La Mountaine's Terrible Death.

The following details of the death of the aeronaut La Mountaine, at Ionia, Michigan, are printed in the Chicago Times of Monday:

A heavy squall of wind delayed the ascention for three hours, but at the end of that time the air became perfectly calm. Under the direction of the professor the balloon was got into position, and its inflation with hot air commenced. The canvas was soon filled and loomed up nearly seventy five feet high. The basket was a willow one, of a size sufficient to hold one person comfortably. It was attached to the balloon by six or eight long ropes which were fastened at thetop to a round piece of wood, some two or three feet in diameter. The ropes were in no manner fastened together between the top and the basket. As each piece was one hundred feet long, it seemed even to the inexperienced eye that there should have been some webbing or network, at least over the bag or bulge of the canvas. It was also noticed that the ropes were unevenly distributed, three or four being in a comparative cluster, leaving the other strands far apart. Everything being in readiness, the words, "Let her go," were given, and the air-ship darted up with great rapidity while the daring aeronaut waved his hat to the uneasy, uncertain multitude who almost breathlessly and in silence watched his flight. Immediately upon leaving the ground the mouth of the canvas began to flap around with great violence. When fully a half mile from the earth, and when the whole structure looked no larger than a hogshead, the balloon slipped between the ropes and was instantly inverted. The car and its occupant dropped like a shot, and when the ropes were pulled taut the round piece of wood before alluded to was torn from the canvas. With the most terrific velosity the unfortunate man descended, clinging to the basket. That he was conscious was evident from his struggles. With all the intensity of a life with put one chance, he strove to raise the basket above him hoping to use it as a parachute. He succeeded in his object, but when about one hundred feet high he loosed his hold folded his hands and arms before his face His feet struck the ground with a heavy thud. Then ensued a panic and uproar in the crowded multitude, which is indescribable. Women fainted, strong men wept and to add to the confusion, the canvas came down on the crowd. In the rush that ensued many were injured. La Mountaine was crushed to a literal pulp. Not a sign of motion or life was visible when he was reached. A medical examination disclosed the fact that every bone in his body was broken and splintered. The corpse was laid out as well as possible and sent to his home at Brooklin, Mich., on the following day.

The Vienna correspondent of a London paper writes thus, of the fashionable drives of the Austrian capital.

I could not have believd when I came here two months ago that the Prater could have assumed such a beautifull appearance as it does now. The Haupt Allee for a straight line of three miles is an avenue of the richest green trees, while on each side are areas of grass, trim and dapper for the first mile, and gradually merging into the wood land. It really is a great sight about 5 to 7 o' clock, for all the fashionable and unfashionable world are congregated and showing themselves off to the best advantage. Here comes an open Court carriage, with servants in cocked hats and knee breeches, a great many hats are taken off and the inmates, one of whom is sure to be some member of the Royal family in Austrian uniform, are kept in a perpetual state of bow, like those tombola toys which could never keep still. What the pleasure of a drive under the circumstances can be I cannot imagine, for whenever I have met the Emperor or one of the Archdukes he carries his hand perpetually on his hat as the shortest way of acknowledging the salutations. The drive however is by no means exclusive, for following the court carriage is a family party from the country in a fiacre, determined to do the proper thing and have a carriage in style all to themselves. The driver is smoking and asserting his independence by resting one foot upon the splash board. Then comes a smart tandam, the swell who has the reigns in his hands being in wholesome terror of his leader, who looks inclined to dart in among the trees and scatter the predestrians. An old dowager now lumbers by, fat horses, heavy chariot, over fed coachman, and a pretty girl on the opposite seat who uses her eyes pretty freely when grandmamma is not looking. In the next carriage is an other young lady, all by herself, dressed up to the height of fashion, and with a large expenditure of paint over the eyes and cheeks. She frequents the gambling saloons, and usually is full of money.

Mrs. Partington will not allow Ike to play the guitar. She says he had it once when he was a child, and it nearly killed him

An Ostrich Farm.

Ostrich farming is almost a new feature among the industries of South Africa, and is yet in its infancy. There are many different modes of procedure adopted; all, of course, with the same object, that of keeping up the numbers of this valuable bird, which has been hunted so persistently for the sake of its feathers, that there are now no wild birds south of the Vaal river. Graham's Town (which is amost agreeable place and delightfuly situated in the eastern province) has in its neighborhood several ostrich farmers, some of whom are very successful. It is found necessary to confine the birds in inclosures large enough for them to obtain their own food (consisting of grass and various kinds of herbage), just as if they were in a state of nature. If they are kept in smaller paddocks they must be supplied with food by artificial means. A stone wall, three or four feet thick, will generally keep them in. Some farmers have adopted an incubator, and by its means they have raised a considerable number of young birds, which at the end of a month are worth £10 each. Others allow the birds to hatch their own eggs. The feathers, which are plunged in a narrow pen, into which the birds are enticed one by one, vary in quality and price, according to the age of the birds and the portion of the body from which they are plucked, some of the best being worth £45 per pound.

