VARIETY. I have Loved, but the Dream is now over I have loved, but the dream is now over, Thy charms can no longer beguile: At length I have learned to disc How treason may lurk in a smile.

No flame ever burned that was purer

Than the love that I cherished for thee, No hope ever yet promised surer— Than the hope thou hast blighted for me. Methinks that thy lips are still speaking The words that so falsely were dear; My heart is in memory seeking

The venom that poisoned its cheer. Each glance towards the past is an arrow That points to the innermost soul, And thoughts of the future but harrow The feelings I cannot control. Yet thee!-Oh, I never can hate thee Though hope thou hast plunged into night;
May the prize thou art seeking await thee,
And thy destiny ever be bright; But mine not a solace can borrow, As life's varied evils I brave, ecause it is nearer the grave. EUROPEAN OPPRESSION.—The Rev. Dr. Kurtz, Editor of a Lutheran paper-in New York, we believe-in a late letter from Europe, makes the following remarks: ous non-intrusionist, and an active canvasser completed, and there will be funds enough seeking by the vile Erastians, she said-"Do you shave yourself?"
