Their nearest headquarters to Millin was at McAllisterville.

The mineral resources of Juniata county are so intimately connected with this enterprise, and every business interest among us would be so immeasurably advanced by the development of our mineral resources that it should become the pleasure and business of our people to extend a hearty welcome to those who are about to inaugurate the enterprise referred to. Let there be a hearty welcome to the railroad men.

COMMUNICATION.

THOMPSONSTOWN, June 21, 1873. Editor Sentinel: The Juniata County Normal School at this place closed its first quarter for this summer yesterday. Prof. David Harman, assisted by his sister, Miss Lizzie Harman, and his pupils, gave a public entertainment last night, in the Lutheran church, which was a decided success. Although the weather was very warm, roads very dusty, and admittance 25 cents, yet the church was well filled by an appreciative audience, which netted the school about $35, which is to be expended in repairing, improving and beautifying the public school rooms of Thompsonstown, in which the school has been permitted to hold its sessions.

The exercises consisted, as usual, of Original Orations, Declamations, Essays, Dialogues and Tableaux, all of which were new and spicy. Several of the performers exhibited really superior talents in their respective duties and characters.

Mr. D. Lantz, in the three act comedy entitled "The Dutchman's Ghost," certainly performed his part of the Dutchman with great success, as the roars of applause indicated, which greeted him nearly every time he spoke. His original oration—subject, "The Sciences"—delivered during the entertainment, was a credit to him, both for composition and delivery.

Mr. Kreider, whose home is about three miles north of Millin, in the first comedy of making love to three sisters with a view of marrying the wealthiest, acted like a real actor. He was perfect, cool, natural and ready, and was greeted with much applause during the dialogue. He had also the honor of delivering the valedictory, in which he acquitted himself as creditably as one long accustomed to public speaking.

Master Edgar C. Snyder exhibited the wisdom of an experienced head in his part of the evening's performances. His make up was quite theatrical and cute, and his fatherly dictations to his wayward daughters and their modish precepts took well.

Miss Clara V. Dougherty's lecture on "Woman's Rights" was a treat which no literary mind would have been willing to miss. Miss D.'s literary prospects are very promising.

Another very pleasing performer was Miss Sallie Haldeman, of White Hall. She seemed perfectly at home in her numerous characters, and, with a very pleasant and womanly voice and manner, without a single falter, added greatly to the entertainment of the evening.

Many others might be mentioned who deserve praise, but time and space will not permit. I believe with but one exception, that of a deficient memory on the part of one performer, all are worthy of much praise—both teachers and pupils—for the successful effort the entertainment was.

The exercises of the evening were delightfully interspersed with music, both vocal and instrumental, under the supervision of Miss Annie Wise, of Millintown, assisted by several young ladies also from there, and W. W. Fuller, of Thompsonstown Station, P. B. R., with his violin. Very good order prevailed all the time, and the audience manifested the greatest interest in every subject of the evening.

Mr. Harman and sister have been very successful as teachers during the quarter which has just closed, and are well liked by the community. They had a number of pupils from a distance and expect many more after harvest.

TYPETUS. THERE are but few systems that do not at some time or other require a tonic. KUNKEL'S BITTER WINE OF IRON is noted for its reinvigorating powers.

[Communicated.] OPEN AIR TEMPERANCE MEETING.—Last Saturday evening a public temperance and prohibition meeting was held at the Court House grounds, at 8 o'clock. E. W. H. Kreider, Esq., called the meeting to order, and introduced Mr. James Alexander Mowatt, of Brooklyn, New York, to address the audience.

Mr. Mowatt proceeded to direct attention to the questions of temperance and prohibition. He exhibited a map of Pennsylvania, with the licensing counties colored red and the "local option" counties white. "License" covered 13,000, and odd, square miles; "no license" embraced 30,000, and odd, square miles. In 42 counties and 6 cities against license there were 50,038 more of a population than in the 23 counties and 16 cities that voted for license. As to extent of territory and population "local option" had, therefore, triumphed.

But, he had been told that in Millintown there were men selling liquor clandestinely and making drunks still. The men who did so were rebels against the laws of the State and the vote of the majority. Jeff Davis and the would-be Southern Confederacy did no more than object to be bound by a majority vote, and if let alone would never have fired a shot. But the Northern States said "the vote and decision of the majority must be respected and obeyed over the entire Union;" and it took a four years' war to enforce it. The rebellious liquor dealers ought to be taught in the courts, by fines and imprisonment, to obey the law and the votes of the people. Every thorough American ought to insist on the law and the votes of the majority being obeyed. On that depended the safety of a Democratic government. If hotel owners in Millintown would attend to their bedrooms instead of the "bar" if they would look after the bugs instead of the beer and brandy, they could improve their hotels very much. (Laughter.) They had depended on the "bar," and neglected the boarders. "Local option" would give them three years' vacation from the "bar" to let them have time to sweep down the bedrooms and to get the sheets and blankets washed. (Laughter and applause.)

The man who sold liquor "on the fly" and seduced his neighbor's son into intemperance for the sake of paltry dollars and cents were just possessed of the same foul spirit as he who seduced his neighbor's daughter to her ruin. They were both procurers for evil and equal guilty in the sight of High Heaven. Young men, and old ones, too, ought to be ashamed to be found patronizing these places, where the laws of the State were broken and defied, and drunkenness fostered and promoted. Did they ever pause to consider the extreme folly of paying a man at the street corner for making them drunk? Why if they got drunkness as they might fever or small pox, they ought to be ready to pay their last cent to be made sober. But it was madness for a sober man to pay another for making him drunk. And yet thousands of "smart" Americans did this daily.

