the kitchen, which they called a settee; it answered the purpose of a wood-box and sofa in the winter evenings, and being painted bright red and varnished, it looked like a good-natured laughing face in front of the fire. On this the children used to sit for hours and listen to cousin Marion's enchanting stories, which were usu ally in the thrilling realities of history, dressed in her own glowing thoughts. Sometimes she recited an old fairy tale, or some wild legend of early times, but to-night the white-plumed dove lay lovingly by her side, and her eyes rested sadly on its trembling breast, as it muttered those low moning sounds which nothing on earth equals in plaintive sadness. Marion's heart beat time in the mournful notes, for there were noble feelings striving against her woman's fearfulness; thoughts of the poor sufferers in that wild storm, of their peril, and it might be their

She rose resolutely and said, "I'm going to find those beggars," and as she spoke she began to wrap her shawl around her, while her lovely face glowed with courageous feeling.

While they were hastily wrapping coats and cloaks around them, we will follow the beggars on their lonely path.

'I know it," she said sadly; "we have no house anywhere."

Oh, how mournfully those simple words were en, bearing the tale of a young heart crushed and blighted, of young hopes chilled forever. It touched even the heart of the hardened father, and he drew his motherless child close to his side, muttering "poor dove, poor Isabel". Ar, the poor beggar girl bore that name; and she had graced it in happier days, when her father was, an honored and trusted man; when the noblest rum had ruined a god-like intellect, and wasted princely fortune. It was dark now in those forsaken hearts even as on God's earth, and their path was lost; faster came down the blinding snow, and in their utter desolation, the wanderers at last sat down, un able to proceed, and weary with exertion. And now the neglected Isabel lay folded in the bosom of her father whose fallen fortunes she had devotedly shared, and the tears fell from his eyes on her pale face. "Isabel, darling, can you forgive me for depriving you of love and home-

No, 'tis not a star, 'tis a light, and there are sounding footsteps and cheerful voices near. The father roused himself at her hurried words, but they were too nearly exhausted to call for help. Marion heard a faint cry as of one perishing, it was just like the mouning of a dove.
"Here, Richard, this way with the lantern," she exclaimed, as she bounded over the snowrift by which the wanderers lay. They saw a bright face bending tenderly over them, and felt that life was theirs. Marion seemed suddenly gifted with skill and energy to restore them, and wild cousin in the snow-wreathed figure, before them. A Lesson of Mortality.

How awfully solemn is the lesson of mortality taught us in the death of two young maidens—one the pride of a widowed mother, the only link connected her with the living, and the dead the other the centre of affection in a loving household—both budding into womanhood with all the hopes and joyousness of unclouded youth—and both are gone. Weeping friends have gathered about their dying couch—fond lips have pressed their marble brows—and in yonder grave yard rests their dust till the morning of the re How beautifully appropriate are the words of

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION.

By the mails of Saturday and Sunday we hav eceived full accounts of the late movement of the Patriots. The fourth of July was agreed upon among them as the time when they would strike for freedom and independence; and the men of Puerto Principe obtained the honor o commencing the struggle. The demonstration was to be commenced at three different places; and at each of these, twenty young men, previously selected for the purpose, attacked one of the posts at the gate of the city, and took possession of it. hoisting the free flag of Cuba over it. In case these little bands should be attacked by superior numbers, they were to fall back upon a larger body of patriots, stationed at a convenient distance from the point of attack. An extract of a letter to Gen. Lorez, at New

It is said that the Governor of the Central De partment, Limerich, was killed in the fight which report seems confirmed by the fact that General Manzano is in command of the troops. The cry of Independance was given at 3 o'clock n the morning in the streets of Puerto Principe, by twenty men, who, as soon as they found ther selves attacked by largely superior forces fell back in good order upon the camp of the Pahundred Cubans and two hundred Americans were waiting for them. It is said that as soon as they hear from two other points, which were t sounce on the same day, they were to leave their retreats and commence operations. The feeling here for freedom is universal and the determination firm. All the young mer of the first families will join the ranks of the We, at first, lacked money to begin the struggle; but since the news from Principe, we have raised a large sum. We are now, all right, and by eight o'clock to-movrow night, we hope, t have given the grito, (pronunciamento), for so we have arranged.

for more troops: that, in Las Tunas, the Gover-nor armed one-hundred and fifty countrymen, to go in pursuit of the insurgents, and that they had gone over to our side, together with two companies of Isabel Legunda's Regiment. Later accounts state, that on the 16th of July, comfortably placed in the sleigh, while the rest followed in the track homeward. James would not give up his rescued charge, and leaning on his strong arm, with cousin Marion's every joyous words of hope in her ear, Isabel felt like was taken prisoner, together with several officers. was taken prise oner, together with several offi cers and a large number of soldiers; one huncers and a large number of soldiers; one nun-dred and fifty were shot, and fifty drowned, the rest escaped. The Najaza, though commonly a small stream, is now swollen into a large and rapid torrent, overflowing its banks, owing to the rainy season, which now prevails all over the island. A large quantity of ammunition, arms, &c., were lost, together with two field pieces of artillery.

The attack and taking of the town of Las Tu nas, (Prickled Pear,) by the patriots, is confirmed, together with the formation of a provisional government at that place, the first act of which, t is said, we shall receive accounts of by the next arrival.

