to the appearance as to hear it almost without uneusiness. It occurred to them some times, how odd it was to be living under the weight of such a mystery; and they were silent when ghosts were talked about and felt and looked very serious when they were laughed at; but their alarm had sub sided. The Thing never did them any harm: and they had now got merely to open drowsy eyes to see if it was there; and to drop asleep the moment it was there no longer. This may seem strange to those who have not (and also to those who have) seen ghosts; but we, none of us, know what we may come to; and these two ladies reached the point of turning their heads on their pillows, without much beating of the heart, under the gibbering of a eous ghost. One circumstance worth noting is, that the thing once spoke. After one of its mocking nods, it said, 'I come to see you whenever I please. When Mr. Gurney was told this, he asked whether the language was English, and what sort of English it was. It must have been English, as the ladies did not observe anything remarkable. As to the dialect, it had made dialect of the district, which they were ac. | tations, no explanation—no new evidence occurred for several years. Mr. Gurney was not fond of being puzzled. His plan him. He seldom inquired after the ghost; and when he did, he always received the same answer.

One morning, after this lapse of years, Mr. Gurney called to ask the ladies if they would like to join a party to see a glasshouse. The residents of a manufacturing town cannot intrude in such places at their doors of any manufactory. Mr. Gurney was the first man in the town, in regard to doing the honors of it. All strangers were introduced to him; and the doors of all show places flew open before him. He was wont to invite his friends in turn to accompany him and his party of strangers to these show places; and he now invited the Whartons

He took them down to the annealing chamber; and then he observed that it was 'a nice warm place o' nights.' Being asked how he knew that, he began pointing with his finger at Mrs. Wharton, and peeping under her bonnet. Being advised to look him in the face, she raised her veil; and he sniggled and giggled, and said he had seen her many a time when she was asleep, and many a time when she lew days, and if the people of the District do not approve of the public conduct of those whom they was not there. He hid himself down here when the other men went away—it was so they were asleep. Mr. Gurney enticed him to whisper how he managed it; and then with an air of silly cunning, he showed a little square trap-door in the wall, close by the floor, through which he said he passed. It seemed too small for the purpose; but he crept in and out again. the other side he declared was Mrs. Wharton's cellar. It was so. Far distant as the glass house seemed from her house, it ran back so far, the cellar running back also that they met. No time was lost in sending round to the cellar; and by a conversation held through the trap-door, it was ascertained that when Mrs. Wharton's stock of coal was low, that is, in summer, and before a fresh supply came in in midwinter, Middleton could get in, almost ev.

Dr. Houz.—Dear Sir.—My son, when about six manths old, broke out with that dreadfuldinears, Scriptlous Scret, over the face and body; and for two years and a half tried every means that could be suggested by my friends. I also had the sand also the sessence of the best physicians in the country, without effecting a cure, and I simost wished the little sufferer dead, that it might be freed from its pains. During the last sur months, the sores were so distressing and painful, myself and wife were up with it night and day, for weeks together, and we had green up all hope of ever rusing our little one. At length, a friend advised us to try your shaker Sarsaparilla. Reluctantly Tiried it, and I have reason to bless God for it, for, is a cery short time, if healty the theory, so that there is scarcely even a scar to be seen. We only regret that we did not hear of and commence using it sooner, as we are satisfied it would have eaved a great deal of suffering and expense. The commence using it sooner, as we are satisfied it would have saved a great deal of suffering and expense. The child is now well and hearty: We do unhesitatingly consider your Shaker Sarsaparilla one of the best preparations into hinsto. JOHN STANSHURY.

[L.] This is to certify that a man came to my house in the fall of 1819, by the name of Henry Els, in a very destitute condition, and was almost totally blind. He had been a soldier in the British service. He was then taken to one of the best Hospitals in London; and had the best treatment that London; could afford, and could not be restored to sight; and was discharged as incurable. I had heard so much about the Petroleum, I thought I would try some of it on this man. I get him a small bottle of the Petroleum Oil, which cured his eyes, well and sound, in the course of one month.

I am willing to be qualified to the truth, of the affore statement at my time I may be called upon so to do; and some of my neighbors can testify to the same.
