L. HARPER, Sec'y. We have barely room to call the attenthe able and eleganent Address of the Democratic State Central Committee, which we publish in this day's paper. Let every friend of Pennsylvania and of the Union give this Address a careful perusal. Another Glorious Meeting in favor of th Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad The Rooms of the Board of Trade were crowd ed last night by our citizens to hear the report of the committee appointed at a previous meeting to visit Philadelphia. GEORGE DARSIE, Esq., and Capt CHARLES NAYLOR, two of that commit tee, give the result of their visit, and spoke of the kindness and courtesy shown them in Philaadelphia, and the good feeling which prevails in that city concerning the Pittsburgh, Steuben ville and Columbus Railroad. Mr. Peter Livingston, of Florence, made a very sensible speech in favor of this great route to the West. We give a short report of his remarks in another part of this morning's paper. The meeting last night was uncommonly en Pittsburgh are wide awake on the subject of making a Railroad to Steubenville, there to unite with the road to Columbus and Cincinuati. There is now but one feeling pre-

The election for Judicial officers in the State of Missouri, on Monday week, terminated, so far as heard from, as follows: Messrs. Gamble, Napton and Ryland are elected by the State at large as Judges of the Supreme Court. In the city and county of St. Louis, Judge Hamilton, the present incumbent, is elected Circuit Judge; Judge Treat to the Court of Common Pleas, and Judge Colt as Judge of the Criminal Court. nent interference with one another; or else the harmony which is necessary to the perpetuity o the Union, will be broken up and destroyed. When kindness of feeling, and confidence in one another, have once disappeared, the Union wil not last very long—for it cannot possibly be held together by force or fear. The Czar of Russia may tame his Polanders with the knout—the Emperor of Austria may reduce Hungary to submission by murdering men and scourging women—and the British Government may keep Ireland in subjection by starvation and the bayonet—but if the States of this Union cannot remain united, without such appliances, they will inevitably separate. We are united by moral ties-not held in reluctant conne name of our common father, the great Washing ton-our recollection of the revolutionary bloo that was mingled together in the same fields, by the men of all sections—our love of liberty—

The same feeling which exists here in regard to this great work, and most direct and central our pride of empire—the boundless commercial prosperity which the Union will give us, and the shuddering consciousness that an unspeakable ruin awaits us if that Union is broken up and when these are once severed, the Union will cease to exist, as surely as the planetary system would fall into confusion if the law of attraction were annihilated. To preserve them in all their force is the most sacred duty we owe to ourselves, to our countrymen, and to our chil-

States, while in the Southern States the people have not determined to abolish it. This difference in our domestic institutions has given rise to discussions which, at different times, have threatened us with serious danger. The people MR. EDITOR:—There can be no more import-ant question before the next Democratic County that Providence has thrown the whole responsibility of dealing with that difficult and dangerous subject upon the States where it exists. We annot intermeddle in it without violating the United States Government, Executive and Legisconstitution, and, if we could, we would not. The north has the numerical force which enables er, at all times, to control every branch of the lative. We ought, therefore, to behave with the magnanimity which becomes the stronger party. If nothing else would prevent us from taking an unworthy advantage of our strength, a proper sense of self-respect and dignity should restrain us. The south is powerless for any purpose of aggression upon us, and has no protection but the Constitution, unless she resorts to a revoutionary remedy. Nevertheless, there have been men among us, who, not regarding their constitutional duty, but taking counsel of their evil passions, have lent all their energies to the kindling of excitement against the south. Coarse vituperation against all southern men, and abusive epithets, arshly dealt upon all northern men, who ventured to put in a plea for their constitutional rights, was the fashion of these politicians. The southern people, in consequence of these inces-sant and bitter assaults, were in a state of high lexico. A vast territory had been conquered, t the expense of southern, as well as northern, blood and treasure. The contest which then came on in Congress, was long, angry and doubtful. The boldest men feared, and the wisest ould not forsce what might happen. But a ompromise was at length effected. romise consisted of five distinct measures, all f which, except one, gave the advantage to the pponents of slavery and the south. Let us numerate them: 1. California was admitted into the Union with Constitution prohibiting slavery, notwithstanding all complaints of irregularity and unjustifiable extension of her boundaries.