The formation of the guerilla party of one hundred men, in the district of Guamutas, (near Cardenas, in the western department,) is confirmed. The patriot chief, Mancebo, is the com-mander. This party had been joined by the small garrison of Spanish troops stationed at the town of Palmillas, (Small Palms). At the latest dates, Mancebo's guerilla numbered over two hundred men. The formation of a guerilla in the Haciends language of her own bright heart the Dove of San Juan, twelve miles from the port of Santa Cruz, on the south side of the island, is confirmed. The chief of this guerilla is the brave patriot, Don Manuel Nunez, and thus far he had not been molested by the Spanish troops. It is false that he has surrendered. When the Isabel left Havana, the following rumors were in circula tion:—That the city of Holguin, south side, in the eastern department, had pronounced against the government, the colonel of the regiment that garrisoned the place having placed himself at the head of the movement. The city of Barecoa, north side, eastern de partment, has also pronounced for liberty.

The steamer from Trinidad which ought to have arrived at Batauano on the 21st July, had not arrived when the Isabel left, which makes i probable that the reported rising at Trinidad is true. Batabano is opposite Havana, on the south side of the island. There is a railroad running across the island, between those two claces. Distance forty miles—time 21 hours. The city of Trinidad is on the south side, central department, and 270 miles from Havana. These certificates were of course to be recorded in a book provided for the purpose, in order to gain statistical information concerning the diseases, deaths, &c., of this city. For the convonience of both physicians and superintendents of cemeteries, the document, above referred to, intimates that our physicians would soon be supplied with blank copies of these intent of the cemetery or burying place in which Mn. These regulations. I am free to admit, are perfeetly just and right, but I am sorry to say that they have not been fully enforced. The board, I think, has been derelict in its duty, and it is not considered improper to thus publicly noti-fy its members of the fact. The physicians have not been supplied with printed forms of certificates, although they have been waiting anxiously for them, and the super-intenents of burying places have not demanded the physician's certificate previous to the inter-ment of the dead in their grounds, thus violating vertising patronage, extended to him by the busi-ness men of Pittsburgh, for whose kindness he quired at the different places of burial, the farther writing of them was dispensed with.

These facts show that the Board have been somewhat negligent of its duty, 1st, in not supplying the physicians with blank forms of certificates; and 2nd, in not seeing that the law which were made for the public good, especially in reference to cemetaries, have been enforced. The Board, we think, is of little use if it cannot enforce its requirements. It is a matter of great interest to our citizens to know the number of our deaths, the age at, and the disease with which we die, and if our Board of Health wishes to find out and impart to us this interesting information, and thus di-rectly assist in the discovery of the great laws of health and disease, it should strictly enforce its requisitions in reference to the cemeteries, and have the facts thus elicited made public.

TIP Dr. Guyzott's Improved Extract of YELLOW DOCK AND SARSAPARILLA—Put up in the largest sized bottles, contains more of the pure itorations are aparilled than any other preparation extann, which is chemically combined with the Extract of Yellow Dock and the Extract of Wild Cherry thus making the remedy more thoroughly efficient than any other Sarsaparilla before the public. At the same time, it is perfectly free from all mineral poisons, which cannot be said of any other of the Sarsaparilla compounds. The invalid should beware of peisons. Mecrory, Iron, Quinine, Potash, Iodine, Saiphur. Arseme, and many other mineral and metall e poisons en er into not form the active basis of most of the Sarsaparilla and Panaceas of the day. Guyzott's Compound Extract of Yellow Bock and Sarsaparilla does not contain a particle of these substances, as any one can ascersin by a plying the substances, as any one can accerate by engineers and necessary tests.

Let all poisonous Saraparilla preparations alone, and use Gayzott's improved Extract of Ytllow Dock and Sarsaparilla which is thoroughly efficarions, perfectly harmless and purely vegetable. All kinds of disease yield to its genial inducate.

ID The professional merits of JAMES S. CRAFT, Esq., have pointed out such general attention to his name as the candidate most certain to be successful in the election to the Presidency of the Common Pleastati has been hitherto deemed unnecessary to present his name through the Press for nomination by the Democratic Couvention. As a tracticel man of business he has no superior in the State, as may be known by his measures in the Legislature of Penns Ivanin, in the disastrous winters of 1829, 39 and 31. His experience as a mercantile and manufacturing lawyer, insurance agent, and auditor and master in chancery, and familiar acquaintance with legal practice and eventon to hindy, gave him in 1846 the almost unanimous recommendation of the Pattsburgh Bar for the Supreme Court, and eminently qualify him for the office in question, which require his peculiar working abilities to fill.

Dr. worth, Medical Examiner. 1912:yi disease in children is the unhealthiness of parents. It would be just as reasonable to expect a rich crop from a burren soil as that strong and healthy children should be born of parents whose constitutions have been worn of parents whose constitutions have been worn out with intemperance and disease. A sickly frame may be originally induced by hardships, necidens, or intemperance, but chiefly by the latter. It is impossible that a course of vice or impradence should not spoil the best constitution; and did the evil terminate here, it would be a just punishment for the folly of the transgressor. But not so, For, when once a disease is contracted, and through neglect in applying the proper means it becomes rivited in the hablt, it is then entailed upon posterity. Permale constitutions are as capable of improvement as family estates—and ye who would wish to improve, not only your own health, but that of your own offspring, by cradicating the many distressing diseases that are entailed through neglect or imprudence, lose no time in paritying the blood, for how many diseases are transmitted to purify their blood, for how many diseases are transmitted to posterity.
