It will be seen by the following telegraphic despatch, received from Harrisburgh last evening, that the State Central Committee have fixed upon Pittsurgh as the place for the next Democratic State Convention to assemble, and have decided upon the ever glorious Fourth of July, as the time of meeting. This intelligence will be received with un-bounded satisfaction by the great body of the De-mocracy of the State. L. Harper, Esq.—Dear Sir: The Democratic State Central Committee have this day appointed Pittsburg as the place, and the 4th of July as the time for hold-Your friend, Business compelled us to visit Brighton, in Beave county, on Wednesday afternoon. There are several villages between the mouth of Big Beaver Creek and "Old Brighton," as it is called in fact, we may say, it is a continuous town the whole way up. New seat of operations of the branch of the late United States Bank. The place was blown up like a bubble'; and many of the monuments of the folly which then seized upon the minds of the people, are still remaining. Amongst these for instance, is, a large Hotel, which was erected in the centre of the town, standing alone, like some old deserted castle. We are informed that a new company have purchased the walls, (with the exception of the ground there burghers, we are astonished to hear, are going to take part in this work of community folly The immense water power on Big Beaver ha The immense water power on Big Beaver has been used to great advantage by men of enterprise. There are quite a number of mills and factories of various kinds, along the stream. The new paper mill of Mr. A Rosenrson, about a mile above Old Brighton, is a magnificent affair. It has been in operation for a lew months, and turns out a very excellent article of namer. Mr. R. is new adding operation for a few months, and turns out a very excellent article of paper. Mr. R. is new adding more machinery to his mill, and intends running two machines costantly, which will enable him to supply any demand upon him. The improvements in paper-making have kept pace with those in printing, and our enterprising friend Robertson has availed himself of the very latest and best improvements in machinery which will give him unsurpassed facilities. lish cannel coal—at least such is the opinion of Professors Kirtland and St. John. It emits a more brilliant light than bituminous coal, and is free from all dirt, or the least offensive smell. The ashes are tinguished lawyers in the country. Dear Sir:—I have received with much pleasure your letter of the 22d November, extending to me, in behalf of the people of Pennsylvania, a very kind invitation to visit your State during the winter.

Were I to consult my own personal inclinations, I should not begin to receive your invitation. Colonization Cause-Benefits resulting from Colonization. To the Rev. W. M. HALL To the Rev. W. M. Hall Rev. and Dear Sir—in compliance with your request, I have carefully read your summary of reasons in favor of the Colonization cause, as published in the Bedford Democratic Inquirer, and am prepared to say that they seem to be altogether correct and satisfactory. I have no exception or qualification to make at any point. uslification to make at any point.

Like yourself, I have had no small sympathy ith the abolition movement, technically so styled with the abolition movement, technically so styled; though never able to accept its fundamental prin-ciple of slavery sinful per ss, so as to identity my-self with it in form. To slavery as it actually exself with it in form. To alayery as it actually exists in the country, American slavery as a concrete whole, I am of course as much opposed as ever.—
There should be but one pupose in regard to it on the part of, all good men, namely, to bring it to an end as speedily as possible. My mind has been a good deal sceptical, I confess, in time past, with regard to the bearing of Colonization on this subject. I doubted the feasibility of the scheme; and in this view there seemed to me reason to fear that it might operate as a mischievous opiate on the disease it was employed to cure, diverting attention from the urgency of the case, and hindering recourse to other means required for its help. In this way, without any direct hostility to the Colonization cause, my regard to it at one time was nization cause, my regard to it at one time was somewhat cool. But my scepticism has been gradually undermined. The ultimate success of the enterprise in Africa I see now to be morally certain; opening in no distant prospect a wide and effectual door of escape from the curse that now rests upon the nation; while under the whole hear yens besides the most clear sighted and for reach, vens besides, the most clear sighted and far reach ing eye can discover no rational prospect of relie I cordially approve then of your determination to devote yourself for a time, as an agent, to the service of the Pennsylvania Colonization Society, while I congratulate the Society also on the acquisition of your services in this way, and trust that they may prove eminently successful.

