To Advertisers.

THE MORNING POST has a larger circulation than any subscription paper published in Pittsburgh. To business men it affords an excellent medium for Advertising; and being the only Democratic paper issued in Allegheny county, it goes into the hands of a class of readers reached by no other paper. Advertisers will be good enough to bear this in mind.

The Reading Convention.

We publish under the telegraphic head all the news received last night from Reading.

Whig County Convention.

This body assembled yesterday in the new Court House. A full report of the proceedings will be found in to-day's paper. The great contest was for President Judge of the District Court, and it will be seen that the Hon. WALTER FORWARD has signally triumphed over the Hon. MOSES HAMPTON alias "Mournful Moses." The Old Hunkers of the party have been effectually defeated and used up in Allegheny county. Notwithstanding Aleck Miller made extraordinary efforts to secure the nomination of his brother-in-law, Mr. Hampton, the honest old farmers of the country could not be induced to obey his dictates. This result is also a triumph of the Journal faction over the Gazette faction, or in other words it is a triumph of Whiggery proper over Antimasonry! Mr. FORWARD's friends made little or no effort whereas the "Mournful" Millerites have been busy, day and night for the last two months. Poor Moses! we pity him from the bottom of our heart! He is now "dead as a mackerel," (politically,) and it will be a matter of general rejoicing amongst whigs as well as democrats. We expect the Deacon will

"Shed whole pints of bitter tears,
And wipe them on his sleeve," because of the terrible disaster that has happened his companion and bosom friend Mr. Hampton! The Gazette of to-day will doubtless be clothed in the habiliments of mourning!

"THE LINES GAVE WAY."

In the Commercial Journal of yesterday we find the following startling paragraph, under the "Telegraphic" head:

OUR TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES.—Last evening, just as we were about to receive our telegraphic dispatches, the lines gave way, and as the communication is cut off in every direction, we are obliged to dispense with them entirely to-day.

It is certainly a grievous matter that the "lines" of the Morse Telegraph should "give way," and thus deprive the readers of the "enterprising" paper of the gratification of having a word of news yesterday! We suspect that an attempt must have been made to send a package of the "Baltimore American" by telegraph, for the especial benefit of Riddle's mighty intellectual assistant, the Captain, and under the weight of the load "the lines gave way!" No doubt the readers of the "enterprising" paper are terribly alarmed about the fate of the steamer Washington, which Mr. Riddle announced on Tuesday was "coming up the bay," at New York, on Monday!! Some of them may suppose that she either "struck a snag," or "burst her boiler!" We hope our Democratic friends will circulate the news amongst the Whigs that the Washington is safely moored in the harbor of New York, and that we published foreign intelligence received by her two days ago!

We yesterday gave the numerous readers of the Post two solid columns of telegraphic news, from all parts of the world, and in addition to this we issued an Extra Post at 10½ o'clock, containing still later foreign news by the steamer Asia which was read by hundreds and thousands of people through the city before noon! We sent a copy of our Extra to the office of the gouty Journal, so as to save our "enterprising" neighbors the trouble and vexation of waiting for the regular issue of the paper, so as to pilfer therefrom our telegraphic despatches.

Whenever the Morse lines "give way," or Mr. Riddle fails to receive a copy of the "Baltimore American," we shall take pleasure in furnishing him with late news, with the understanding, however, that he will give us credit therefor, as an honorable man should.

A NEW MAP.—We have received a large and beautifully executed Map of Birmingham, South Pittsburgh and East Birmingham, just issued by Schuckman & Haunlein, Lithographers, and prepared under the especial directions of R. E. McGowin' Esq., Recording Regulator. It gives a very satisfactory representation of the property on the South side of the Monongahela river, the names of the streets, the number of the lots, &c., &c.

The Failures in New York.

The cotton failures at New York, referred to by telegraph, are Messrs. H. Gowdy, and John Brower. They are not large, and exercise no particular influence on credit. The Journal of Commerce of Saturday evening says, of the heavy failures there some time since:

"The most important topic of conversation in our mercantile circles, is the proposition of Mr. F. Hallester, of Utica, for a settlement of the claims against the Manufacturing Companies of which he was agent. As we understand it, he proposes to give up his own private property estimated at my half a million, together with all of the property belonging to the mills, the whole to be valued by a unanimous agreement of three appraisers, one of whom he appoints, and then to be distributed among the creditors at the rate of $125 of property for every $100 or indebtedness; provided—the creditors will return him in cash twenty-five per cent. of the valuation for his own use.

