PITTSBURGH:
WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 17, 1847.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.

FOR GOVERNOR,

FRANCIS R. SHUNK,

OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER,

MORRIS LONGSTRETH,

OF MONTGOMERY COUNTY.

New Hampshire Firm as her Granite Hills!

GLORIOUS VICTORY!!

It is now reduced to a certainty that the Democracy of New Hampshire have achieved a glorious victory over the Federal and Abolition allies. This victory is the more triumphant because every fraction was combined to defeat the democratic candidates. The federalists made more than their usual efforts to succeed. John P. Hale, a renegade democrat, who has gone over to the federal Mexican party, done all in his power to secure the election of the piebald ticket. It is stated by a correspondent of the Boston Post, that the Mexican federalists imported persons from Massachusetts and other States expressly for the purpose of voting the federal ticket to defeat the democratic candidates. Money, the great lever by which the federalists move everything, was also freely used. But, thanks to the intelligence of the people, all these efforts proved of no avail. New Hampshire repudiates federalism, and again resumes her ancient Democratic position, unterrified, unshaken! The administration of President POLK has been nobly vindicated—and the war with Mexico has been signally sustained.

We have not yet received the full returns of the New Hampshire election, but enough to satisfy us that WILLIAMS, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is elected by a majority of over 2000, over Colby, the candidate of the allies. The New York Express, good authority for the federalists, contains the following returns:

"In all the towns which we publish to-day, we make the Democratic net gain 1311. This elects Williams, if the rest of the State comes in as it did last year, the majority against him then being only 1172.

In the House of Representatives last year, the allies had about 30 majority. This has probably been overcome by Democratic gains.

The Democrats will probably also resume their ascendency in the Senate.

As to Congressmen, Gen. Peaslee, Democrat, is elected by a splendid majority in the 2d district. In the 4th, J. H. Johnson, Democrat, is doubtless re-elected. From the 1st and 3d we have not returns sufficient to indicate the result. Portsmouth in No 1, gave Jenness, Democrat, 591; J. Woodbury, do, 60; Goodwin, Whig, 933; Tuck, Ab, 37.

The House of Representatives is no doubt Loco Foco, as the Loco Foco gain is already 18 members, and the majority against them last year was but 30, and is now overcome by the changes.—The returns are all in confusion, and extend over a space that makes it impossible to condense them readily into a compact shape; but the footing, from present appearances will show the State fast in the hands of its old rulers."

The New York Sun estimates the Democratic majority at over 2000.

The New York Tribune about the same, and concedes two Democratic members of Congress certain. The other two will be all right, we have no doubt.

An extra from the New Hampshire Patriot office has returns from 120 towns, showing a Democratic net gain on the governor vote of 1374.—The same towns have elected 84 Democrats, and 33 Whigs and Independents to the Legislature—a net Democratic gain of 25 members. Seven Democratic and two Whig Senators, and three Democratic Councillors, are elected.

The delegation in the last Congress from Hampshire, consisted of three Democrats (chosen by general ticket) and there was one vacancy.

LATER.

The Boston Post of Friday contains the following additional returns:

Representatives.—In 164 towns, according to our count, there are elected

Democrats	117
All others	107

And in these towns there is a democratic net gain of 21. It is probable the democrats will have an effective majority in the House.

Portsmouth.—Among the most cheering news from New Hampshire is that of the redemption of Portsmouth by the democrats. By a letter from a friend, we learn that Jefferson, M'Intire and John Pike were chosen representatives on the second ballot on Wednesday, and Andrew B. Vennard and B. F. M'Intire on the third ballot These are all democrats. Adding A. R. Hatch, dem., and Andrew Hussey, whig, chosen on the first ballot on Tuesday, and Jeremiah D. Goodrich, dem. chosen on the second ballot, the delegation consists of 6 democrats, 1 whig—last year 6 whigs! A NET GAIN OF TEN. Certainly the democrats of Portsmouth have "done their whole duty in the most faithful manner."

Col. Wilson M'Candless.