We live on the eve of a vast revolution, that is We live on the eve of a vast revolution, that is destined to change the aspect of the entire globe, and the central power of which, has all signs show, is to proceed from America. Only think of the reconstruction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion, that must follow the completion of a railroad made to span our whole continent, to the shores of the Pacific—an enterpsize that must force its way before long into full effect.

The onset was long and fiercely urged; ever and anon, amid the din and smoke, the warriors would rush, tomakawk in hand, towards the centre; but they were revulsed by the cool introduction of the contraction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion, that must follow the contraction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion, that must follow the contraction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion, that must follow the contraction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion, that must follow the contraction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion, that must follow the contraction of the world's universal trade, politics, literature and religion. cesses which are to find their end ultimately in the same grand and magnificent result, a new order of civilization that shall go like a broad girdle round the whole earth. If they go to the land of their forefathers, it will be for the reason that the sufferforefathers; it will be for the reason that the suffering Irish come to the New World—to better their condition. The prejudice against them is not disminishing with the lapse of time. By the Constitution of Pennsylvania, of 1838, they were formally excluded from the right of suffrage, by the introduction of the word 'white,' in the qualification of electors. 'The mere report of an intermarriage between a white and a black, would throw any city of the North into a ferment. Mr. Harper:—Having noticed in your paper of this morning, a communication headed "Never too late to do well," and signed Truth, I could not avoid the recollection of the falsity of his statements in my own case: having been charged for females, regularly, on passing the bridge referred to; and knowing that others have been charged also, not only within the time mentioned, but within a month.

The above is not written in view of the old adage, "Honor to whom honor is due," to apply to the managers of the old bridge, as I am a despiser of the old bridge monopolies, and would rejoice to see the citizens of the two cities build a free bridge by subscription, and thus cut off the necessity of either of the above adages being applied so undeservedly.

JUSTUS. Early in the war, the inhabitants on the frontie of Berkes county, in North Carolina, being appre bensive of an attack by the Indians, it was deter mined to seek protection in a fort, in a more dense-ly peopled neighborhood in an interior settlement. A party of soldiers were sent to protect them on their retreat. The families assembled, the line o march was taken towards their place of destina tion, and they proceeded some miles unmolested -the soldiers marching in a hollow square with the refugee families in the middle. The Indians, who had watched the movement, laid a plan for their destruction. The road to be travelled lay their destruction. And road to be ariver, where through a dense forest in the fork of a river, where the Indians concealed themselves, and waited till the travellers were on the desired spot. Suddenly the travellers were on the desired spot. Suddenly the war whoop sounded in front and on either side; and a large body of painted warnors rushed in, filling the gap by which the whites had entered.—An appalling crash of firearms followed. The soldiers, however, were prepared; such as chanced to be near the trees, darted behind them and began to ply the deally rifes the others retreated. LOCAL MATTERS. They are charged with having stolen a cloak on Tuesday night. On Wednesday they were arrested, and yeaterday morning the Grand Jury found a bill. Mr. Snowden apapeared for them, and stated that if they were allowed till 2 o'clock they might be able to obtain some witnesses. The request was granted.

After several ineffectual attempts to get up cases for trial, the Court adjourned at 114 o'clock till 2 P. M.

The "Cloak stealing" case was not taken up. The case of Com. vs. Mary Woods was taken up. For Com. Mr. Bigham; for Defence, Mr. Magraw. The indictment charged the defendant with having stolen two pieces of goods from Haines & Wilson, Dry Goods Merchants, Allegheny, on the 30th jult It appeared she was intoxicated at the time the of. fence was committed. The testimony of the Prosecution was positive as to the taking of one piece. The defendant brought a witness to prove that she bore a good character. She contended that one piece she had bought. Her counsel, in his address o the jury, said the indictment was imperfect, because it did not set forth that the goods belonged to the firm trading under the name of Haines & Wilson. Mr. Bigham contended for the correctness of the indictment, and they were in the argument when we left the Court.