"This proposition, if accepted, would oblige each creditor to advance 31¼ per cent. of his claim in cash whereupon he would receive 125 per cent. in real estate, &c., at the valuation provided.

"In connection with this, the Auction House of Austin & Sprigg, who were so unfortunately involved have made their statement, which shows, if we are rightly informed, about $1,000,000 of liabilities against $39,000 assets. Of the indebtedness, we believe $740,000 is on behalf of the mills alluded to, (for which there has been no return or security obtained) and $90,000 confidential. Deducting the latter item from the assets, it would leave 149,000, (which includes $42,000 the private property of the senior partner) to pay $900,000 which would pay about 16½ per cent. of the general claims. The assets appear to be estimated at an inside valuation, so that the per centage on a final settlement might be increased.

The N. Y. Post, of Friday, announces also the annexed suspensions:—

"Two real estate and coal mining operators, to a large amount, have been compelled, within these few days, to suspend payment—Samuel B. Ruggles and Elihu Townsend. They were connected with the Dauphin and Susquehanna, Pennsylvania, Mining Company, and were engaged in building up town. The liabilities are stated at from $400,000 to $200,000, principally to builders and masons.

☞ GOLD, as rich as that from the mines of California, is said to have been recently found in Maine and in a portion of the State on the borders of the line which separates it from Canada, heretofore considered a wilderness. So great is the excitement created by the discovery, that raftsmen are said to have abandoned their logs, and the farmers their shovels and hoes, to engage in searching for the precious metal. It is a great pity if that is the case.

MOUSSELINE DE LAINE MANUFACTORY.—General James, in behalf of a company of which he is the president, has just erected in Providence, Rhode Island, an extensive building and machinery for the manufacture of the goods commonly known under the name of Mousseline de Laines.

Scribblings and Clippings.

— The laying of the cap stone of the Masonic Hall in Indianapolis was celebrated in that city on Tuesday week. Three hundred and forty members of the fraternity were present on the occasion.

— The Madison Courier states that the Madison and Indianapolis Railroad is being re-laid with T rail—the distance from Madison to Franklin having already been so improved, and the work being pushed vigorously from Franklin towards Indianapolis.

— The Merchants' Bank of Massillon has been fully organized under the free banking law, passed last winter, and will go into full operation in a few days—This is the third institution of the kind organized in Ohio under the new law.

— A Philadelphia paper says: "Thousands of locusts are making their appearance in this city and vicinity daily. Every blade of grass can almost coast its locust inhabitant.

— The Cincinnati Enquirer says: During the heavy storm of Thursday the lightning followed the telegraph wires into the office, bursting the magnet, scorching the window sill, and setting fire to a bundle of paper on one of the tables. The walls were also considerably blackened and scorched.

— ELIZA STRANG, the Mormon leader from Beaver Island, and three of his associates, reached Detroit on the 26th of May last by the U. S. steamer Michigan, in charge of the U. S. Marshal. They are to be tried in the U. S. District Court for their recent disturbance in their community.

— The Canal Enlargement Election in the State of New York has resulted, from present appearances, in the choice of seven enlargement and five anti-enlargement senators.

— GEORGE THOMPSON, the English abolitionist, in a speech to the anti-slavery convention at Boston last week, on the subject of the American Colonization Society, denounced it as the spawn of two abominations—the church and the devil. A handbill calling on the people to drive him from the city was, very properly, not taken notice of.

— A reward of $500 has been offered at Boston for the arrest of James McNally, who stabbed Mr. Charles S. Smith, of that city, on the 16th ultimo, causing his death on Monday of last week. McNally is an Irishman, about 45 years old, and is supposed to have fled to New York.

— No less than five vessels which arrived at New York on Friday, from Atlantic voyages, had met large icebergs in the vicinity of the coast. These ice mountains may have had some effect on the coldness of the weather.

— At Lexington, Ky., a man named Castle, having walked up to one Carpenter and taken a pin from his lappel, without asking leave, the latter took it as an insult, and shot him dead.

