It appears by the Hartford Courant that Mr. McCardy our Minister at Vienna, has written home a statement of the facts in this case. From the representations made to Mr. McCardy by the Austrian authorities, it would appear that Mr B. must undergo a regular trial. Our Minister observes that he has been promised by the high-est authority that nothing harsh or unjust shall befall him. An investigation has been made in Vienne of his character and pursuit while there ment of capital in manufactures to such excess that when changed it brings distress, bankruptoy, and ruin upon all who have been misled by its Vienna of his character and pursuits while there and that has been favorable to his final release? ## Living with Others.

If you would be loved as a companion, avoid unnecessary criticism upon those with whom you live. The number of people who have taken out judge's patents for themselves is very large in any society. Now it would be hard for a man to live with another who was always criticising his actions, even if it were kindly and just criticism. It would be like living between the glasses of a microscope. But these self-elected judges, like their prototypes, are very apt to have the persons they judge brought before them in the guise of culprit. One of the most provoking forms of the criti-cism above alluded to, is that which may be called criticism over the shoulder. "Had I been onsulted," "had you listened to me," "but you always will," and such short scraps of sentences may remind many of us of dissertations which we have suffered and inflicted, and of which we cannot call to mind any soothing effect. Another rule is not to let familiarity swallow
