A DREAM OF SUMMER. BY JOHN G. WHITTAKER Bland as the morning breath of June The south-west breezes play;
And, through its haze the winter noon The snow-plumed Angel of the north Has drooped his icy spear; Again the mossy earth looks forth, Again the streams gush clear. The for his hill side cell forsakes-The muskrat leaves his nook. The blue-bird in the meadow brakes Is singing with the brook "Bear up, O Mother Nature!" cry Bird, breeze and streamlet free, Our winter voices prophesy Of summer days to thee! So, in those winters of the soul, By bitter blasts and drear O'erswept from memory's frozen pole, Will sunny days appea Reviving Hope and Faith, they show The soul its living powers,
And now beneath the Winter's snow Lie gems of sunny flowers. The night is mother of the day, The winter of the spring, And even upon old decay, The greenest mosses clins Behind the cloud the star-light lurks Through showers the sunbeams fall; For God who loveth all his works, Has left his hope with all !
