The Nominations.
The interest of Saurday.
The interest anxiety which has pervaded our community for the last few days, and to agreater or less munity for the last few days, and to a greater or loss extent the entire Union, is at length set at rest. The Whig contest, has nominated, by a majority of sixty fixe votes, General Zachaky Taylos, of Louisians, as the Whig candulate for the Presidency.

The vote stood, on the fourth ballot—Taylor, 171; than all others.

over the whole, 62. When we say we regret the result, we shadow forth the fuelings of nine tenths of the Whig voters of this county; but we defer any extended remarks, we learn on what grounds General Taylor's friend sented his name to the Convention, and receiv the platform it may have laid down, upon which we are called to rally, we shall have more to say.

po for the best. For General Taylor, personally, we entertain none which be would ask the People to sustain him and be an honest and well meaning man, and for any thing work know to the contrary, a good Southern thing work know to the contrary, a good Southern Whire. Our regret springs not from the nomination of the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man, but from his position; and we propose the man man and the man man and the man and the man man and the man for Yice President—a good Whig, and true—an upright citizen, and an honest man. It will give every Whig in the country pleasure to vote for him.

that protest will not miterially affect the credit of of their countrymen. the party is a matter yet to be demonstrated. We are of the opinion that it will. We believe there are enough men in the opposition, who are truly honest in supporting measures which they deem vi bave prompted me to pen a few lines for your paper, on the impropriety of connecting his name with the Democratic nomination for Congress. As his fame is

These men were devoted to Henry Ciay, because he was accorded to those principles; and they house that he has been deceived, defrauded impossion in the proceedings and they holieve that his power over the minds of his country more was in the zenith.
