PITTS BURGH: MONDAY MORNING, APRIL 23, 1849.

To For Commercial and River News, co hext Page.

The Latest News, Market Reports, &c. will be found under Telegraphic Head Walter Forward and the Whigs. We have been waiting patiently for some explan tion of the insult, with which the new administration has treated the claims of this gentleman. From errances, we are likely to remain in ignorance until the approach of another election for Governor or President. Then when his name and services shall be needed to bolster up the decaying fortunes of the Whige, they will rally around him as of old, with their hollow assurances of attachment and regard. Past injuries and insults will be explained. and they will endcavor to show him that they were really complimentary tributes to his abilities and influence. He will be again invoked to save the state, and offices and honors will be promised to him and his friends as the reward of compliance. But we are mistaken if their old game can be played again. We predict that before that time shall come, Walter Forward will have wheeled into the old Democratic line, which he should never have eft, and where his abilities and virtues were acknowled edged and honored. With him will return the thou sands, who were seduced by his eloquence into the ranks of a party, which is alien to them in nearly anxious to desert upon the first colorable reason. We will welcome the return, although we will not court it. Independent in our assured strength, we will hall the accession, less as a favor, than as a cetribution for political derilection. We will hold out no inducements in the promise of rewards, but our pledges will be redeemed in Democratic faith, and at least we will not imitate the Whige by insulting those to whom we are most indebted for success. The truth is, the conduct of the Whigs to Walter Forward, is, for its gross perfidy and ingratitude without a parallel in the history of political parties

For filteen years, Forward has been the leader and champion of his party in Western Pennsylvania. In effective eloquence and the power of persuading the masses, he has perhaps, no equal in the State. These powers he dearly loved to display, and whenever he was called upon, he was sure to respond to ding. A sort of political Peter the Hermit, he went forth from county to county, and on the highways, and in the villages, from the restrum of a Mass Cor vention or the porch of a tavern, he unfarled his banner of the Tariff, claimed as its destiny, overrunning wealth and prosperity, and deprecated its detruction as fraught with more evils than ever repofallacies upon the minds of the working men, was the secret of his success, as that success was the secret of the jealousy with which some of his Whig contemporaries regard him. We very well remember the first whig meeting in Pitisburg, after the nomination of Gen. Taylor. That nomination had been received by the whigh here with the most squirming reluctance, and when our funny friend Bigham announced to the meeting at Broadhurst's, the names of Taylor and Filmor as the nominees of "the great Whig Slaughterhouse," about half a dozen of the crowd essayed a feeble cheer, which went up like the wail of an expiring gander, and was followed by a long, loud and hearty laugh, which converted the serene features of our unctious friend into the representation of a thunder storm. But when the name of Forward was announced, a cheer succeeded which distinctly evidenced the superior regard of that multitude for their orator, over those whom he appeared there to aid. Every other whig of distinguished note in the county, was absent, perhaps accidentally so, and the difficult duty of reconciling the whigs to a result, which but a single week before nine tenths of them had sworn to resist, was devolved upon Forward. And with his accustomed ingenious sophistry, he succeeded too well. From that hour until the contest was over, he was always in the field, and fore-Now let us see how he has been treated by those restoration of the iniquitous Tariff of 1842, was the only principle put forth in Pennsylvania, and was was honored with the confidence of the sage of Monthe delusive policy which insured the success of the ticello. Verily, the Whigs of Pittsburgh have an whigs, it would seem but a proper reward, that to honest and consistent organ! the author of that measure, to them so auspicious, should its restoration be entrusted.

It seems that Mr. Forward did not aspire to any of the honorable positions which his abilities and influence, would have justified him in demanding, but Hotel, will be opened this evening, at 74 o'clock. asked for the office of Post Master of this city. We for a public meeting, on the subject of the Ohio and are told that his pecuniary circumstances made the Pennsylvania Railroad to connect Pittsburgh with office very desirable, and by common concent he was the great West. Large subscriptions have been looked to as the destined successor of the late ex- made to the stock in Ohio; and a number of gentlecellent officer. To these expectations, the admin- men from that State are now in this city, for the puristration gave every encouragement. A whig friend pose of giving an account of what has been done to assures us that in a conversation which he had with promote this highly interesting work. The invitathe head of the Department, Mr. Collamer spoke of tion is general, and it is hoped that every Pittsburghthe appointment as a thing of certainty, and con- er who wishes to see a Railroad made to the great gratulated the other appointments upon the postponement of their claims to the superior claims and popularity of Mr. Forward. After an unaccountable delay, the appointment was announced by the newspapers from one end of the Union to the other. But the next day comes a chilling frost? in the announcement of another name, perhaps the least expected of all others. The whigs here were petrified with the audacity of the insult, and when our contemporaries of the whig press could recover their breaths, they endeave ored to pary the blow by declaring that the office was withheld from Mr. F. only because the administration was determined to reward more suitably, his eminent talents and services. This however is lastrated. They have also received Littell's Living now perfectly well understood to be another speci- Age No. 258. men of whig flummery. No such purpose is contemplated by the administration. On the contrary, it is evident to us that the administration took extraordinary pains to make the insult as sharp and bitter as possible, else why was their victim played with so long, why was his appointment allowed to be announced by the newspapers, and then the appointment revoked without a single word of explanation. Such a category of events could not happen without deliberate design, and no man of ordinary sense

Perhaps we will be told that this affair it no business of ours, and we certainly care very little about it so far as the subject is concerned. We have been in the habit of regarding Walter Forward as the deep devoted love is a destiny, and therefore somemost formidable and efficient enemy of democracy thing awful as well as beautiful, yet there are many in western Pennsylvania, who has led away and times circumstances waiting on its first revelation kept away thousands who, but for his influence would never have left their early political attachments, to become identified with the shifting princi-