— Captain Williams, of New York, has been tried in Princess Anne county, Va., for negro stealing, and acquitted. David H. Bright, charged with a similar offence, was undergoing examination.

— The Steubenville Herald says: Sheep shearing is now progressing in Washington county, Pa., but the flocks there do not show an average increase this year. In this county, Jefferson, the contrary will be the result.

— Mr. Geo. Piper, a respectable farmer of Path Valley, Franklin county, committed suicide on Friday, the 16th inst., by hanging himself in his barn. He was nearly sixty years of age, and in comfortable circumstances, No cause is assigned for the act.

— Mr. A. J. Galloway, secretary of the resident trustee of the Illinois and Michigan canal, has been appointed one of the resident Engineers of the Illinois Central Rail Road. By this appointment, the Company gains an efficient assistant, and we lose a valuable citizen.

☞ The expense to the city of New York of receiving and entertaining the President and Cabinet on their passage through that city to attend the Erie Railroad celebration, was $1,850.

— A man named Jacob Near was killed on the Auburn and Syracuse Railroad, on Wednesday week last, while crossing the track with a horse and wagon, near the Vernon station. His age was 65 years.

— There are already counterfeit $10's on the new Bank of Chemung, N. Y. They are entirely harmless, as the Bank has not issued any bills of that denomination.

Rappings in a Grave Yard.

The Cleveland Plaindealer, of Saturday last, relates the following:

A happy little incident, trifling, perhaps, except to the few who participated in it, occurred the other day in this city, and which we relate, not so much to the hope of making an unbelieving world the wiser, as to make the believing few better.

Whoever visits our beautiful cemetery on the Sabbath day, will find throngs of our citizens in attendance among the tombs. Among the crowd the other day, there happened to be Dr. W., and he was accompanied by Mr. Fish the celebrated Spirit Medium. The first grave visited was that of the Doctor's two little daughters, buried some years ago. They had lain without a special memorial to mark their remains, but affection, and the frequent visits of the parents had effectually marked the spot, to them at least. The company had also halted but a moment, and were discussing the propriety of inscribing something more public to their memory, when the well known Spirit Raps were heard. It was a call for the alphabet, and in answer to the questions, "What shall be written on your tombstone?" the following sentence was spelled:

A Memento sacred to the memory of those you love."

The company tarried a while, and as night was approaching started to leave, when the raps were again heard, and the following tender capitals spelled:

"Good night dear Father and dear Mother."

This so overcome the parents that they fell to weeping, and again the little rappers called for the alphabet. This was an unexpected scene and an untried place to Mrs. Fish, who with tears in her eyes and a trembling voice repeated the letters of the alphabet, and the following sentence closed the grave yard interview.

"You must not weep for us dear father and dear mother—we are very happy."

To the uninitiated in spiritual mysteries, and to the uneducated in the new theory, this will appear like a fairy tale, "to the Greeks foolishness, to the Jews a stumbling block;" but to the real believers in this doctrine, it will be, like manna in the wilderness, and to them we dedicate it.

General Jackson.

A correspondent of the Washington Union relates the following anecdote of the great and good JACKSON:

"The Hon. and Rev. ————, who as a Baptist preacher and lieutenant governor, had at one and the same time been in the service of the Lord and of the State of Illinois, becoming dissatisfied with the honors or profits, or both, of the post he held, determined to resign them, and devote his time and talents to the assistance of the administration in carrying on the general government of the country. Accordingly, he came to Washington, and laid his case before the President. He stated his pretensions and his wishes, narrated at some length all the prominent events of his political life, dwelling especially upon his untiring devotion to the democratic party, the sacrifices he had submitted to; the exertions he had made in its behalf, and its consequent indebtedness to him, but said not a word of what he had done for the cause of religion. General Jackson heard the clerical aspirant through in silence, and, after musing for a moment, put the following question to him: 'Mr K., are you not a minister of the gospel?' 'I am, sir,' was the reply.—'Then, sir,' said the General with his usual quiet dignity, 'You hold already a higher office than any in my gift—an office whose sacred duties, properly performed, require your whole attention; and really I think the best that I can do for you will be to leave you at liberty to devote your whole time to them; for, from what you tell me, I fear that hitherto they have been somewhat neglected.'"

