

The Morning Post.

L. HARPER, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.
PITTSBURGH,
FRIDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 4, 1888.

IN THIS PAPER, THE LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES, TREATIES, RESOLUTIONS OF CONGRESS, AND DECISIONS BY AUTHORITY.

VOICE OF ALLEGHANY COUNTY
FOR PRESIDENT.
JAMES BUCHANAN.
Subject to the decision of the National Convention.

OF E. W. CARR, United States Newspaper Association, No. 15, corner of Third and Dock streets, is our only and authorized agent in Philadelphia.

Condition of the Federal Party.

Our opponents are at present in a most delightful state of disquietude. They are to judge from the tone of their leading press, not only thinking that there is a deep-laid scheme, in all that appears, to impose upon the people. They have always, from the earliest period of their history, the means of effecting a thorough organization; and they can act with much more promptitude than we can. They know, therefore, that they are only preparing the way, under the appearance of disunion, for a concerted movement, entirely different from that which they profess to be aiming at. They are, in their organs, certainly, with the capacity for being moved into some of the most bold and daring stunts, not only to intentionally to precede the transfer of the entire Federal party to their hands, but also to make this step so sudden, that they may not be discovered until it is too late to be retracted. This step, however, would not be a very difficult one to take, should they design to play a deep game;—such as their distinguished leader was once famous in—when they were in an expression of a scornful, bitter satisfaction of a similar character, they contented for a party of many candidates, and with Mr. Taylor for having gone too far in denouncing the "Whig" (only one of the two States)—and would have their candidate as nothing about his opinions; but leave to the people the task of finding them out, or believing of them, as they please. They know that the principles of Federalism are not to be abandoned; they may be arduous to the mass of the people; and they must, therefore, practice some system of deception, if they can hope to succeed. Mr. Clay, we are aware, is fully committed, on all points, and he cannot be expected to change his mind;—that he is so odious in the eyes of the masses,—that he can never be elected; and they know, too, that he is the veritable embodiment of their principles. In all honor, then, and with some hope, we are to be met with, and bound to make a show of supporting him, may their Convention shall be held, that they may the more easily find a way by which to escape a fourth time, under his standard.

Our ideas on this subject have been more fully confirmed, by reading the articles by the editor of the New York Tribune, for some time past, than from any thing coming from any other quarter. From one of these we were able to extract given by Mr. Gates is one of the most eloquent and eloquent of the men and measures of the Democratic party, to be found in the United States; and there is nothing belonging to Whiggery, which he does not assail at every opportunity, and in placing a very implicit faith in the calculations of Whiggery. The party party may comprise the natural antipathy of the United States,—the intellectual and political aristocracy; but it is a minority, and enjoys little sympathy from the sovereign people.

Mr. ESTON.—I am truly gratified to receive from Mr. HARPER, your letter of the 20th inst., and in reply to inform you that I have received your letter of the 20th inst., and in reply to inform you that I have received your letter of the 20th inst.

Who is there whom the whigs universally regard with equal confidence and admiration as their chief? Who is there whom they esteem the most illustrious of the age? Who is there whom they esteem the most illustrious of the age? Who is there whom they esteem the most illustrious of the age?

True Whig Sentiments.

We like to lay before our readers, occasionally, some specimens of genuine "Whig" doctrine. It is a matter of course that the Whig doctrine is a doctrine of compromise, and that it is a doctrine of compromise, and that it is a doctrine of compromise.

Mr. ESTON.—I am truly gratified to receive from Mr. HARPER, your letter of the 20th inst., and in reply to inform you that I have received your letter of the 20th inst.

Ohio Democratic Ticket. The information of our readers, we publish below the Electoral Ticket selected by our Democratic friends in Ohio, at their recent State Convention. They all are good men and true.

Democratic Ticket. A list of names including John Spangler, James Harrison, and others.

It is not often the case, that we find any thing emanating from the British press, in relation to the political affairs of our country, which has upon it, and marks of respect, and marks of respect, and marks of respect.