NEWS was received by Telegraph yesterday that GOV. SHUNK had nominated Col. WILSON M'CANDLESS for Judge of the 10th Judicial District of this State, and that his nomination was rejected by the Senate. We are authorised by Col. M'CANDLESS to say that his name was used without his knowledge or consent. He was not a candidate for that or any other office in the gift of the Executive and Senate; and if his nomination had been confirmed, he would have declined the honor of the office at once. Governor SHUNK no doubt presented the name of Col. M'Candless to the Senate with the best motives, and intended it as a compliment to an old friend and neighbor.

How must the Traitors feel.

Those political madmen who have taken sides against their own country and in favor of the Mexicans, and refused to vote a dollar to clothe or feed our patriotic soldiers in the field, (says the Ohio Statesman,) must, if they have soul ins their bodies, feel rather mean about these days. They had better be dogs and bay the moon, than stand thus disgraced in the eyes of humanity and the world. Let them read the letter of our correspondent, and if that be not enough, read the following from the Cincinnati Commercial, and then hide from the public gaze:

"THE FATE OF JOHN RITCHIE.

"We have referred to the fate of this son of Ohio, sacrificed for his country, once or twice before, but in a manner implying doubt. We have now before us a letter written to Mr. ALEX. H. LEWIS, dated Point Isabel, Feb. 4, 1847, describing the barbarous death poor Ritchie suffered. This letter states that he stopped at the Mexican town, Linares, having in his possession valuable despatches, and that he was invited into a house by an American, or Englishman, and while seated at a table, was stabbed in the back and other parts of his body several times; a rope was then thrown around his neck, and the other end given to a Mexican on horseback, who dragged him through town till life was extinct—till his body was nothing but a mass of mangled flesh and bones. He was then thrown into a ditch. Other accounts stated that his heart was torn out and pierced upon a pole in the public square! As before stated, the mother of this unfortunate man lives in our city. He was an officer in the 4th Infantry."

Important if True.

The New York Courrier des Etats Unis says it has received, by way of Havana, private advices relative to the internal affairs of Mexico, which contain several important revelations with regard to the reaction now going on secretly in the capital. It seems, [says the Courrier] that the Clergy, whose property has been menaced by the war party, is disposed to make its own cause that of the republic, and permit the project of peace to triumph. Its plan is to replace the Federal Congress, from whose action it has nothing to hope for, by an absolute power strong enough to force Mexico to agree to a peace. Such, [continues the Courrier] is the double road leading to this end, and it is Santa Anna upon whom they are also reported to have cast their eyes. That General would then be sure of arriving once more at the dictatorship, supported by the Clergy, and on the express condition of respecting its property and promptly concluding a treaty of peace. There is nothing in this combination, [the Courrier adds] which is at all improbable, due regard being had to the actual condition of Mexico; and, besides, the person who communicates this intelligence is in a position which gives to it weight.

Capital of Michigan.

The Legislature of Michigan has passed an act, locating the capital of that State hereafter in the township of Lansing, in the county of Ingram.—The Governor has not yet approved of the law. The Detroit Free Press says: "Of the point where the location is to be made, we know little or nothing. During the discussion in the Legislature, Lansing township was held up as the most beautiful spot on earth, and the most appropriate for the capital of a great state. On the other hand, it was represented as being timbered land—covered with water, and one of the worst places in the state upon which to locate the capital. With such descrepancies, it is impossible to give an opinion on the propriety of the location. But few of those who voted on the question ever were in the town ship, and hence had to rely upon the information given by others, of the fitness of the location."

☞ There was great rioting at the elections in Montreal on the 1st inst. Troops were called out and voters arrested. We republicans south of the Lakes cannot be twitted with anything quite so boisterous as this.

☞ We understand from Washington that a bid on foreign account has been made for the whole 18 millions loan at ¼ per cent. premium, and that Mr. WALKER declined giving an answer until the bids were opened in April.

Correspondence of the Morning Post.

LETTER LII.

