This event look place, according to previous than in any other place in New England. Many are funotice, on Wednesday evening last, and was pro. gilive slaves. dents, assembled from all parts of the surrounding country : Providence Hall of the College was crowded soon after the doors were opened. Good order, however, was maintained throughout the evening through the efficiency of Dr. Brown, President of the College, in conjunction with the Committees of Order, or "Dog Committees," of the Societies. The Hall was beautifully decorated and on the arch spreading over the heads of the contestors, was displayed the motto, "Laurus dignissimo deluc." Dr. Brown and the remainder of the Faculty sat in the rear of the arch; the Philo L. Society on the right, and the Frank. lin L. Society on the left of it. The Judges were seated near the centre of the Hall, in a seat especially provided for them. This body was com-

The select Orators were Mr. John H. Young of Pittsburgh, and A. O. Johnson, of Strabane, Pa The former being champion for the Franks lin, and the latter for the Philo Society. Mr. Young's subject was Retributive Justice, and in its delivery he conferred the highest degree of praise upon himself and bis friends. There is tire cargo, comprising several hundreds of tons weigh probably none of his age who will eclipse him as declaimer. Mr. Jounson, however, deserves nearly equal applance. Next came two original Essays, one by Mr. F. L. STRWART of Westmoreland county, Pa, for the Philo, and the other by Mr. McCagus, of Adams county, Ohio; for the Franklin. Mr. STEWART'S production is an ornament to English composition for brilliancy of the United States of America, to be an Ordinary Mer thought and choice language. Then came two bot of the First Class or Knights Grand Cross of the briginal Orations. The first was delivered by Mr-E. A. Sherry, of Jefferson county, Ohio, for the Philo, and the second by Mr. W. C. McCons. of to the World's Fair, if encouragement be offered. The Beaver, Pa., for the Franklin. The subject of the party will live on board the vessel from their departure. Philo, and the second by Mr. W. C. McCune, of former was "Home-The Patriot's Love;" a creditable production and well delivered, but possessed a little too much of the fanciful for our taste. The latter's subject was "Limits of Mind." which certainly was one of the most elegant pieces of composition that has ever been spoken, not only in the choice of language, but in the depth and dignity of thought.

Lastly came the Debate. On account of the nickness of one of the debaters, the Societies agreed to have the debates rend. The nuestion was, "Do moral causes exert a greater influence on national character than physical?" The affire mative was sustained by Mr. Courter, for the Franklin Society, and the negative by Mr. McCAHA. of Martinsburg, Ohto, for the Philo. The question had been well studied, and each debater did no exhaust the subject nor the interest of the question in his hour's speech.
