in the local column of to-day's paper will b found an interesting report of a Fugitive Slave Case which arose under the late Act of Congress, and which was decided in the United States Court, it this city, yesterday. Contrary to the expect tions of many persons, the case was determin without the slightest effort being made to resist the laws of the land. The claimant fully proved he title to the fugitive slave, and after a fair hearing he was given up, and taken by his owner to Kentucky. We think the result of this case will show that the onnage, citizens of Pittaburgh are not disposed to follow the example of the fanalics of Boston and other places, in a treasonable opposition to the laws of the land.