HARRISBURGH, March 13, 1847.

In the Senate, Mr. Gibbons vacated the chair, for the purpose of having a temporary speaker elected. After several ballotings, Mr. Williamson received a majority of the whole number of votes and was inducted into the chair as Speaker of the Senate.

The Senate resolved itself into executive session. The nomination of J. Murray Burrell, as President Judge of the 10th Judicial district, came up for discussion. Mr. Hill concluded his speech in his favor. Mr. Gibbons replied, in a speech full of invective against the Governor. He did not pretend to deny the capability of Mr. Burrell, but he said that he would vote for no man other than Mr. White, because he was desired by a great number of the citizens of the district. Mr Hill replied in a neat and appropriate speech in favor of the nominee. Several letters were also produced in favor of Mr. Burrell from some of the most influential men of both parties; but all would not do; the edict had gone forth, and Mr. Burrell was rejected by a vote of 11 in his favor to 16 against.

J. Dringle Jones' case was more fortunate. His nomination was concurred in by the Senate, yeas 16, nays 8. A strong effort was made to reject him on account of his inexperience, when he has been a practising lawyer for ten or twelve years. Mr. Gibbons as usual spoke violently against it; he is dead against all executive appointments, and is inconsistent oftentimes when he thinks his actions consistent.

The bill for the sale of the public works came up this morning in the House. The democrats put it off by manœuvring until the hour of adjournment. It was brought up again in the afternoon. The democrats manœuvered so successfully that the first section was only passed when the hour of adjournment arrived. The whigs were completely outgeneraled. They had set their hearts upon this favorite measure, and to get it passed to-day every other bill in its way was postponed or laid over. And to prevent all discussion it was kept back until a day or so before the adjournment, and then called the previous question, acting the tyrant over the minority. But it was successfully met, and by the superior tactics of the democrats it was as good as killed, unless the whigs extend the time of adjournment, but this will hardly be done.

KARL.

First Regiment Alabama Volunteers.

CAMP NEAR TAMPICO,
MEXICO, February 16th, 1847.

* * * * This is the most pleasant part of Mexico I have seen yet, it is hilly, and there is good water here, although it is brought about ten miles in canoes, by the Mexicans. There is plenty of fruit of all kinds, and very cheap, although it has raised since the troops came. There are about 7,000 troops and five Generals here now, Generals Patterson, Twiggs, Quitman, Pillow and Shields. Quitman is the General of our brigade. General Scott is expected here every day, and as soon as he arrives this division of the army will leave for Vera Cruz. Our regiment will be the advanced guard of infantry, then if there is another fight we will have a share in it. We have the best regiment out here, the largest of the old twelve months regiments, and the best drilled volunteer regiment in the field, no exception.

The Pennsylvania volunteers have stopped at an island some distance below this, about eleven miles from Turpan. There are about 3,500 troops on that island. The Louisiana troops that were wrecked have arrived safe, they are all well and in good spirits. * * * * This is my cook-day and I have not much time to write. There are five in our mess, and we live very happy. We had been living on bacon and hard bread until we came here, but now we live well. There is a theatre here, kept by Hart & Wells. Mrs. Hart and Miss Christian are performing; they have crowded houses every night. I have no news of the war but what you have heard yourself. We were sent over the river to take possession of Seublo Vegho, or Old Tampico, which contains 6,000 inhabitants and there were only 250 of us, and we expected to have to fight for it, but we took it without firing a gun. It is a very pretty place, it has a fountain in it that supplies the whole town with water, and is surrounded with farms that supply the place with fruit, &c. I hope when I write again to have something of interest to relate.

Yours, &c., C. M. B.
First Reg't. Ala. Infantry.

CARPET WEAVERS.—The whigs predicted that the new tariff would break down the Carpet manufacturers. The Hartford Times says that the Tariffville manufacturers have so much work on hand, that they have finally raised the wages of the workmen!

LOCAL MATTERS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PITTSBURGH, March 13th, 1847.

