PITTSBURGH: TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 30, 1849.

The Next House of Representatives. ippl, they will have three. If Thomas Butler King the ticket with him for Vice President." does not appear, they will have four. If a whig be not elected in Mr. Palfrey's district, they will have five. If they gain another member in Louisiana, they will have a majority of seven. Some of the writers say that "five whig free-soilers are believed to be pledged to vote against Mr. Winthrop. In that case, he can have but little chance, even if he obtained the vote of Mr. Wentworth." Several prominent democrats have been named in connexion with the Chair; but we forbear to enter into further speculations or details,30

In connection with the above we may remark that a large number of respectable Democratic papers in Pennsylvania, New York, and elsewhere, have taken a stand in favor of the election of the Hon. James Triomrson, of the Erie district, in this state, as Speaker of the House of Representatives. Your labors were felt and appreciated. I rejoice to see that you have moved the election of McClibrock to the Speakership. I have no doubt he will succeed, and this will be a handsome compliment to the Past. I think he may safely count upon the two votes from this county."

Hon. Walter Forward. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimor Sun writes under date of Oct. 26:

"There seems to be no Solicitor of the Treasory this morning, Mr. Gillett having received notice that he has been superseded by Walter Forward, former Secretary of the Treasory. Should Mr. Forward accept this appointment, it will be a movement backwards instead of forwards." Another correspondent of the Sun, of the same date, save:

To the mouning and the groaning of the bella Manufacture of Steel. ADIBONDAC STEEL WORRS .- Steel is an artific occupation. Its instrumentality is every where conspicious. Yet, there is scarcely an essential of national supply in which the American people are more deficient. To supply our wants, we must needs resort to the markets of the English, and they to the ore beds of Sweeden or Russia From native iron, the manufacture comparatively little steel. With the exception of Ulverstene charcoal-iron, no bars are manufactured in Grin Britian capable conversion into steel, at all approaching in quality that from the Madras Swedish, and Russian irons, so largely imported for the purpose. Yet we, with a great variety of mag netic ores embosomed within our own cliffs, some of them fully equal to the best Swedish, have until very recently, failed to compete successfully in our own market with the imported article. Vari-ous attempts had been made, but without success, until the establishment of the Adirondac Stee Works in Jersey city. Although these works are comparatively in their infancy, having been in operation only since last January, the article produced is preferred, at the same price, for man purposes, to the best English cast steel. Follow ng up a suggestion received while examining son specimens from these works, exhibiting at the this State, at the sources of the Hudson, at an al itude of 5,000 feet, among the Adirondac moun tains, and about fifty miles west from Lake Char plain. Large expenditures have been made b

The quantity exposed is greater than can be consumed for centuries, and is worked like chures of one or two of the small lakes with which Compare the result achieved by the inventor of printing with those attained by the conquerer of the old world. Three contributions of the conquerer of the old world. A new furnace is at this time in procees of erec tion, to meet the increasing demand for accomm dation. The ore is here converted into bar iro and transported to the company's works in Jerse city, to be manufactured into steel. Its adapted ness to this purpose was ascertained by Joseph Dixon, Esq., of Jersey city, after a protracted se ries of experiments made with reference to that object. He also succeeded in the use of anthras cite—supposed by experienced English manufacturers impossible—and then applied himself to the manufacture of black-lead crucibles possessing sufficiently powerful refractory qualities to withstand the heat of anthracite furnaces. In this, too, he was successful, and his pots are now in use in En gland and elsewhere by the first artisans. As the result of all this, the Adirondac Company set about building furnaces, &c., in Jersey city, his direction, at an outlay of not far from $150,000 In these, the steel is broken into small pieces, and put into sixteen crucibles of a capacity of forty o sixty pounds, which are placed in as many small furnaces whose tops are even with the surface of the floor. After the lapse of two hours their malten contents are poured into ingot moulds of various sizes. The steel is then radily drawn out, upon being reheated, under heavy hammers into bars of any desired shape or size. four heats are obtained from these furnaces daily

The American Oil, having performed by its use so many remarkable cures, and being a powerful Remedial Agent for various diseases, has induced some persons to counterfeit this valuable medicine. The persons to counterfeit this valuable medicine. The original and genuine American Oil is obtained from a well in Burksville, Kentucky from the sole and only proprietors, D. Hale & Co., who appointed Mr. Wm. Jackson, of S9 Liberty street, Pittsburgh, their sole and only agent for supplying sub-agents in western Pennsylvania, western Virginia, and part of Ohio. The true and genuine American Oil is a dark green color. There are various counterfeits abroad defendants, stated that they were not ready for trial, and asked that the case should be continued. Mr. Darragh consented to fix the case for next Monday, which we believe was agreed to.

Com. vs Mary McCracken—Surety of the peace. The testimony was that the defendant said to her brother, who was quarrelling with the prosecutor, "Drag — out and give it to him good, and I will help you." The Court sentenced each party to pay witness fees and divide docket costs.

Com. vs Margaret McCurdy. Indictment, Larce-bry. Prosecuting witness, Benj. Wilson. Mr. Darragh stated that at the request of a number of respectable citizens, and of some persons engaged in the prosecution, he was persuaded that the lady was innocent, and therefore requested a verdict of "not guilty," which was immediately rendered.
