get those heroic women who, as mothers and wives, sent forth with cheering words their sons and husbands to the battle fields of strife, or as sisters aided to clothe and equip their brothers. Their aching hearts were silent, their burning tears were washed away, as with smiles they embraced them at parting, and with high words of trustful faith, like the women of Sparta, bade them turn no back on the conquering foe. The records of all ages bear n slight testimony to the devoted courage o women, and were our history more perfectly known, instances of female courage would be found to parallel the most won derful of ancient chronicles. We have now to record an act performed by a young woman during our revolutionary struggle which, for nerve and desperateness, is scarcely to be matched. In the year 1778, Wheeling, Virginia was besieged by a large force of British and Indians. At this time the Fort, with an insufficient force, was under the command of Col. Silus Zane, a brave and meritorious officer. Distant from this about eighty yards, and outside the walls, was situated a block house, in which was Col. Ebenezer Zane, a brother of Silas, and the senior officer, with a few men. There were several women in the fort, and among them at the time was Elizabeth Zane, a sister of the Colonel. She was a young woman of extraordinary beauty, having a tall and finely formed figure, with a head like Juno; a black eye, mild and firm in its expression; and voice soft and musical as a flute; and with an expression of countenance as bland as an Italian sky, though beneath it might slumber passion as warm as the fires of Vesuvius. It may be supposed that many a soldier's eye followed her wishfully, as in days of quiet she roamed about the Fort, or strolled for a walk with one of her brothers. Many a proposal had been made for her in vain. Officers of high rank had sued for her, and many a gallant enterprise had been undertaken in her name, but all to no effect so far as winning her affections went. She was not one of those light witted women, to be caught by fine show and fine professions. As far as her heart went she placed no difference between high-nodding plumes when young women are most apt to be caught by fine compliments or dashing appearances; but plain and direct in her manner, it was her study to give no en- ties of the North Western part of the State, to couragement to the attention of her nu- wit: McKean, and a portion of Potter, Warren, merous suitors. Yet from this descrip Elk, Venango, Clarion, Jefferson and Armstrong tion the reader must not infer that she was not susceptible to the soft passion of love. the semi-annual floods of the Allegheny and its Far from it, for her troth was at that time tributaries, we may well expect that with the adplighted; nor could the most ambitious thought in the world have tempted her to swerve from the sanctity of vows made to that section, the trade will soon be doubled or the lover of her choice-made, as all lovers' oaths are, in the quiet evening hour, and witnessed by the moon, that lovers planet, "all the starry hosts of heaven." Among the soldiers in the Fort at the time, none was a greater favorite with the officers and men than Ashley Harper.— Bold, adventurous and generous almost to a fault, no hazardous expedition was proected in which he was not always ready to volunteer; and many a desperate adventure, and many a forlorn hope had seen him face the savage foe with odds against we trust a large him; and while powder flashed and bayo. from this city. nets gleamed, he was sure to be found in the hottest of the fray. On two occasions had he saved the life of his superior officer, when the unlifted tomahawk glittered with the fearful expectation of its victim's blood. He enlisted in the service a year previous as a private; and though promotion to the rank of a non-commissioned of his good qualities as a soldier, and his intelligence as a man; he had refused its ac ceptance, declaring that, as his only desire was to serve his country, he was willing to serve through the wars as a private, leaving all conditions above that to soldiers more competent and more ambitious. He was the son of a respectable farmer, whose industry had enabled him to raise up and educate a large family; a man of severe discipline, whose watchful eye detected youthful fault in time to prevent their maturing to crimes. He had been intimate with the family of the Zanes, and when Ashley expressed a desire to enlist, the old man easily prevailed on Col. Silas to enroll him among his own men.

Now we will not pretend to say that there had been any particular understand-ing between Miss Elizabeth and the young tleman above spoken of, previous to his becoming a soldier, though such a thing might possibly have been in a mute way. Verbal declarations certainly had not been made; for an owl told how one moonlight evening, while he was sitting in the shady branches of a chestnut that stood but a few yards from the Fort.

he looked about with a solemn scowl, and beheld, coming from the shadow of the Fort, a lover and his mistress; he knew it was a lover and his mistress, they spoke so tenderly to one another.

They came out from the Fort so stealth. ily and stole softly over the green sward to the foot of the chestnut, and sitting down upon the gnarled roots, said kind things, uttered sacred vows, and breathed fervent 500 smaller class Flatboats from French sighs one to the other. They sat there an hour-a good hour by the march of Saturn, talking and sighing all the while, when, calling upon all the stars to witness their oaths, and sealing their vows with a hiss, they retired. It was but a short time after this occurrence that the siege of Wheeling was commenced by the British and Indians; and al though the place was defended with zeal and an unlimited amount of courage, the hopes of the besieged grew somewhat dim us they looked forth upon the masses that surrounded them. Messra, Sanford & Park: I take this opportunity of informing you of a most remarkable cure performed on me by the use of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

In the fall of 1841 was attacked within severe cold, which seated itself upon my lungs, and for the space of three years I was confined tomy hed. I tried all kinds of medicines and every variety of aid without benefit; and thus I wearled along until the winter of 1846, when I neard of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

My friends persuaded me to givo it a trial, though I had given up all hopes of recovery, and had prepared myself for the change of another world. knewn and highly esteemed Missionary in the kingdom of Burmah, dated Sandowny Arracan, February, 1846:

Dr. D. Jayne, Phiffidelphia: My Dear Sir—We are now in great want of your Medical Preparations. Your CARMINATIVE BALSAM is an invaluable Medicine in this country in Bowel Complaints, and hus been used in all our Missions with the most gratifying success. I have known it in many cases to act like a charm. Your SANATIVE PHILLS are my Sheet Anchor. The best medicine for my Liver Complaint and pain in the side, that I have over used. They are in great demand, and we are entirely also of them. We need five hundred docks at 1840 and 1840 filters. We need five hundred to remirely also of them. We need five hundred to remirely also of the service of the means of saving my own son. During my travels among the churches the past season, I found a whole village suffering an oder a prevailing influenza, attended with Coughs of a most violent character. I often regretted I had not had a dozen or two of YOUR EXPECTORANT to administer to them, for I believe from what I have seen of its effects, that it would have been just the thing for those poor peoyle. I presume you have not hitherto had an idea to what an extent your medicines are used in all our Missions. Affectionately yours. E L. ABBOTT
