At eight o'clock in the evening the President adjourned the meeting, although their was evidently a great number of persons present who had not voted, and upon counting the votes it was found that Mr. Jones had 126, and Mr. Curtiss 124, giving Mr. Jones the Delegates by two of a majority. The great crowd testified their approbation of the choice by "three times three." Mr. MrGill, we understand, has entirely withdrawn, and does not intend to let his name go into convention.