The lecturer then urged on all present the duty of personal abstinence and the wisdom and justice of State prohibition, and hoped they would all be found practicing the one and, as law abiding and orderly citizens, enforcing the other in their county and county town. He just saw that day, in the SENTINEL, that Cumberland county would now be glad if they had voted for prohibition. Let Juniata county, that had wisely so voted, see that the vote is obeyed by lawless liquor dealers and drunkard manufacturers.

The address occupied over an hour, and was listened to with marked attention and received with repeated laughter and applause.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT AIRY VIEW.

The annual closing exercises of Airy View Academy were acted on Thursday evening last, in the hall of the Academy. A vast concourse of people witnessed the brilliant display of talent, whose radiant splendor far transcends regal pomp and pageantry; for whilst the rays of the former reflect the magnificent grandeur of extolled genius, the effulgence of the latter is bedimmed by the baneful odium of arbitrary power and tyranny.

The hall, which is capable of seating about three hundred persons, was crowded to excess, which fact, together with the sultry and oppressive temperature of the room, discomposited the audience very much; but nevertheless they continued attentive throughout, and were richly entertained until the close, meanwhile playing strenuously the tinted Chinese fans, which presented a variegated picture.

The respective parts were exquisitely acted, and in a manner very creditable to those participating. A very commendable feature was the self-possession and dignified culture the speakers evinced, which is illustrative of the thorough and rudimental teaching they all received, and is also ominous of their future success in the battles of life.

This session ends the scholastic career of many young men, having now stepped from this farcical stage upon the graver stage of real life, there to seek the object of their soul's ambition, amid the struggles and reverses of this life. Nor will the public gaze be diverted from them by this transition; but now, their acts, obvious to the scrutiny of the whole world, will undergo a still more rigid inspection by mankind, who, if worthy and noble, will extol them with their plaudits, but, if ignoble and perverse, will rebuke them with merited condemnation.

AIRY VIEW.

[Communicated.] A RIDE WITH INDIANS.—On Friday last, intending to take a trip to Harrisburg on board the Pacific Express, I was amazed as well as delighted to find myself, when entering the first car, to be in the midst of Indians, painted and embellished with all the equipments of savage warfare. On all sides of the car hung suspended their arms, consisting of bows, arrows, tomahawks, knives, spears, &c. Their cars were adorned with rings of a rude and artless nature; about their sombre necks beads hung in great profusion. They wore colored shirts, highly festooned with Indian caricatures, namely, beads, rings, &c. Their leggings were made of skins, and were secured by thongs. The use of shoes was obviated by moccasins. Thus attired, some lay crouched upon their seats, wrapped in their robes; others were sitting erect, gazing intently upon the novel and strange scenery, in which their admiration was evidently very much engrossed. They sat motionless and mute and utterly regardless of what was transpiring about them, not even a single smile stealing over their faces; and on every intimation of their countenance was stamped indelibly that resolute and intrepid-ity which has won for them such notoriety.

They numbered twenty-five in all—twenty-two braves, two squaws and one papoose. The squaws were distinguished from the braves, chiefly, by their long, coarse and matted tresses, the heads of the men being bare, except a tuft of hair on the crown of the head. Their garb, consisting of a long and shapeless gown, was very filthy, and was ornamented almost similar to that of the men. But notwithstanding their sloven dress, they wore a look so august and majestic that it impressed the beholder with reverential awe.

Thus they sat, as dignified as statuary, the remnants of two once powerful tribes, the Comanches and Kiowas.—Their destination was Vienna, whither they were being conveyed by an agent of P. T. Barnum, for the exposition now in progress there.

If these were true specimens of the Indian race, surely the savage atrocity and barbarity imputed to them is false and unauthentic.

"A WHITE."

An exchange writes as follows on the subject of postage on county papers, which is as applicable in our columns as in its own, with the change of name:

The new postage law which goes into effect on the first day of July next, requires the prepayment of postage on all regularly issued publications sent through the mail. Each subscriber of the SENTINEL, by going to the Postmaster at the office where he receives his paper on or before the first of July, can with five cents prepay the postage on it for the next three months, or for ten cents, six months, or for ten cents, a year. This would save all residents in the county, as doubtless the law will be modified early in the next session of Congress, so far as regards the circulation of papers in the county where published.

PAINT not only adds to the appearance of a house, but it preserves its wood work from rotting. Paint of a superior quality is manufactured one mile northwest of McAllisterville, this county, and will be delivered at railroad stations at $7.00 per barrel—weight of barrel three hundred pounds. The colors are drab and different shades of brown. Address JAMES SHILLINGSFORD & Co., Oakland Mills, Juniata Co., Pa.

The following articles are for sale at the establishment: Broom, Shovel, Fork and Hoe Handles by the dozen or hundred, Boggy and Wagon bows by the bundle.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE STORE.—Mr. Cornelius Bartley intends opening out, in the room now occupied by D. W. Harley & Co., on Thursday, July 3rd, the largest and most complete stock of Boots and Shoes ever brought to Juniata county. Wear your old shoes till then.

THE Fairbanks Scale Company finished the other day, "No. 234,000" of their "Numbered" scales, this being the count of the large weighing-machines turned out in the four and a half decenniums of their business. Of smaller scales, the product has been like the sands of the sea for multitude.

When the new Postal law becomes operative, subscribers who get their papers through the Millin and Patterson P. O., can get their papers at this office or have them left at any place within the limits of the towns.
