Destructive Fire—Loss of Wilmarth & Noble's Flouring Mill.—About 4 o'clock this morning, the City Flouring Mill of Messrs Wilmarth & Noble, in the Fifth Ward, was discovered to be on fire in the roof of the main building, and although burning slow at first, a slight breeze spread and increased it to a fearful intensity before the engines could arrive, by which time it had attained beyond the control of the firemen, and rendered the saving of the mill impossible. A large amount of Flour and Grain was got out of the building, and much of it saved; but the mill, with all its vast and complete machinery, as well as an extensive stock of Flour and Wheat is entirely destroyed. We are not aware of the extent of the stock nor the amount of the loss, but it is necessarily very large, as the mill was one of the most extensive and complete in the country, and calculated of turning out 400 bbls. of Flour per day, and at the time of the fire, was in full and active operation.

Through the great exertions of the firemen, the fire was kept from extending but partially to the surrounding buildings, many of which were several times on fire from the great heat emitted from such a blazing mass.

The insurance on the mill and stock amounted to $25,500, divided nearly equally between the Citizens' Firemen's and Western offices of this city, and the Delaware Mutual of Philadelphia, $6,500 in each. How far this will cover the loss we are not fully advised; but will doubtless guarantee its immediate re-construction by the active and enterprising proprietors.

We since learn that the proprietors are fully covered in their loss. The engine is saved, and part of the Flour and Wheat was got out in safety.—American of yesterday.

Quarter Sessions—Tuesday, Oct. 28. Judges McClure and McMillan on the Bench.

Com. vs. Robt. Toll, for surety of the peace, on information of James McDonald, uncle, by marriage, to defendant. Each party was sentenced to pay his own costs, and enter into recognizance, in the sum of $100, to keep the peace for one year.

Com. vs. Jas. McDonald, for surety of the peace, on information of his wife. Prosecutrix testified that defendant had threatened to cut her throat when she would be sleeping, and to burn his property; she was afraid, and "tied the hatch of the door to her left foot" when she went to bed. He was in evidence that Mrs. McDonald was in the habit of imbibing too freely; that she was frequently inebriated.

The defendant was sentenced to pay the docket costs only; witness to get their fees as they could.

Com. vs. John Pool, Surety of the Peace: on information of James Hammersly. The parties reside in Birmingham. Each had to pay their own costs, and defendant to pay the docket costs.

Com. vs. John Paisley and James Hendricks, Surety of the Peace: on information of Capt. John Hutchinson, of the Ninth Ward. The complainant was sentenced to pay the docket costs, and his case was dismissed. He is an infirm old man, and the Court remarked that he was hardly a responsible agent—that they sympathized with his infirmities, but advised him to be more careful in future.

Several other Surety of the Peace cases were disposed of, when the case of the

Com. vs. Sarah Boley, and the Com. vs. Caroline Adams, cross bills for assault and battery, were taken up. Caroline Adams testified that she sent her little girl after sweet milk; she refused, with dirty sour milk. She sent her back with it and told her to tell the woman, Sarah Boley, that she wanted sweet milk, but the little girl came back with the same milk, and said she, Sarah Boley, wouldn't give her any other. Witness then took the milk back herself and spilt it out, when Sarah Boley cursed her, knocked her down and kicked her, and otherwise abused her.

Mr. Bruce testified that he saw Mrs. Boleye catch Mrs. Adams by the hair and strike her.

A witness testified that she saw Mrs. Boleye run after Mrs. Adams and take her by the hair, and throw her down.

Mrs. Boleye testified that it was owing to the vessel that the milk was dirty, and that Mrs. Adams threw it in her face, and then witness took her by the neck, pushed her down, and probably fell on her with her knees, and then struck her on the head twice; didn't do anything to provoke her to throw the milk.

Abraham Bowden, sworn.—Have been a constable for 15 years in Allegheny City.

Attorney. Do you know Mrs. Boleye?

Witness. I know the family.

Attorney. Do you know her?