THE STRIPED PIG IN ILLINOIS.—The Legislature of Illinois passed a law to prohibit the retailing of intoxicating drinks within that State. At Springfield some genius has hit upon a novel way of supplying his customers with the critter in defiance of the law. Thus:

"The premises consist of a room divided by a partition into two apartments. Upon entering the first apartment, a square opening, and it is the only one, is discovered several feet from the ground in the partition wall. Immediately before this opening, in the second apartment, a number of glasses, labelled 'rum,' 'gin,' 'whiskey,' &c., are standing upon a table. Upon a picayune being dropped into one of these glasses, the table begins to turn upon its axis, and by the time it has made horizontal revolution, the glass is filled with the liquor indicated, and stands in its original position."

The Mayor and Marshal of the city have examined said "premises" closely, without being able to find any "man, woman, or child" acting as salesman, or of discovering the means by which the "table" is turned. And up to the last accounts the thing was still in operation.

Origin of Tammany Hall.

The New York Herald gives the following history of Tammany Hall:

A few years prior to the revolution there existed many British clubs or societies, such as the St. George's, St. David's, St. Andrew's, &c., not only in this city, but St. George societies were opened in all the maritime towns and cities of the colonies. The members of these societies were all liege subjects of King George. In 1773, when disaffection to the mother country (as Great Britain was then called) began to spread through her North American colonies, those opposed to the relations that existed, found it necessary to form some rallying point, in order to ascertain or combine their own strength. This was the origin of the St. Tammany Society, or Columbian Order, and its operations were secret, and directed against torylism, until after the revolution. It then directed its power against federalism, and that party that inherited, to a certain extent, the men and principles of the '79 tories.

It has more of the power and characteristic of a national institution than of a local one, and in times of trial has wielded a terrible power throughout the federal Union. There are members of the order from every State, and have been from its commencement. Its sachems are thirteen, computing with the thirteen original States that formed the Union. Its banners are thirteen, each having the name and coat of arms of these old thirteen States emblazoned upon it. On its books are enrolled some of the most prominent dead and living statesmen of the democratic party, such as De Witt Clinton, Aaron Burr, Daniel D. Tompkins, Andrew Jackson, R. M. Johnson, Martin Van Buren, Dixon H. Lewis, and a host of the planets, stars, and small lights of the great republican party, comprising about 4,000 names. There are perhaps 600 now living. Of these, about 150 generally meet at the annual election. This year 183 voted.

The Tammany Society own the building known as Tammany Hall, which is worth $100,000. The sachems vote all the appropriations and collect the revenue. No man can be a sachem or other officer without being a member. The grand sachem is elected by the sachems from their own ranks. The sachems hold great power. If they are united they can unite the sections of the democracy, and prevent any party from meeting in the hall, but such as they endorse and consider the regular democracy. Although the general committee elected by the eighteen wards, appear to be the power that regulates the democracy, yet it is not so. "There is a power behind the throne greater than the throne itself," and that power is the sachems of Old Tammany.

How to make Vinegar.

There are many great notions entertained among our farmers about making vinegar. The grand old plan was to put out cider or water and molasses in a cask to the sun, and expose it to the luminary with a bottle in the bung-hole. There are still as many ideas entertained about making cider as there are about making soft soap, and luck is frequently held to be the umpire who decides whether it will be vinegar or no vinegar.

The reason why cider or other fluid mixtures change their nature and become vinegar, is owing to a transformation of the particles, and then a separation of one or more, and a combination of others. The oxygen of the atmosphere, although it is not now, as was once believed to be, the only acidifier, still it is the great one, and vinegar is formed by the cider parting with its carbonic acid gas, which it cannot do without absorbing oxygen. In a reasonable way, then, to make vinegar rapidly and surely, is to expose the cider as much as possible to the atmosphere. The new way, and what is supposed by many to be a patent way to make vinegar, is to let the cider percolate over a very exposed surface. This is the way they do it in the vinegar manufactory. The apartment where it is made is freely exposed to the air, and is kept at a temperature of about 60 degrees. The cider is left to run in small streams into troughs with bottoms full of small holes; then from that over very fine wood shavings such as soft maple; and let these be fully exposed to the air, and resting on a slatted bottom made of clean bows or lathes, below which the vessel for receiving it should be placed. Vinegar can be made from molasses and water, grapes, corn stalks, beet roots, and many other substances by this process in a few days. Cider, however, makes the best vinegar. Many modifications (for cheapness) of the above plan may be resorted to, the grand secret being the exposure of the liquids to be changed into vinegar in layers or strata to the action of the atmosphere. There is not a farmer but with a cask, an old tub, and a few shavings, could make good vinegar in one fifth of the period now required by the common plans in use for that purpose. In those vinegar factories introduced here by French capitalists, the plans adopted are those we have narrated. Scientific American.

