Stoubenville and Indiana Railroad. We have before us the "Second Report of the Board of Directors of the Steubenville and Indiana Railroad Company." From this report we have been made, put down the distance from Philadelphia to Cincinnati, by the Columbus, Steubenville and Pittsburgh route, at 659 miles, -being a less distance than by any other route, was studying late, thought no more of it. and twenty-seven miles nearer than by the Zanesville, Wheeling and Hempfield route. This, so far as distance is concerned, must give this road ters. a decided advantage; and when the low grades and the long curves in the road are taken into the account, the distance is still further dimin-

Upon a comparison of the produce on th route with the other routes in Ohio, it is found that there is a very large surplus in favor o this road—the estimated surplus to be exported along the line from Columbus to Steubenville being 3,444,449 bushels of wheat, or 23,117 bushels for each mile of the road; while the Little Miami Road, (which is one of the most profitable roads in the west,) offers a surplus of only 895,507 bushels—equal to only 10,535; bushels to each mile of the road. In domestic animals a similar difference will be found between the two roads—the Steubenville and Indiana Road offering 901,848 head of Cattle, Sheep and Hogs, (or a ratio of 6052 to the mile,) while the Little Miami offers but 405,860 head, or 4775 head to the mile. Here the Directors have taken but two items as the basic of the mile. Here the Directors have taken but two items as the basic of the mile. The man and the seam of the mile of the mi rectors have taken but two items as the basis of and Queen of Saxony. The presence of the vestheir calculation—live stock and wheat. But sels in these waters is justly regarded as highly for the Steubenville and Indiana Road there is another item of very great magnitude, which is not enjoyed by the other roads, and indeed cannot enjoyed by the other roads, and indeed can-way home, after a long and perilous tour in the not be: this is the article of coal, which will East, through Syria, Mesopatamia, Armenia and undoubtedly be transported over this road in great quantities; and which, if it gave no other advantage, would greatly lessen the price of fuel, and consequent expenses of the road. Among other matters claiming the attention of the Directors, the cost of construction of this road is an item that must commend it to general consideration. And here, while most of the New England Railroads-all of which are highly productive-have been constructed at an average cost per mile of about $15,000, there is only a part of this road which will reach to $25,000 per mile, while by far the larger portion of it is estimated to cost not exceeding $16,000 per mile. Thus we find that there are no consider ations presented, calculated to discourage the friends of the undertaking; but, on the contrary, every encouragement is offered to proceed to its completion at the earliest possible moment compatible with the proper construction of the road, which is fully in accordance with the determination of the Board of Directors.

We know many most decided whigs, who will not advocate the election of Gov. Johnston, and many who will oppose it, simply because they have no confidence in his political principles, and because he is advocating measures which chinery and mill-work exported in 1849, was lance.—Tribune. convinced that honesty demands of them a faithful support of the constitutional compromise which relates to fugitive slaves, and that we island, with Texas, by a great South-western have no right to assert the binding obligation of railroad, meets, we are told, with great favor in the Union, without being willing to carry out the full spirit of the conditions on which it is based.

She intrusted her maid with the secret, and the chest was yed to Grotius' apartment. She then re vesled her project to him, and after much en-treaty prevailed on him to enter the chest and leave her in the prison. The books which Grotitus borrowed were usually sent away by water in a boat from the prison. The chest, big with the fate of Grotius, as soon as he was inclosed in it, was moved into the boat, accompanied b the maid. One of the soldiers, observing that the chest was uncommonly heavy, the maid re plied, 'It is the Armenian books which are so eavy.' DEATH OF GEN. P. G. GAINES.—We are called on to discharge the melancholy duty of announ-cing the death of General Gaines. He died on yesterday morning of paralysis after a very brief illness. He has long been widely known in this State, and no manhad more devoted or more nu-

State, and no man had more devoted or more numerous friends, a convincing proof of his generous and noble qualities. His remains, attended by a train of mourning friends, were yesterday borne to the Butler Cemetory and deposited in the grave.—Memphis (Tenn.) Appeal, Aug. 15.

When the men of Israel bowed in help-lessness before Pharaoh, two women spurned his edicts and refused his behests. A father made no effort to save the infant Moses, but a mother's care hid him while concealment was possible, and a sister watched over his preservation when exposed on the river's brink. To woman was entrusted the charge of providing for the perils and wants of the wilderness; and in the hour of triumph, woman's voice was loudest in the acclaim of joy that ascended to henven from an emancipated nation.

Mr. Webster, during his present visit to New Hampshire, declines to address public meetings.

His health is such as to make it necessary to seek repose, and should he make a public address at all, he would not feel like doing so until some weeks bence.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Pittsburgh, June 9, 1851.

Dr. J.S. Houghton's Popsin, for Dyspepsin, Fryared from Rende or the Stomach of the Ox.

Perpared from Rende or the Stomach of the Ox.

Paster of the Fourth Presbytetian Church, in Louisville, Kentucky, was and had been for a long time confined to his room, and most of the time to his bed, with Dyspensin and Chronic Diarrhoz, and was, to all appearance, on the very verge of the grave, and acknowledged to be so by his physician, who had tried all the ordinary means in his power, without effect, and at the above named time: the patient, with the consent of his physician, commenced the use of Dr. Houghten's "PEPSIN," and to the astonishment, surprise and delight of all, he was much relieved the first day. The third day he left his room. The sixth day, which was excessively not, he went on a visit to the country; and, on the thirteenth day, though not entirely restored to his natural strength, he was so far recovered as to go alone a journey of five hundred miles, where he arrived in safety, much improved in health, having had no distorbance of the stomach or bowels, after taking the first doss of Pepsin. These facts are not controvertible, and that this is a case which ought to convince all skepties that there is a power in "PEPSIN". Let physicians and dyspeptics investigate.
