NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION; Baltimore, Md., Tuesday, June 1, 1855 We are indebted to his Excellency Jone BIGLER, Governor of California, for a copy o his Inaugural Address

The Gazette has come to a Sensible Coning to mislend the good sense of the people. The whelming, that he made a prompt confession, editor has consented to "drop the subject." He and on the next morning he was taken to the has discovered, at a late hour, that it is not a court-yard of the public prison, and summarily bad sign of the prosperity of the farmers of executed. Charion county, that they are now able to sup-boats" for Pittsburgh, and are under no necessity to import "thousands of barrels of flour from our city" for their own use. But it is fair to lufer from the reasoning of the Gazette, that the great abundance of agricultural products in Clarion, has tojured the price of Pig metal. If this is true, the farmers are to blame for being more industrious, more economical, and less extravagant and less grasping than those who appear to think that they are injured by the prosperity of the honest tillers of the soil. The Gazette thinks that it is in the power of the Democratic party to disperse all the " bugaboos" that baundity mind on the Tariff question, and in a tone more inmentable than the

For instance, in the last lachrymal appeal of the Gozette, to the Democrats of Pennsylvania, to come to their aid on the Tariff question, i makes the sincerity of its appeal manifest by designating the profound statesman who has just been chosen by the freely expressed preference of a majority of the voters of the State as their favorite candidate for President, "Ten cent Jemmy." Because the Democrats do not attend to such kind and truthful "appeals" as the above, our sorrowful hearted neighbor thinks, that we are heartless and callous. We are neither heartless or callous. We have a heart to feet and a mind to act; and a disposition to expose the tricks of political charlatans, be they whom they may, and among the most devious and time serving of these, we regret the necessity of designating our cotemperary as the prince of novel Tariff mountebanks. Some years since he declared, in the most positive manner, that Henry Clay had "throttled the Tariff," and put the "knife to the throat of Protection," and, in his opinion, had driven it in up to the bilt. This opinion was expressed under a conscientious conviction, for we remember well that it was uttered shortly after the

they may announce the appointments be fore or after the adjournment of the Conven Romarks of Mr. Hopkins at the Close of the State Convention. Having completed our labors, we are now about to separate, and return to our constituents.
Before pronouncing the Convention adjourned sine die,—allow me to return to you my sincere thanks for your gentlemanly conduct towards the chair, during our deliberations.

When I assumed the duties of the position assigned me, by your partiality, I did so, under the belief, as I then expressed it, that any lack of mine would be supplied by your kind forberrance. The result has shown that I was not mistaken. Your entire demeanor has been characterized by the strictest decorum. That questions would arise, upon which an honest difference of opinion would exist, was to be expected, but it is one of the beauties of our free institutions. that majorities are always allowed titutions, that majorities are always allowed to settle those differences. It is right that it should be so. Were it otherwise, instead of

should be so. Were it otherwise, instead of having harmony in our deliberations, anarchy and insubordination would obtain, and our political organizations would be annihilated. It is admitted, that majorities may sometimes erromay by their nominal strength do notes, which, to the minorities, may seem to be oppression, but, after all, I respectfully submit, whether it is not safer, for the rights of all to confide our political interest to the hands of the former, rather than the latter.

In these remarks, let me not be misunderstood. I wish them to be regarded us of a general character, without reference to anything that has transpired here.

acter, without reference to anything transpired here.

For one, I am willing to concede to others, that which I claim for myself—viz, honesty of purpose. Should any thing have occurred in the progress of our deliberations, which has wounded the feelings of any one, let it be forgotten:—Let us separate as a band of brothers. Let no unkind impression be permitted to remain in the breast of any one member of the Convention, breast of any one mem towards another. Let us all remember that the approaching Presidential election will be an important and spirited one,—that to be successful, we must be united. Let us then, in a word, leave this Hall with the patriotic determination leave this Hall with the patrious determination to support the nomines of the Baltimore Convention. To that tribunal we have all agreed to submit our personal preferences. To their deals sion we must bow, if not with Christian, at least with Democratic resignation.

After again thanking you for your gentlems ly deportment, as well as for the very flattering resolution which you have been pleased to adopt, in reference to the occupant of the chair, and the other officers of the Convention, I bid you one, and all, an affectionate farewell, and may a kind Providence grant you a safe return to your respective homes.
