THE STATE NOMINATIONS

So far as can be learned, the nomina tions made by the Republican Stat Convention, which met at Harrisbur on Wednesday, are well received, ex Pa cept by the Democracy. The following Mifflintown, 41 from the Harrisburg State Journal fairly | Walker, sets forth the prevailing sentiment of Fayette, the Republican press on the ticket :

The canvass for the position was open, free and untrammelled. Mr. Mackey and his friends started out recognizing and respecting the claims of the popular decision of the organization, and declared the following candidates let who might be nominated. It was duly nominated, viz not only a manly but a sagacious line of policy to pursue, and the result has established its wisdom. The people recognize its fairness while Mr. Mackey has reaped its benefits. His nomination, and the manner in which it was done, is indeed a high honor; an honor which will be worthly worn in the future by a continued faithful serformance of duty such as has made his administration as the financial officer of the State a benefit to the people and a credit to the Commonwealth. We have nothing to fear in the canvass before us, Platform, adopted by the Republican official record is open to the people. The oil regions now furnish some of the most important suits argued in the Supreme Court involving land titles and rights to other property which require a personal knowledge of the Judges who are to hear such appeals. Judge Gordon's nomination will fill this demand, which added to the fact that he already has experience on the Bench, and is a lawyer of fine culture, will make him an acceptable candidate to the people of his region as well as to those of the entire State. *

Such are our candidates. They are men of whom we are proud, and with them as standard bearers we have no fear of the result of the contest before us. All that we want is every Republican to do his duty, to be true to his principles, and the result will be all that they can desire.

The Republicans of Mifflin county have nominated A. F. Gibbony for State Senate, and J. Beatty for Assembly.
