number were seriously injured.

KEOTA, May 23.—The most terrific storm ever known in this part of the State passed over here yesterday about 3 P. M. It started, as far as heard from, ten miles southwest of here, on Skunk Bottom, and traveled to within two miles and a half of this city sweeping everything before it. Up to the present time four persons are reported killed and eight slightly hurt. Eight houses, three barns, one saw mill and several granaries were destroyed.

Between two hundred and three hundred cattle were killed.

The storm did not exceed in width from one hundred to four hundred yards. It is reported that the town of Lancaster, fifteen miles south-west of here, in this county, is in ruins.