2. Utah and New Mexico were organized into erritories, without any change in the existing law, which forbade slavery.

3. Congress agreed to purchase from Texas a large part of her territory, for the consideration of ten millions of dollars, and thus removed the territory, so purchased, from the jurisdiction of a slave State.

4. A law was passed abolishing the slave rade in the District of Columbia. 5. The fugitive slave law was passed. None of these laws, except the last one, was any advantage to the South, or calculated to do the South any service. The fugitive slave law they asked for in return, and it was granted to them, solely because they were entitled to it by the express words of the Constitution. To prevent any mistake, we will transcribe from that sacred instrument the section which relates to this subject. "No person held to labor or service in one State under the laws thereof escaping into another, shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein be discharged from such service or labor, but shall BE DELIVERED UP on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due." Surely no part of the Constitution is more plainly written than this, nor no duty more clearly defined, or more easily understood, than that which it imposes. When it is recollected that a law for the execution of this provision was all we gave the South, it seems like an insult to the people to doubt that they will stand by the bargain in all honesty and good In order to understand fully the importance of this issue, it must be remembered that in most of the southern States the old party lines have been nearly altogether obliterated, and the people have divided into the Union and secession parties. The Union men assert their con-fidence in the justice and honor of the north, and their belief that we will stand by the Compromise, and permit the Constitution to be executed. The secessionists, on the other hand, base their opposition to the Union on the supposed treachery of the north, and declare the opinion, that the fugitive slave law will be so opposed, and its repeal or modification so loudly demanded, that they cannot hope for quiet, or peace or justice, according to the measure the Constitution. The Union party is now the majority in all the States except South Carolina; but their enemies and the enemies of the Union, will overwhelm them with defeat, if we demonstrate to them, that our loyalty to the Constitution, and our submission to the terms of the compromise, cannot be relied on. No wonder that all friends of the Union, whether

Resolved, That had these vital principles of Democracy been faithfully observed in the administration of the National Government since the advent of the Whigs to power on the 4th f March, 1849, we should not now witness the spirit of discord and alienation which at present prevails between the North and South, on the question of domestic slavery—threatening as it does eventually to dissolve the Union. Nor should we have to deplore the enormous appropriations of public money, approaching in a time of peace to the war standard of expenditure, and endangering an entail upon our pos-terity of the fatal incubus of a permanent na-

Resolved, That the Democratic party of Pennsylvania are frue to the Union, the Constitution and the laws, and will faithfully observe and execute, so far as in them lies, all the measures of compromise adopted by the late Congress, for the purpose of settling the question arising out of domestic slavery, and this not only from a sense of duty as good citizens of the republic, but also from the kind and fraternal feelings which they cherish towards their brethern of the slaveholding States.

Resolved, That in Col. William Bigler, our candidate for Governor, we recognize a long-tried, able and faithful Democrat, in whom there is no guile, and a man, who by his own preeminent merit, has risen to the exalted position which he now holds in the affection and respect of his fellow citizens. We hall him as the worthy representative and chosen standardworthy representative and chosen standard-bearer of our great and glorious principles, and pledge ourselves to do battle for the cause of Democracy under his banner, until we shall achieve a signal victory and redeem the Keystone State from the misrule of its present Whig Resolved, That we will cordially support the election of Seth Clover, as Canal Com believing him to be an able, honest and incor ruptible Democrat, and well qualified to discharge the duties of that important and highly responsible office.

The refused to pledge their titional support of the furitional support of the furesolution was offered to a voted down by a large indidate for Governor who posed to it. Gov. John-of January, 1851, took it. In his speech before ion he declared that if he Congress he would have went still further, and exact it ought to be so change at it ought to be so change consonant to the wishes acceptable to them, and truth, justice and the restitution. These are the nequivocal and emphatic language. On the other hand, the Whig Convention which met at Lancaster, refused to pledge their treatened us with serious danger. The people of Pennsylvania have never lent a favorable ear of the abolition agitators. We are thankful that we have nothing to do with slavery and majority.

