Starting Europe—The Tariff. The federalists, finding that their extravagant theories relative to the tariff would certainly fail in the election of 1850, have turned out false, are now endeavoring to cover that the universal prosperity which exists throughout the country, is in consequence of the tariff in Great Britain. The movement, however, at the different Custom Houses, the increased amount of goods received by the various collectors on public works in this and other states, &c., are all attributable to "starting Europe."

General Taylor's Political Views. General Taylor has written more letters for publication, within the last six months, than any man living, but as yet he has entirely failed in giving his political views to the great questions which agitate the public mind—questions, which, since the organization of our government, have constantly divided the two political parties of the country.

Annulment of Texas. The following paragraph, from a long letter from Hon. Samuel Houston to the Editor of the Texas Patriot, in which he denies a position assumed by Ex-President Tyler, in a recent letter, that Texas had been annexed to the United States, is here reprinted for the information of our readers.

General Taylor and the Tariff. The first and second resolutions of the Convention express hostility to a National Bank, and the third in favor of the Constitutional Treasury; the fourth is against a Tariff for protection; the fifth against the distribution of the proceeds of the public lands; the sixth against the policy of internal improvement by the General Government; and the seventh expresses the belief in the right of Texas, as an independent sovereignty, to annex itself to the United States, and a dissent from the act of annexation to protect her territory.

Louisiana Cotton Crop. In the large and fertile cotton country formed by our own and the parishes adjacent to us, says the Concomida Intelligence of that time, the crop took more promising than they have been seen for five years past. The bolls are full and healthy, and every thing seems to give good hope to the planter.
