NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION; Baltimore, Md., Tuesday, June 1, 1852. We are informed by one of the Managers of the Lawrenceville and Sharpsburg Plank Road Company, that the bill which we published yesterday, is not the bill that the Company or the people desires. We know nothing of the matter, further than that we received the bill from one of our members, and published it as requested. We regret that any one should be displeased with the manner in which the bill has been managed, or honest efforts of the stock-holders. HARMONIOUS WHIGGERY.

For a considerable time past, our cotemporary of the Gazette, has by his own universal consent, been elected the Pittsburgh organ and ornole of Whig principles, and his paper is the official source to which we have always looked to find out what is right and what is wrong, in the Whig party, and we have frequently found that what our neighbor considered right, was generally considered by the people "entirely wrong." For instance, he was in the habit until a late period, to give his patrons long and learned disquisitions on the virtues of Whiggery, copied from the columns of the National Intelligencer. That paper was his text book, as it has been for overy other Whigling, for the last quarter of a entury. Our neighbor as well as others, whose of any other master than the John Bulls of the Intelligencer.