They nominated a candidate for Governor who was, and is, openly opposed to it. Gove Johnston, in his message of January, 1851, took strong ground against it. In his speech before the Lancaster Convention he declared that if he had been a member of Congress he would have had been a member of Congress he would have voted against it. He went still further, and expressed the opinion that it ought to be so changed as to make it "more consonant to the wishes of the people, more acceptable to them, and more comformable to truth, justice and the requirements of the Constitution." These are the strong words in which he has chosen to assert that the law is false, unjust and unconstitutional—for that is the substance of his denunciation of it. We do not pretend to know what he means by the allegation that it is not "conformable to truth." That Washington approved a law in 1793 identical with this in principle, is some authority in favor of its justice, and the solemn decision of every judicial tribunal where the question has been raised, ought to settle its constitutionality. But Mr. Johnston is opposed to it, and, for his opposition, he has thought proper to give absurd reasons rather than tone.

thought proper to give absurd reasons rather When we speak of Gov. Johnston's opposition to this law, we are not to be understood as saying that he has ever avowed his determination to oppose it by force, or resist its execution with buckshot and ball as one of his predecessors opposed and resisted the election law, but we do ssert that he is opposed to the law as it stands, and in favor of agitating for its repeal, and thus defeating the great purpose for which it as well as the other compromise measures were en-acted, namely, a final and peaceful settlement of the perplexing and dangerous subject to which But this is not the only evidence Gov. Johnston has given of his disloyalty to the Constitution. A law was passed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania in the year 1847, one section of which forbids, under the severest penalties, the use of the jails for the confinement of a runaway slave. At the time of the passage of this act there was no law in existence authorizing agents or commissioners of the United States to commit fugitives from labor to prison. It was, therefore, when the "fugitive slave law" of September, 1850, was passed, it was found almost impossible 1850, was passed, it was found almost impossible to execute its provisions unless this part of the Pennsylvania statute should be repealed. Accordingly, the friends of the Union, consisting of Whigs and Democrats, proposed its repeal early in the last session of the Legislature. The utmost influence of Governor Johnston's special adherents was exerted to prevent the passage of it off until very nearly the close of the session Then, however, it was passed, and presented to him for his approval. He refused to sign it on the pretext that he had not sufficient time for reflection! He has not signed it yet, nor has he given his friends any reason to hope that he will sign it—but, on the contrary, the abolitionists confident-ly expect him to veto it, and he as confidently expects their votes in consideration thereof. In such ways as these has Governor Johnston committed himself irrevocably to the purposes of those heartless agitators who have already of those heartless agitators who have already driven us to the verge of destruction, and who, if they are now backed by a majority in Pennsylvania, will plunge us into utter ruin and anarchy.

The Governor has attempted to justify the experiments he proposes to make on the temper of the commendation of th periments he proposes to make on the temper of he people, by declaring that the Union is in no kind of danger. He ridicules, scouts and sneers at the idea that the Union can possibly be dis solved by any cause whatever. He thinks it strong enough to stand anything. In this confi-dence he is very singular. The greatest, best, and wisest men in the country, of all parties, have thought and do now think, that unless jus-tice and moderation prevail in our councils, we are in danger. It can scarcely be believed that Washington would have warned his countrymen against dissolution if dissolution had been an impossible thing. Jackson was not apt to be rightened by shadows, and it is well known that anxiety for the Union lay heavy on his heart for many years of his life. Still Mr. Johnston is, without doubt, very sincere. It would be uncharitable to believe that he would advocate the loctrines he does advocate, for the mere sake of s few abolition votes, if he could see the effect of them as others see it.

We are no alarmists. We, too, believe that the stomach and bowels and give that healthy tone and the Union will not be dissolved. But we base that opinion on our firm conviction that Gov. Johnston will be defeated by a large majority.—But, if we could believe that Governor Johnston, with such opinions as he has expressed, and such with such opinions as he has expressed, and such the such opinions as he has expressed, and such as a majority of the diseases arising therefrom, they can be relied upon as an absolute specific.
