THE ORPHAN BOY.

"He faded, yet so calmly meck," So gently wan, so sweetly weak." The bustle of the fight was over; the prisoners had been secured, and the decks washed down, the watch piped, and the schooner had once more relapsed into midnight quiet and repose. I sought my hammock and soon fell asleep. But my slumbers were disturbed by wild dreams, which like the visions of a fever, agitated and unnerved me; the last strife, the hardships of my early life, and a thousand other things mingled together as figures in a phantas magora. Suddenly a hand was laid on my shoulder, and starting up I beheld the surgeon's mate.

"Little Dick, sir, is dying," he said. At once I sprung from my hammock. Little Dick was a sort of a protege of mine. He was a pale, delicate child, said to be an orphan, and used to gentle nurture; and from the first hour I joined the schooner, my heart yearned towards him, for I, too, had once been friendless and alone in the world. He had often talked to me in confidence, of his mother, whose memory he regarded with holy reverence, while to the other boys of the ship he had little to say, and sensitive. sel was in motion, while the clear, calm. blue sky, seen through the opening over head, and dotted with myriads of stars, betokened that the fog had broken away. How calm it smiled down on the wan face of the dying boy. Occasionally a light current of wind eddied down the hatchway, and lifted the dark chestnut locks of the sufferer, as with his head reposing on the lap of an old veteran, he lay in an unquiet slumber. His shirt collar was un buttoned, and his childish bosom, as white as that of a girl, was open and exposed. He breathed quick and heavily. wound, of which he was dying, had been intensely painful, but within the last half hour had somewhat lulled, though even now his thin fingers tightly grasped the bed clothes, as if he suffered the greatest

A battle-stained and gray haired seaman stood beside him, holding a dull lantern in his hand, and gazing sorrowfully down upon the sufferer. The surgeon knelt with his finger on the boy's pulse. As I approached, they all looked up. The vet would have spoken, but the tears gathered too chokingly in his eyes.

The surgeon said-"He is going fast-poor little fellowdo you see this?" as he spoke, he lifted up a rich gold locket which had lain upon the boy's breast. "He has seen better days." "I could not answer, for my heart was full—here was the being to whom a few hours before I had owed my life—a poor. slight, unprotected child-lying before me, with death already written on his brow-and yet I had never sought him out after the conflict. How bitterly my heart reproached me at that hour. They noticed my agitation, and his old friend—the seaman who held his head, said sadly-"Poor little Dick-you will never see the shore you have wished for so long .-But there will be more than one, when your log's out," he spoke with emotionto mourn over you."

Suddenly the little fellow opened his eyes, and looked vacantly around. "Has he come yet?" he asked in a low voice. "Why don't he come?" "I am here," said I, taking the little fel low's hand, "don't you know me, Dick?" He smiled faintly in my face. He then

A good move for Birmingham.
We learn with pleasure that the citizens of Bir ningham are taking active measures to establish a public library in their borough, and form a Birningham Library Association. Our neighbors icross the river seem to be fully alive to the interests of their thriving borough, and appear determined that the means of public instruction and intelligence shall keep pace with the rapid growth of that place in population and wealth. Within the past season they have erected a splendid edifice, equal to any in Western Pennsylvania, for a public school house, and arrangements, we understand, are being made to secure such teachers as will give the youth of that borough all the advantages of one of the best schools in the Union. If to this they will add a large and well selected public library, Birmingham will become a desira, ble residence for those having children to educate, and for those having a taste for reading and improvement. From the character of those who head the movement we doubt not their praiseworthy enterprise will succeed. With such a right judging and active public was set on fire, narrowly escaped from being burned to spirit at work, and such elements of wealth in their midst, we may expect in a few years to see from the upper line of East Birmingham to Temperanceville a continuous, compact and thriving city, equally distinguished for wealth and industry, and for good morals and intelligence.

Correction. We publish the following letter from the Hon. R. BUCKALEW, Senator from the Columbia district, with great pleasure, as we are always anx. ious that no injustice shall be done to Democrats in the columns of the Morning Post. The Sugar Crop.

We find in the Planter's Banner a second letter from Mr. John Hall, of this city, in relation to the sugar crop. It is dated New Orleans, Dec. 27.—Mr. Hall's experience in the trade entitles his opinions to the most considerate attention. We extract from his letter the following.—N. O. Bulletin. While in Attakapas last month I made it my business to accertain, as near as possible, what might be the extent of the sugar crop this season, and from the closest observation and best information I could The Wheeling Gas Works are doing well, the gas a quite pare and the light excellent. Remarkable Case.

EVIDENCE IN OUR MIDST.

Mr. Riv:—Sir, I cheerfully comply with your request, that I would give you an account of the almost nitraculous cure of my little daughter's eye, by the use of your "PETROLEUM."

She was attacked with a very sore eye, in February or March last, when I immediately applied to the best medical aid in the city, by whom it was pronounced "a very lad eye." and all gave me no hope of doing her any good. After which I took her into the country to an old lady, who had been very successful in curing eyes. Not told me that her case was hopeless, as she would certainty last ont only that one, but, also, that the other would follow—it being a scrofisious affection of the blood. And I do certify, that at the time my father (J. B. Vashon.) came to the conclusion that we had better by your "Petroleum," as was entirely blind of one eye. It is now about two months since she began its use, and she can now see with both eyes as good as she eyer did; and, as far as I can tell, I believe sue has, with the blessing of the Almighty, been curied by "Petroleum." Yours, respectfully.
