L. HARPER, Esq .- Dear Sir : At your request to L. Happer, Esq.—Dear Sir: At your request to give my opinion as to the manner in which R. M. Riddle pays his compositors, I will state, as far as I am concerned, that during the time I worked at the Journal, I always found the greatest difficulty in getting money. When I stopped working for him, my bill was $37, which, after being dunned for some time; that the public prefer to have other matters than private disputes crowding the columns of a speech made by Thomas Corwin, in a manner which I deemed entirely fair and justifiable, this Riddle came A. Robinson after the statement of facts here presented, if he is willing to go before a magistrate, and make oath to his certificate, that Riddle is " a man of truth and honor." A friend of ours, who is a distinguished Whig, and who is well acquainted with the charac ter of Robert M. Riddle, remarked to us yesterday after reading the Robinson certificate, that he would rather cut off his right hand, than append his name to such a document. Marriage at a Temperance Meeting. The St. Louis Republican endorses the following uteresting sketch as a true story : In the evening of the day on which Alice arrived at S., a great Temperance meeting was held in one of the churches. Her friend who had become enthusiastic in the cause, urged her to go to the meeting, which Alice did, though with reluctance. The preliminaries usually apportaining to meetings taving been arranged, a brief opening address was made by one of the ministers. A reformed man then made by one of the ministers. A reformed man then elated his experience with great effect. After he had finished there was a pause of nearly a minute. At length a man who had been scated far back, with his face turned from the audience, arose sluwly, and moved to the front of the stage.

A half suppressed exclamation escaped Alice, as her nuissed. He then admitted that he had kirp in this particular; but severted that I had been caned, and having yesterday noticed the extraordinary certificates in the same of a gentleman who knew the circumstances as they actually existed. LOCAL MATTERS.

THE Poon .-- For the benefit of the City Guardians, we will quote a little law, adopted for the regulation of their conduct. We quote from the act of June 30, 1836, sec. 5: " It shall be the duty of the overseers of every district, to furnish for the relief of every poor person within the district, not having a settlement thereon, who shall apply to them for relief, until such person can be removed to the place of his settlement."

Here we have the duty of the Guardians clearly defined, and they did not comply with the law in the action in relation to the miscrable persons to whom we referred yesterday. We cannot well understand how the gentlemen who compose the board can exhow the gentlemen who compose the board can explain away the sceming iniquity of their conduct. We can find no other incentive than parsimony; or a desire to present to the public a neat balance sheet. The comfort of the unfortunate must be
