DEPARTURE OF COL. BIGLER. The standard-bearer of the Democracy of Pennsylvania, Col. BIGLER, left this city in the 10 o'clock train of cars, on Saturday, for Beaver accompanied by a considerable number of our Democratic fellow-citizens. At the various stopping places along the road, hosts of the honest, hard-fisted Democracy, collected to pay their respects to the champion of the People; lation instead of specie; and similar evils may and received him with every demonstration of type be anticipated; because the holders of small delight. Upon arriving at mocnester, a com-mittee of the Beaver Democracy, together with the Bigler Club of Rochester, and a fine band of music, received Col. Bigler, and conveyed him delight. Upon arriving at Rochester, a comto a beautiful grove, about half a mile up the

Beaver river, where a substantial dinner was served up. After partaking of the hospitalities there, a procession was formed, and the crowd ments that marched over to the borough of Beaver. Notwithstanding the intense heat of the day, an mmense concourse of the ever true Democracy of Beaver was assembled to greet the next Governor of Pennsylvania. The welcome was indeed enthusiastic, and showed conclusively that

During our short intercourse with the Democ-During our short intercourse with the Democracy of Beaver on Saturday, we were delighted with the good feeling and enthusiasm which prevailed amongst them. They were never in better spirits than at the present time, and confidently calculate upon the election of their entire dently calculate upon the election of their entire county ticket this fall. A large body of the work whigs there, as in every other part of the State, seem to have lost all confidence in the vain but weak administration at Harrisburg, and many shall exert whatever abilities I possess, to pro-elector. On the other hand, your will cannot be carried out, unless the candidate who asks your support shall make a full and fair declaration of all his political principles. This you manner attempt to conceal or disquise, his true political sentiments. It would here remark, that if there is one fact-that should more than another inspire you with pride and satisfaction, that fact is that the great Democratic party has never gone before the People without making a full and unequivocal declaration of its principles.

It may be necessary now to state some of the topics upon which I expect to speak to you on this occasion. One of those, and perhaps one of the most material, is the subject of a circulating medium. This is one of those questions should not only be complete but permanent.— Perhaps the only effectual way in which this can be done, is by resorting to a specie circulation. We have had a most sad experience, in monetasume never can avail themselves of the full val-ue of what they hold. I therefore contend for ting medium, except upon a strict specie basis, must utterly fail; and thus we are subjecting to continual hazard the entire interests of all the laboring and producing classes. The experihave been made upon this subject have cost the People morethan any other matter connected with their Government: for a supera-bundance of paper money is like the dreaded Upas tree, that withers and blights all within ts influence, I am not here to complain of those who differ from me in opinion. I claim not for myself what I will not accord to another. All differthe People of the country have entire confidence ences of opinion should be examined calmly and the People of the country have entire confidence in Col. Bigles. As we were desirous of returning, in the afternoon train of cars, we did not remain for the organization of the meeting in Beaver; but we have every reason to believe that it was a glorious affair as the old veterans of the party were out in their strength.

ences of opinion should be examined calmly and dispassionately, with a view to arrive at the truth; and no man ought to be less highly estemed, merely because of his political or religious opinions. [Tremendous cheering.] But on the great question of the circulating medium those who, really, think that we cannot do without a paper circulation; but who also truly wish to secure to labor its honest rewards should unite to secure to labor its honest reward, should unite with those who have so long been striving to feelings, because it was unobstrusive, and quiet, and free from much that is unpleasant in the mode which was then adopted by my present honorable competitor. In 1848, he commenced the sytem of canvassing the State, with a view to his election; and I am therefore left no alternative. I, too, must declare to the People the matters which appear to me to be involved in this contest.

The relation of elector and candidate imposes high and important duties on each; duties ings of the Executive Department are regulated to the People of the State, because it contemplated the appropriation of the money raised under it to any object of State expenditure; and this bill was sustained by the Whigs in every case. I only ask of my opponents sheer justice. Let them present only the truth, and I shall not complain.

But there are some topics of a General character that I must refer to: and that which it must be by statute, and all other acts and donor in the greatest importance I shall first touch upon. It is one upon which depends the future peace and safety of this country. The
