was a crowded house last night, attracted by the debut of the above named eminent Actress in this City. Expectation was on tiptoe, and when she appeared she met with a most cheering reception. Her-form is good—its movements are graceful in devances on all kinds of Goods consigned us for sale here. the extreme; her strength seems sufficient for the olonged and excessive exertion required for difficult parts, and her countenance is more charmingly expressive than can be conceived. Miss Davenport performed on this occasion her new and original character of "Adrienne." Never before have we seen love expressed, and also its opposites, passion and jealousy. Her face blazed, if we may so call it, with expression. Her death if we may so call it, with expression. Her death was horrible, as a whole and in its details; it takes place in an arm chair, and the effect created by her death, with the eyes open, was indescribable. It was the first time we ever an or heard of such a thing; but it shows the great genius of the Actress, as we all know how true it is to nature, and there if we may so call it, with expression. Her death ne we all know how true it is to nature, and there are few who have passed through life without being required to close the cyclide of some departed field. One great perfection in Miss Davenport's perform ance is that it is entirely free from all rant ot unner cessary noise; it is amooth and elegant, and that is the reason why the ladies, who are after all the best judges of talent in one of their own sex, have crowded the theatre wherever she has appeared.— She was called for when the curtain [ell, smidter thunders of a populause. It appears there had been a controversy between the two papers, in which there was a good deal of cutting and elashing, criminating and recriminating each other. The article alleged to be 'libellous, is one of the controversy, and is published as a com-