$30,000 for the Railroad.

We learn that a telegraphic dispatch was received in this city on Monday, announcing that the subscription of $30,000 to the capital stock of the Steubenville and Indiana Railroad, by the township to which Coshocton is situated, had been carried last Saturday by an unanimous vote. This may be viewed as some evidence of the spirit that is abroad along that section of the line of the road.

The auspices under which this great improvement goes under contract are peculiarly favorable.—There is not on the least doubt but that, when votes shall have been taken in four other townships in Coshocton county, and one township in Harrison county, there will be available stock sufficient for the graduation, masonry and bridging. The most careful and complete surveys have been made, which will be the means of avoiding mistakes and delay. These things fairly considered and it will be seen that the prospect of an early completion of the road and cars running between the Ohio and Lake shall have been in greater haste to place a portion or the whole of it under contract. It is evident that deliberate and wise councils have prevailed.—Steubenville Messenger, Tuesday.

"STICK TO HIM, JIMMY" Two brothers from the Emerland Isle, a few days since, purchased a piece of land not far from the Kennebec, and went to work to clear it up. After cutting down the large growth and burning over the underbrush, they proceeded to contrive a plan to get the fallen trunks together in a pile for the purpose of burning also.—The land lay upon a side hill, and they concluded that if they could roll a large log which lay near the summit, and place it about half way down they might pile the rest against it, and thus secure the object. But how were they to prevent it, when once under way, from rolling to the bottom, and thus defeating their plan? To accomplish this they obtained a rope, and making one end fast to the log, one of them was to hold on to the other end to prevent its going too far, while the other was to start it.—Fearing that he might not be able to prevent the rope from slipping through his fingers, Jimmy, who was the steersman, tied it to his body. "Start him my Pheelim," said he, after convincing himself that all was right and tight. Pheelim did start him and as the log commenced its progress, the rope caught in a projecting knot, and began rapidly to wind up. It soon drew poor Jimmy chock up. First he went over the log, and the log went over him, and so they continued their circumgyrations and Somersets. Pheelim watched their progress for a moment, and then sang out, "Stick to him, Jimmy; faith you're a match for him! You're atop half the time."

A Sofa Made of Coal.

The Fife Advertiser, referring to one particular characteristic of the coal found in that district, which can be converted into articles of furniture, such as looking-glass frames, writing desks, chairs and tables, states that Mr. William Williamson is at present engaged in making a sofa wholly composed of coal. It is nine feet long, with three compartments or divisions, and is sufficient to contain seven people sitting on it. The front standards are beautifully carved, displaying three mongrel animals, which forcibly remind the spectator of those richly carved figures that appear so frequently in Dr. Layard's remains of ancient Babylon. This rare geological curiosity was ordered by General Wemyss, and it is highly probable that it will appear at the great exhibition, as it was ordered to be finished previous to that time; and as the general holds an appointment in the Queen's household, it may yet be transferred from the Crystal Palace to the palace of her Majesty.

— HON. JOHN C. SPENCER has denies in a card that he has been made, or knows anything of his being made Commissioner to settle Land Titles in California. There must be, he adds, some mistake.

— WHITING SHELDON, of Belcherstown, was killed by the freight train on the Western Railroad about six miles east of Springfield, Mass., on Thursday afternoon week.

THE DISAPPOINTED BELLE.

BY FINLEY JOHNSON.

Alas! O my! I wonder why
The men have noted so;
For though I've tried, on ev'ry side,
I cannot get a beau;
It cannot be, that they think me,
Too old to be a belle;
For I declare, I take great care
My age to never tell.

And then with zeal, I dress genteel
And have a lump of bran;
Also a waist, which men of taste,
With easiness may span;
And then I talk, when out I walk,
The hours to beguile;
And strive to show, how much I know,
About the latest style.