George R. Gliddon, Esq.:

DEAR SIR:—Having been greatly gratified and instructed by the learning, research and general information unfolded in your several lectures on Egyptian Archeology, &c., we indulge the hope that it may comport with your engagements to pursue this very interesting subject, and especially that you would favor a Pittsburgh audience with the discoveries and acquisitions of the Campolleon School as to the extent of Egyptian knowledge of the Immortality of the Soul, and a future state of Rewards and Punishments. Your early answer will oblige your friends,

James S. Craft,	W. H. Lowrie,
James Dunlop,	Neville B. Craig,
C. B. M. Smith,	Thomas Bakewell,
Harmar Denny,	Thomas M. Howe,
R. H. Palmer,	Charles Shaler,
Samuel Gormly,	George Unfold.

ST. CHARLES HOTEL, 13th March, 1847.

Gentlemen:—I am extremely indebted to your complaisance for the very obliging letter with which you have just honored me, and I lose no time in assuring you of my readiness to comply with its behests. I propose under your favor to extend my Lectures to a course of three more, on the Origin of the ART OF MUMMIFICATION—human and animal—the Rationale of Animal Worship, and the funeral Dogmas of the Egyptians—as derived from the Papyrus—"Book of the Dead!" The doctrines of "the Immortality of the Soul," and a "Future State," are comprehended in this classification, and will arise without effort from the order in which the vast theme of Mummification will be laid before you.

In the hope of acquitting myself to your satisfaction—allow me to thank you for your courtesies, and to remain, with great respect, your most obliged and obedient servant,

GEORGE R. GLIDDON.

To Messrs. Jas. S. Craft. W. H. Lowrie, and others.

IRISH RELIEF MEETING.

The meeting last evening in Dr. Herron's Church was rather slim, considering the importance of the occasion. Judge Grier was called to the Chair. A motion was made by the Rev. ——to adjourn till Tuesday evening next. It was seconded by Judge Shaler, who made some remarks in regard to the want of interest exhibited by our citizens gefferally, and adopted citizens particularly, in the smallness of the gathering. Judge Patton moved, as an amendment, that the Committee have power to call the next meeting at whatever time and place they may deem suitable, which was carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

We were sorry to see such a meagre turn out by our citizens. The church should have been crowded. There were a number of ladies present, and a few more gentlemen, but the seats looked empty. We shall expect to see a larger crowd at the next meeting; the Irish people of this city should see that the church be filled, for they more than any other are interested.

DISTRICT COURT—MARCH 16, 1847.

Before Judge LOWRIE.

Fahnestock vs. City of Pittsburgh—Kuhns for Plaintiff; C. O. Loomis for Defendants. Verdict for Defendants.

Hiram Lutes vs. Samuel Jaswell—Slander. Hasbreak for Plaintiff; Hampton for Defendant. Jury discharged. Plaintiff non suit.

Williams & Dilworth vs. Edward Hughes—Buchanan for Plaintiffs; Woods for Defendant. Verdict for Plaintiffs, $509.11.

Betts & Wife vs. Wm. W. Dawson—T. Hamilton for Plaintiff; Marshall & Guyer for Defendant. Jury discharged. Plaintiff non suit.

Arthurs vs. Montgomery's Administrators—Judgment for Plaintiff for want of appearance.

Smith vs. Zinamer—Plaintiff called and non suit.

Smith vs. Menteer & Wife—Plaintiff called and non suit.

Anarese M'Clure et al, vs. Hezekiah Douhitt et al—Ejectment. Woods, M'Candless and Biddle for Plaintiffs; Metcalf, Loomis and Forward for Defence.

Theatre.—There was a pretty fair house on Monday evening—much better than we expected, considering the weather and a few other drawbacks. Mr. Foster as the Stranger was very successful. The other parts were well represented.

The house was meagre last evening, on account of the cold. The pieces went off well, Miss Anderson made her first appearance. It was a decided hit. She will be a favorite in this city, we predict.

To night Damon and Pythias will be produced. Mr. Oxley appears. This announcement will be sufficient to guarantee a good audience.

