convolsed on the day of the election and for some days previous. The omnibuses have already been engaged to carry voters. "Committees on Pipe Laying" will be appointed: and there is need for them, for we understand there are many excellent public and private boarding houses, (with extensive laund ry's attached to them,) which have a few beds unused. The transitions of voters from other wards will be an easy matter-as easy as falling off a log. The hosts are already being marshalled under their he appropriate names, viz : "Hunkers" and "Progress-

A Ground for Opposition,

It has been wondered at by some, why the Federal party should have become so much embittered at Gen. Cass since his nomination: but a single moment of reflection must satisfy any one as to the true reason. There are few men now living, who have been so long in the service of the country; and who have maintained such perfect consistency upon all the leading topics, from 1800 down to this time. He was an ordent supporter of Mr. Jefferson's political doctrines, in opposition to the doctrines of the Federalists. He was in favor of the war of 1812, while they opposed it.