Witness. (Turning round and pointing to a young lady.) This is her. (Laughter.) I know the family; their reputation for veracity is not good; they keep a lot of hogs, dogs and cows.

Henry Kauffman testified that her reputation for veracity is not good; he had a quarrel with her.

Alden for Mrs. Boleye, Darragh for Mrs. Adams.

Com. vs. Wm. Vanderwater—Larceny. Defendant plead guilty of petty larceny, and was sentenced to 3 months in jail, receiving credit for the time he had been in. He had stolen a lot of clothing from Wm. Rose.

☞ A lady, who gave her name as Mary Delany, called upon us yesterday afternoon, and requested us to deny the statement in our paper of Monday last, respecting her having been stabbed on Saturday night last. She says that she was sick in bed at her own house at the time of the occurrence, which took place in another house. We therefore let her speak for herself.

☞ The magnificent basket of flowers brought out by Adams & Co.'s Express was from H. A. Dreery, Philadelphia, who is celebrated for his taste in arranging boquets, and it was the intention to have presented the basket to Miss Davenport on Monday night. It will be placed in Mr. Richardson's window, where it can be examined.

Theatre.—The celebrated and popular actress Miss Davenport, has arrived and will appear this evening in her celebrated character of Marianna, in Knowle's beautiful play of The Wife. The mere announcement of her appearance this evening will fill the house, even if it was three times the size. Seats should be secured early.

☞ At the fire yesterday morning there was quite a fight between the members of the Independence Engine and the members of the Good Intent. The odds being decided in favor of the former company, they came out first-best.

☞ We have received from the author a copy of a little book entitled "Irish Evenings, and Evenings with Illustrious Irishmen," by Henry D. O'Reilly. The writer is well known as a talented and eloquent lecturer, and in the present volume he presents these Lectures in a more permanent form. There are so many passages of thrilling interest and inimitable humor in it, that we are at a loss to select one from amongst them. In his fourth lecture, describing the great metropolis of England, he uses the following powerful language:

"That city of all cities, past and present, upon whose prosperity and continued power the fate of nations hangs, whose ambition is unlimited, whose commerce has extended to every known portion of the globe, whose avaricious hand would grasp the universe and rule the four quarters of the globe, concentred on whose shores poverty and wealth, the starving pauper and the pampered peer, the gilded palace and the humble cot, ignorance and knowledge, misery and joy, crime in all its fearful phases, from intrigues in the finished court and gambling in the gorgeous hell, down to the villain's lowly den, the robber's haunt and the dark scene of many murders, go hand in hand down the black stream and ever rolling tide of life to the great sepulchre of decay and death;—the grave—the seat of the arts and sciences, the admiration and the envy of all nations; the mighty engine that rules the destiny of millions, clad in a crimson garb dyed in the blood of martyrs, fattened on the miseries of other lands, gorged with the world's wealth and elevated on the ruin of kingdoms—London, great, mighty, powerful—the poor citizen has raised the fabric, the rich autocrat reaps the reward."

☞ The Court room was yesterday graced with the attendance of a large number of women.

Caught.—Sometime in August last, a man named Kohan eloped from Baltimore with his cousin's wife, since which time the husband has been in search of the guilty pair. He sold everything he had to raise means to follow them, and took with him his four children and started in pursuit. After having visited Cincinnati and other cities without success, he was on his way home when yesterday he accidentally met with them at the house where he stopped, in this city. Kohan was brought before the Mayor and committed, and the husband and wife will return as soon as they can raise the means.

Larceny.—Mayor Fleming, of Allegheny city, yesterday sent over two commitments against Mary A. Woods, and one against Alex. Woods, for larceny.

☞ The Sheriff's sale of nine cases of dry goods under attachment, will commence at McKenna's auction house, this morning at 10 o'clock.

☞ FIRST OF THE SEASON.—Received this morning, by Express, a fine lot of VENISON, from the Mountains, at "OUR HOUSE," NO. 24 DIAMOND Alley.