German Theatre.—To persons who understand the German language, this little establishment will afford a pleasant evening's entertainment.—Some fine actors are in the company—one in particular whose name we do not recollect. The lady who appeared in the "Robbers" is not yet "stage hardened," but gives promise of a fine actress.—The Independent Police keep excellent order; there does not appear, however, to be any disposition to make noise, on the part of the audience.

☞ This is St. Patrick's Day. It will not be forgotten by Irishmen—and the sons of Irishmen—nor by the friends of Irishmen. To-night the return of the day will be commemorated in a becoming style, at the usual place—the Washington Hotel. Armstrong always gives satisfaction on such occasions. A supper will be prepared for the company, after which, speeches, songs, toasts and other festivities will be indulged in.

☞ We have been taken to task for publishing that article from the Catholic in relation to Dr. Callaghan. It appears that there is another side to the affair. A counter statement has been promised for the papers. We shall give place to any thing suitable for the publication, but will incur no responsibility in the matter. We are only anxious that the truth may be arrived at.

Destitution.—The Dispatch says a poor colored man (a Baptist preacher) residing in Allegheny city, was found by some humane citizens, in his bed, without fire or food, and in the last stage of consumption—utterly deserted. He was properly provided for by some of the benevolent of our sister city.

☞ We are told that the Mr. Scott noticed yesterday as having been found in Fifth street, laboring under mania potu, belongs to Washington county.

☞ We are told that one of our most talented lawyers has a horse shoe nailed above the door of his office. He thinks there may be some virtue in the superstitions of his great grand parents.

O'DONOVAN'S POEMS.

The author, Mr. JEREMIAH O'DONOVAN, of this city, has laid upon our table a small volume of Original Poems, very well printed, and just issued from the press of A. A. Anderson. Mr. O'Donovan's name was familiar to the readers of the Pittsburgh papers long before this little volume was ushered into "this breathing world." Several of his productions appeared in the columns of the Post, during the administration of our "illustrious predecessors." The subjects of the poems are various. The most interesting part of the volume is "O'Donovan's Courtship," which we have read with no ordinary degree of interest. The author draws a highly poetical description of an "Enchanting Valley," in the S. W. extremity of the Emerald Isle, about 26 miles from the ocean.—Here dwelt a great many kind hearted, philanthropic people, who lived together in the enjoyment of the most perfect happiness. Here also dwelt "Sir Humphrey Lilly," a professional tinker, who had an angelic little daughter, Miss Jane, of "sweet seventeen," with whom our author fell desperately in love. We copy Mr. O'Donovan's description of his "incomparable Jenney":

"I had no opportunity of viewing his daughter until he mentioned her name, who was the reputed Helen of her sex, as having been prohibited by a degree of bashfulness attendant on youth, and to my sorrow that ever I saw her, or that ever she came within the limits of my inspection: She sat in a chair always kept in the dwelling for the use and convenience of such destitute travelers and for the accommodation of the unfortunate strangers; together, with some other household furniture, she sat in an easy posture: she was comely dressed though not extravagantly rich, her raven tresses loosely and negligently falling down her shoulders, the soft glance of her soft blue eyes, her skin as fair as the driven snow, her swan-like neck and beautiful figure, her fine proportion, her slender waist and square shoulders, and her lily hand, identified, at once, she was the pride, boast and masterpiece of nature's art and workmanship. I became at once ravingly crazy and agitated, as it appeared to me she did not belong to the human race, but either, Juno, Pallas, Venus, who contended for the golden apple, or some enchantress from yonder grove who came to prove or entice me, and if my judgment be allowed superior to any of her sex. She also possessed a fine share of literary attainments, and to add to all other qualifications, she excelled every one of her sex in dancing."

