 PUBLIC PRINTING.
 Item 1. office, and to appoint a "Superintendant of Public Printing, who shall receive $3,000 a year for his services; and give him the privilege of making numerous other contracts, the perquisites of which will pay him a good deal more than his stated salary. Mr. Dory has no doubt reported his bill with the best intentions, and thinks that he is doing something smart, that will tend to the benefit of the government, a part of which he is. We have an abiding confidence in the belief that in reporting the Bill which we notice, Mr. D. wishes to do something good for his country, and to lot his constituents know that he is posted up on the question of "economy," especially where printers desire a fair remoneration for their labor. He wants to let them see that he don't know how the business should be done, and he accordingly reports a bill in accordance with the smount of knowledge he possesses on the subject. We do not, by any means, intend these remarks as olfensive to Mr. Dorr; for if his Bill should become a law, we would like to be the "Superintendant of Public Printing," at the comfortable little salary of $3,000; and the chances for all the perquisites attached to the office. But it would be folly for us or any other printer to apply. The office is cut out to make mfortable quarters for some superannuated office-hunter, who, because he won't work, mus have a berth created for him at the expense of the people. If the bill becomes a law, compe tent and practical printers need not expect to get the office. If the lucky applicant for the office should proclaim himself a member of the craft, we are willing to go a small wager, that he will be an amateur professor of the art, who knows their notions of personal aggrandizement? just enough about printing to enable him to tell So far as we are concerned, we have no hesi-Diamond type from Double Pica, perhaps not so tation to take our position fearlessly, and to exress our honest opinions about all public offihave paid to print the whole proceedings of Congress in "letters of gold." It has been the custom for some years past, with the great body of the dander-heads who have wiggled their way into Congress, to start a project of "economy;" as they have heard it said that printers general ly work for nothing, and that they-the economiste, are living evidences of the fact, inasmuch as they, probably, never paid the printer for his nervices to them, they attempt to make patriots of themselves by cheating him out of a fair remuneration for his labor, and at the same time commit another fraud by charging the Government their per diem allowance for doing nothing except spoiling the cushions of the chairs on which they sit.

When printers were paid prices for doing the work, it was issued in a style creditable to the dovernment, but under the "economical" arrangement, it is disgraceful to the country and s reproach upon American printers. We hope that some member, possessed of common sense, will amend this bill, by authorizing the proper officers to give out the work to those who are competent to do it in a proper manner, and at fair prices. The Mexican Debt to Englishmen.

Mr. Falconnet, the agent of the Mexican bandholders in London, informs the chairman of the ommittee, that he has received means from the government to pay the last January dividend .-For this purpose he had been pravided with orders on the various custom houses of the Republie to receive all the moneys due for that portion of duties appropriated to, the foreign debt of Mexico. He had also shipped $50,000 to Baring, Bro.'s & Co. To provide against any deficiency the government of Mexico . delivered an assignment for $280,000 on the American indemnity money, payable in May next, to be returned to the Mexican Treasury in the case only that the full amount of the advance to be made, or its value, should have been shipped from the different ports of the Republic before it becomes due. This amount is entirely independent of the sum of 21 millions previously assigned on account of arrears of dividend.
