The new process of manufacturing bar iron from the ore, by a single and rapid process, lescribed in general terms in the letter of Mr. Ward which we publish below, is destined, if we do not mistake, to work a total revolution in the business of making iron. It the calculation of Mr. Ward be not erroneous. and bar iron made by this process, can be sold in New York at $25 persiton, the iron interest of Pennsylvania may need no other protection for the present, against the influx of British iron, than the operation of the patent for the new invention. Already one manufacturer of iron, residing n Kentucky, who had heard of this discovery, having read Mr. Ward's letter and examined the specimens, has proceded to New Jersey to avail himself of the new process. and apply it to his iron works. We are indebted to our friend Mr. Samuel McClurkan of this eity, for the privilege of laying the letter before our readers. The specimens of the iron sent to the Convention for examination, are now in this office and will be exhibited to all who may desire to see them. The samples before us consist of two sizes of boop, 1 and 11 inch; a square bar 9-16 of an inch; a rod # inch thick. and a horse-shoe nail. Each of these pieces has been bent, rebest and twisted, without the slightest sign of fracture, exhibiting the toughness of the old fashioned, highly hammered, small bar of Juniata iron, which we were accustomed to meet with twenty-five years sgo. In fact, such of this iron as we can bend by the hand, appears to be as tough and malleable as a bar of lead. If the ore from which this iron is made, is not peculiar in the toughness of its product, we cannot see where the new process of conversion can fail to supersede all others now in The subject is at least worthy the attention of our Pittsburgh iron manufacturers. If the invention be all it promises, they may become