The author then gives a glowing account of a dance, in which he and Jane figured extensively,—she being the bright particular star of the evening, the observed of all observers. Things went on swimmingly for a season—our author declared his passion for his "sweet Jenney," proposed to marry her, and his proposition was accepted. But he discovered soon that there was truth in Shakspeare's philosophy that "the course of true love never did run smooth." Sir Humphrey was a cruel hearted old wretch, and forbade the bans. It was then agreed between the pair that they should elope the first favorable opportunity and come to America. We will now let the author give his own account of the stratagem he adopted to become the possessor of his beloved one, after he was driven from her father's mansion. It is a tragical tale, full of thrilling interest:

"It was in the month of August, the night being calm and beautiful; I undertook the Ass, with a design to take him to a lonesome and sequestered place in the mountain, where he would remain impervious to the explorations of Sir Humphrey, his master, for some time, and while engaged in the discovery of the Ass, that Jenny and I could clear from the dominion and jurisdiction of the thunderer, her father. I took Jack through a rough, uneven road leading to the mountain. I was considered then an excellent horseman; I thought without vanity of presumption. I could manage and ride horses, but Alas, Alas, I was not sure, but coming down hill or a steep precipice on Jack's back, he dexterously managed to put his head between his fore feet and throw me off with such violence as nearly killed me on the spot. I became insensible by the fall, and Jack either left after me or followed for revenge's sake. I cannot tell, but after I had recovered a little I felt the Ass with unspeakable fury, kicking, biting and braying over me until I thought the reverberating sound from the mountains would bring all the inhabitants of the valley to the spot. Then by some unaccountable exertions I drew myself into a cave that fortunately happened contiguous, and there I remained beat, battered and bleeding in mind, until morning. Jack standing over me as sentinel for a long time, to see if I would have the temerity to make my appearance again from my subterraneous abode, as it determined to terminate my existence. Jack, after some time, left me and when day appeared I dragged myself along until I reached home, then went to bed; and the most eminent physicians were called to my aid; who had no hopes of my recovery; then I lost my dear Jane forever and was also near losing my life. My little niece investigated and revealed the whole of my misfortune to my incomparable Jane, and I am thinking to others, for the whole inhabitants of the valley were in possession of it in less time than 24 hours, as I commissioned her to tell the whole of my misfortune to Jane. As soon as Sir Humphrey heard of the matter, he cleared himself, not forgetting to take my dear Jenny along, who had been exceedingly sick at the time, which precluded me of ever seeing her after. I remained for nearly 12 months confined to bed, and when I found and felt the restoration of my health, I went through every fair in the nation, and where I considered the fraternity assembled, seeking her, until I understood that the thunderer had taken my jewel to England and got her married to a young limber of incredible strength and agility, named Timothy Drum, and that she died two months after the consummation of her marriage of a melancholy consumption, or some incurable disease that undermined her constitution. That then put an end to my wandering and search."

The author closes this narrative by saying:

"As soon as my recovery had been pronounced and sanctioned by my physicians, I was much disturbed by my poetic friends and their compositions; every morning I would find at the foot of my bed, printed indeed beautifully and legibly, which had been daggerss to my poor and sorrowful heart, the following lines:—

Now tell us dear Jerry, how things came to pass,
That brought the dispute between you and the Ass."

Then follows a long poetical lamentation of Jeremiah O'Donovan, when in search of his angelic Jane," from which we can only make room for a single verse:

"I now forgive my beauteous Jane,
My sweet and comely lass;
But may I never see again,
Her father or his Ass."

If we find leisure, we shall hereafter take occasion to refer to Mr. O'Donovan's work, and copy more from its pages. We are told that the demand for this book of poems is very great, and although the edition printed was large, it is nearly exhausted already. A second edition will soon be issued.

☞ A petty difficulty occurred the other evening at a party. A lady lost a breast pin, which was picked up by a gentleman, who kept it; he was charged with theft, and in order to clear his character of so vile an imputation, proposed to fight. We did not hear the end of the affair.

Cute.—We received a letter by the City Despatch Post yesterday, informing us that there is a difference between Dutch and Germa!

☞ By reference to our law reports it will be seen that Dr. Fahnestock has been defeated in the suit against the city.

☞ No Telegraph news last night.

