Return of the Volunteers. Dr. ALEX. BLACK has received a letter from his that the first Pennsylvania Regiment will arrive in Pittsburgh the latter part of next week, probably about Friday, the 14th inst. This being the case, we trust that the different committees appointed to make arrangements for their reception, will the duties of their appointment. No time should all united on a single object, would accomplish no be lost. Let Pittsburgh, if possible, excel every good—for the simple reason, that minds which are Government, in one of the strong-bolds of Judical thus actuated, are essentially and unqualified by solf-iniquity, Mr. Holms, the counsel of John Mitchell, thusiastic welcome to our patriotic volunteers, ish; and no good can result from unalloyed selfish-We can do it, if we try.

We know that many States will enter the contest for the bonor of giving the which the North would not meddle; and so far as their largest Democratic majority; but without a doubt Pennsylvania will win the prize! The enthusiasm which prevails, from the Delaware to the Ohio, has no parallel since the days of the patriotic Jackson. The Democracy are aroused on every hill and in every vale; and they must achieve a glorious triumph over the combined forces of Mexican Whiggery and Federal Nativism! Backed Out!

Weregret to learn that the gift of land to the Western Pennsylvania Hospital, made by Col. Crochan. on behalf of his daughter, and which we heralded some months since, is not likely to be realized. Captain Shenley has backed out, by coupling to the donation such a restriction as he knew the Board of Managers would decline, or stultify themselves in accepting; wdich was, to exclude unfortunate lunatics from the benefits of the institution. Thank God I there is charity and philanthropy enough in this community to found and support the Hospital, without the aid of this English fortune-hunter or any of his advisers. We are unapprised of the course of the Managers in the matter. "All for Cass."

The Editor of the Wheeling Argus, who recently returned home from a trip to the East, states, that the enthusiasm which prevailed in every part of the country through which he passed, for the Democratic nominees, is unparalleled. He says: -But, as our company on the canal boat, consisted of some filty gentlemen, and a good sprink-ling of ladies, was made up of all sorts of politicians, we mutually agreed to find out, if possible enger we met: and if we failed in doing so. i for men here, and such like expressions, plainly showing a decided preference for the nominees of

Mr. Calhoun and the South It is seldom that the name of this gentle found at the head of an article in the Post; and eldom that we allude to the political actions of our outhorn brethren, with reference to the great movenents of the country. We have several reasons for lluding to them but seldom, one of which is, that ve think the portion of our southern population who have always proved most ungenerous and petulant, (unless they could get everything they wished for, and at the precise time and in the precise manner they wished for it,) have been made rather more inmanageable than they would have been, under a different course of treatment. If, when it was found that they were asking for more than they had a right to ask, they had at once been taught to know that their whims were not to be gratified, we should have had less difficulty in settling those "vexed questions," that have so often presented themselves. But the policy which has been too generally pursued heretofore by the South, must give way to one which is more in accordance with the spirit which led to the adoption of our Constitution, -- the spirit of concession and compromise. In order to carry out the wise provisions of that instrument, these should be manifestedby each section, in favor of the others; and no measure should be insisted on, calculated to affect the harmony of the whole, or of either portion of the Union.

Henry Lambert, Esq., Joseph Knox, Esq., and
But another and a very momentous reason why we George F. Gilmore, Esq. have referred to southern movements less frequently than we should otherwise have done, may be found in the fact, that we have been actuated by considerations of the purest benevolence, in thus abstaining from speaking of them in a reproveing manner; and we could not find good reasons for speaking otherwise. We have seen, for months past, such a cantinued stream of bitter invective. biting sarcasm withering rebuke, and profound political investigation, poured out upon John C. Calhoun, and the South, and the Charleston Mercury in particular, any thing about them. We have feared, almost ev. ots present. ery day, that Mr. Calhoun would be driven to commit suicide; that the south would voluntarily recede from all her impracticable abstructions; and that the Charleston Mercury would suddenly cease to exist for want of support; and still, as we have been anticipating the announcement of these important events -so pregnant with consequences to the Union,-we have heard, again and again, those thunders of de. unciation, which, at each renewal, would excite in s new anticipations. But, inasmuch as Mr. Calhoun still lives, and a

Among other things, it is said h. ranted to know what the North meant to do with the South-where they meant to place Southern institutions.