And oft I stray, adown Broadway,
The gentlemen to meet;
And lavish smiles (those women's wiles)
When any one I greet;
But though I've tried my shame to hide,
Yet any one can tell;
That 'tis my lot, to be forgot—
A disappointed belle!

For 'tis too true, that men pursue,
And on those girls all dote;
Who have the dimes, in these hard times
To raise a doubtful note;
'Tis a plain thing, a belle wont ring,
With sense and brass alone;
For I declare, some golden ware
Must give the pleasant tone.

Then I'll depart, and make a start,
For here's no place to tarry;
And these 'ere states, are no great shakes
For a poor girl to marry;
I'll cast my lot, in that far spot,
Where there are lots of dimes,
And end my life, in marriage-strife,
In California's mines.

The Valley of the Geysers.

Professor Forrest Shepard, in a letter to the Evening Picayune of San Francisco, gives the following graphic description of a remarkable valley discovered by him in the coast range of the Napa Valley. Another account says that Professor Shepard intends to claim part of the valley, and plant tropical trees in the hot soil.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In answer to your inquiry respecting the Geyser fountains on Pluton river, permit me to say that my attention was first arrested at the remarkably peaceful and quiet thermal springs in Napa valley by the wonderful metamorphism of the rocks. It occurred to me that the springs, or the chemical action causing them, might have been instrumental in producing this change. On diligent inquiry, I learned that the Indians knew of a place where the heat was much greater formerly than now. I was led to believe this from the fact that the springs of Messrs. Ritchie Tucker varied their temperature four or five degrees in the space of three or four weeks. I next visited the place indicated by the Indians, and found a perfectly tranquil externally, and nothing on the surface to attract special attention. But, on digging down about two feet, I found that the heat increased so rapidly that I could not bear my hand in the earth. I inserted the bulb of my thermometer, and the mercury instantly rose to one hundred and twenty degrees of Fahrenheit.

From observations already made in company with Professor James Nooney, I was led to believe to a transformation of the particles, a change in the separation of one or more, and a combination of others. The oxygen of the atmosphere, although it is not now, as was once believed to be, the only acidifier, still it is the great one, and vinegar is formed by the cider parting with its carbonic acid gas, which it cannot do without absorbing oxygen. In a reasonable way, then, to make vinegar rapidly and surely, is to expose the cider as much as possible to the atmosphere. Consumption's Premonitories.

Are Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Bronchitis, tightness of the Chest, pain in the left side, low fever, and many other symptoms of like character. Then come Tubercles in the Lungs, disorganization, prostration of the physical powers, and soon the scene closes. That they will sweep when too late, let the friends of the sick be vigilant at the outset. When the first symptoms of Pulmonary disease are manifested, administer Dr. Rogers' Syrup of Liverwort, Tar and Canchalagua. That its effects have been all but miraculous even in extreme cases, we have testimony which incredibility itself can scarcely doubt. TRY IT. But first read the evidence. You will find it in the pamphlet in every Agent's hands. Look at the advertisement, too, in another column. [my9

The Long Looked For

Specific for Pulmonary Disease is found at last! A man must doubt the evidence of his senses, and all his inner integrity, before he can reasonably question the proof advanced in favor of Dr. Rogers' Syrup of Liverwort, Tar and Canchalagua, as an anti-febrile and medicine, which at once reduces all Pulmonary Inflammation, expels the cause of the disease, and builds up and strengthens the system. The heads of our Colleges, the Clergy, the Medical Faculty, and citizens of all classes have, over their own signatures, attested its powerful remedial properties, and in the pamphlet to be had of the Agents, as well as in the columns of the public press, the most positive and satisfactory evidence will be found. See advertisement. my10

☞ Scrofula.—It has been remarked by eminent men, that in the varied catalogue of diseases to which man is liable, there is scarcely one of such importance and of such interest as Scrofula, whether we look to the obscurity of its origin, its insidious progress, the number and variety of organs that it attacks, or its remarkable incurability and extensive fatality.

Scrofula has baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians in this country and in Europe. But there is an antidote in this disease in "Dr. Guysott's Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla," which is proving itself a specific in the most severe cases of Scrofula.