☞ Yesterday was very cold; cloaks and overcoats were no protection to the persons wrapped within their ample folds. There was a sprinkle of snow during the day. Business was not suspended, though merchants reported "not much doing." What made it worse for the people, the papers were all very dull. These are hard times for local. We almost wish we had license for manufacturing the article; what a fine business we might make of it.

It is said that Prof. Morrill is very severe on the system of tight lacing. We hope he may read a curtain lecture on the subject.

☞ A country constable was in town yesterday on the look out for a man who had stolen a Berkshire pig. He did'nt find him.

☞ We this morning publish an extract from a letter from a volunteer of the First Alabama Regiment."

☞ The Dispatch is going to come out some of these mornings in new type.

☞ There was a little bit of a row in Virgin alley on Monday night. So it is rumored.

☞ Mr. Oxley arrived in this city on Monday.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION, EQUIPMENT AND REPAIRS, March 9, 1847.

SEALED PROPOSALS, endorsed "Proposals for chain cable iron," will be received at this bureau until 3 o'clock, p. m., on the 15th day of April next, for furnishing and delivering at the navy-yard, Washington, all the iron necessary for the links, shackles, swivels, boxes, and pins, to make

Nine cables with links of	1 15-16	of an inch diameter,
Nine do	do	1 13-16	do
Twelve do	do	1 11-16	do
Twelve do	do	1 10-16	do
Twelve do	do	1 8-16	do
Six do	do	1 4-16	do
Six do	do	1 2-16	do
Six do	do	1	do

Each cable to be of one hundred and fifty fathoms. All of the said iron must be entirely of American manufacture, of the best quality, free from admixture of foreign iron. It must be hammered from blooms into rough bars. That for links must then be cut, piled, and rolled to about an inch in thickness; then again cut, piled and rolled to the required sizes, and cut to the required lengths. That portion for the shackles, swivels, boxes, and pins, must all be brought under the hammer to sizes and shapes which will be furnished to the contractor. The whole must be delivered in straight lengths, free from all flaws, ragged ends, or edges, or other defects, subject to such proofs and tests as the bureau may direct, and be in all respects to the entire satisfaction of the commandant of the said navy-yard, or chief of the bureau, or it will not be received, nor will any be subject to test and proof, unless satisfactory evidence is produced to the commandant of the yard that it has been manufactured as herein required.

The quantity for one-third of all the different sized cables must be delivered on or before the fifteenth day of August next; for another third of all said cables, on or before the first day of December next, and the remainder on or before the first day of May, 1848. Separate proposals will be received for the iron required in each of the said times of delivery.

Persons desirous of offering to furnish the said iron or any portion thereof, (should further information be required,) to enable them to make their offers, are referred to the commandant or commanding officer of the navy-yard, Washington, District of Columbia.

To those persons whose offers may be accepted, particular schedules, drawings, and models, descriptive of the several parts and portions of each kind of iron required, will be furnished when contracts are prepared for execution.

Bonds, with two approved sureties, will be required, in one-third the amount of the contracts, and ten per centum in addition, of the amount of all bills will be retained as collateral security for the faithful performance of the contracts, which will only be paid on their satisfactory completion. Ninety per centum of all deliveries will be paid on bills properly authenticated, in triplicates, according to the provisions of the contracts, within thirty days after their presentation to the navy agent. The offers must state at what agency the contractor may desire payment to be made.

In case of failure on the part of the contractor to furnish and deliver the aforesaid iron, of the quality and at the times specified above, the officers or agents at the navy-yard shall be authorized to purchase such qualities as may be necessary to supply the deficiencies; and any excess of cost over the prices agreed to be paid by the contract, shall be charged to and paid by the contractor.

Every offer must be accompanied by a written guaranty, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that he or they undertake that the bidder or bidders will, if his or their bid be accepted, enter into an obligation within five days after receipt of notice, with good and sufficient sureties, to furnish the iron as proposed; and no proposal will be considered unless accompanied by such guaranty.