The farming of the ostrich, if well and carefully conducted upon a suitable farm, with the necessary enclosures and plenty of food, is found to be very profitable; and it is now becoming quite a common thing among the sheep farmers to keep ostriches as well as sheep; but the birds are easily injured—a slight blow from a stone or stick will break their legs, in which case the bird inevitably dies. The cock birds, whose plumage is black and white, are often exceedingly fierce, especially at or after pairing season, when it is dangerous for a man on foot to approach them, as they will at once give chase. When they overtake the fugitive they knock him down with their foot, as a man would with his fist, and strike and trample their victim on the ground, often inflicting very serious injuries.

The Game Law.—Notwithstanding the new game law has been published, and frequently referred to, parties either forget its provisions, or have not seen them. If those who desire to be posted on this matter will clip the following and paste it in their hats they will hereafter be posted:

Deer—May be killed from the first day of September to the first day of January.

Squirrel—May be killed from the first day of July to the first day of January.

Hare or Rabbit—From first day of October to first day of January.

Wild Duck or Goose—May not be killed in any other way than with an ordinary gun.

Grass Plover—From first day of August to first day of January.

Snipe—First day of September to first day of April.

Woodcock—First day of August to first day of January.

Quail or Patridge—First day of November to first day of January.

Pheasant—First day of September to first day of January.

Reed Bird—First day of September to first day of December.

Insectiverous birds may not be killed at any time except for scientific investigation, or having the same stuffed and set up as a specimen.

Trout—May be caught during the months of April, May, June and July.

Black Bass, Pike or Pickerel may be caught with hook and line only, all months of the year except March, April and May.

How He Spelled It.—A laughable circumstance occurred in one of our courts of justice, upon the trial of a case in which a Mr. Wood was summoned as a witness.

"What is your name?" asked the clerk.

"Ottiwell Wood," was the answer.

"How do you spell your name, Mr. Wood?" asked the somewhat puzzled judge.

Mr. Wood replied,

"O double—T,
I double—U,
E double—L,
Double U—double—O—D."

The astonished judge said it was the most extraordinary name he had ever met with, and after two or three attempts to record it, both he and the clerks gave it up, amid roars of laughter.

A Frenchman made a pair of pantaloons for a Dr. Lamb, but forgetting the name of his customer, went into the market, and taking hold of a leg of mutton, inquired of the butcher

"Vat you call dis?"

"That is mutton."

"Ha, mutton, is it? Vell, vat you call mutton's baby?"

"Lamb."

"Oui," said the Frenchman, "dat is him. Monsieur Lamb is de vera man vot for I make de pantaloons"

THE GREAT DISCOVERY.

Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron.

For the cure of weak stomach, general debility, indigestion, disease of the nervous system, constipation, acidity of the stomach, and all cases requiring a tonic.

The wine includes the most agreeable and efficient Salt of Iron we possess; Citrate of Magnetic Oxide, combined with the most energetic of vegetable tonics—Yellow Peruvian Bark.

The effect in many cases of debility, loss of appetite, and general prostration, of an efficient salt of Iron, combined with our valuable Nerve, is most happy. It augments the appetite, raises the pulse, takes off muscular flabbiness, removes the pallor of debility, and gives a florid vigor to the countenance.

Do you want something to strengthen you?
Do you want a good appetite?
Do you want to build up your constitution?
Do you want to feel well?
Do you want to get rid of nervousness?
Do you want energy?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want brisk and vigerous feelings?
If you do, try Kunkel's Wine of Iron.

This truly valuable Tonic has been so thoroughly tested by all classes of the community that it is now deemed indispensable as a Tonic medicine. It costs but little, purifies the blood and gives tone to the stomach, renovates the system and prolongs life.

I now only ask a trial of this valuable Tonic.

Price $1 per bottle. E. F. Kunkel, Sole proprietor, 259 North Ninth street, below Vine, Philadelphia.

Ask for Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron, and take no other. If your Druggist has it not send $1 to my address, and the medicine, with advice free, will come by next express train.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid, on receipt of six cents, or two post stamps.

Also, Dr Culverwell's "Marriage Guide," price 25 cents.
