Baron Lerne, in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says. "An artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the nucons membrane of the stomach of the calf, in which vorious articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be so softened, changed and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

Dr. Perenna, in his famous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Fowlers & Wells, New York, page 35-states the same great fact, and describes the method of preparation. There are few higher authorities than Dr. Pereira. DRESS GOODS of every description, from the cheaprassengers from the Old Country on is avoidable as any other House in the City.

Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastrie Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyapepsia;" and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding everything else to fail, had recourse to the Gastrie Juice, obtained from the stomach of living animals, which proved completely enccessful."

"Dr. Gahlam, author of the famous works on "Vegetable Diet," says: "It is a remarkable fact in physiology, that the stomach of animals, macerated in water, impart to the fluid the property of dissolving various articles of food, and of effecting a kind of artificial digestion of them in no wise different from the natural digestion of them in no wise different from the natural digestion of them in no wise different from the natural digestive process."

Dr. Smon's great work, the "Chemistry of Man;" Lee & Blanchard, Phila., 1846, pp. 321-23 says: "The discovery of PEPSIN forms a new era in the chemical history of Digestion. From recent experiments we know that food is dissolved, as rapidly in an artificial digestive fluid, prepared from Pepsin, as it is in the natural Gustric Juice itself."
