LOSS OF LIPE AND PROPERTY Owing to the abolishment of Sunday work, our office, we failed to lay before our readers, on fonday morning, an account of the tremendous flood we have had in our rivers for the past two

SUNDAY .- The rivers, which had been rising for two or three days, commenced filling up very fast. At Brownsville, this morning, the water was rising at the slarming rate of two feet an hour ; and at the head of the Allegheny, the long accumulated bodies of snow were fast melting, which with the rain helped to swell the Allegheny at a tremendous rate. Both rivers were consequent ly on the rise all the day; at 2 o'clock, P. M. there were 28 feet water in the channel, and rising at the rate of 9 inches per hour, while the rain was pouring down in torrents.

During the day, the rivers were covered with rafts, floating timber, drift wood, &c. Numbers of persons were seen on the rafts, and it is feared with but too much reason that many lives were lost. There were two rafts lodged on the been our lot to see for a long while. A large plers of the Old Allegheny Bridge, in the course of the day, off of which one person was drowned, and two succeeded in making their escape. It skillfulness of the men who had it in charge, it reported that two lives were lost by a raft stri- escaped striking against any of the piers of the king against the Mechanics' Street Bridge.

The lower part of Allegheny was becomin rapidly submerged, and a great deal of suffering was experienced. On this side of the river, watch with a terrible force, and the men who were up was kept during the night, and not much damage on it disappeared in the mist and spray raise was done; several rafts, however, were carried by the shock. For a second it appeared as if all away from the Allegheny wharf. The boats was over, when, amidst a tremendous cheer from which arrived on Saturday night, did not dis. the heretofore almost breathless throng on the charge their freight, on account of the manner in | bridge, the gallant fellows were descryed skipwhich the river was rising. MONDAY MORNING. - The river, this morning, has reached the height of twenty-nine feet, and still rising at the rate of five inches an hour. The water is doing a tremendous amount of damage. having invaded the cellars and basements of all the houses near the river. In Allegheny city, the lower part is totally submerged, and the inhabitants are moving from house to house by means of skiffs, and whatever means of conveyance they can find to answer their purpose .-From the canal back, the whole bottom is under water, and the inhabitants are suffering a great deal On this side of the river, the lower part of the city, known as the Point, is partly under water, which extends up both Penn and Liberty streets, covering the lower part of the levee en-

Not only is the suffering produced by the flood, but also in consequence of the stopstage of work in all the foundries and mills in that industrious portion of our city. The City Water Works, Knapp's Foundry, Shoenberger's, Graff's, Lindsay & Co.'s Rolling Mills, as well as many other manufacturing establishments, have been compelled to suspend operations. In the lower part of the town, the water is fast encrosching into the business portion of our city. It is now in the cellars as far up as Wood street.

the warehouses. We visited the upper wharf, last evening, and found the mills, glass-works, &c., totally subappear to be in a like condition. The loss on that side of the river must be immense, as the dwellings of the operatives in the mills were generally built on the side of the river. While in this part we saw several cabins, stables, and barns, pass down the river; one of the stables was brought to the shore, and persons were engaged in emptying the hay from it. As we pass down the wharf, every thing appears to be in a state of confusion,—the steamers are tied up to the telegraph posts on the pavement, and it is but a step, comparatively, from the stores to the boats; further down near the point, the real suffering commences, and families are forced to fly from their habitations b the inexorable element. The ferries land on the pavement on Penn and Liberty streets, while the back streets, such as Point, Marbury, and others, are filled with water to the second storics of some of the houses. Here the loss will be felt more than in any part of Pittsburgh.

be felt more than in any part of Pittsburgh.

But, it is in Allegheny city, where the effects of the flood are so severely folt. Here, where a great part of the city, lies on bottom land, has this devastating element obtained a complete mastery. On Federal street, when we crossed last evening, the water was near two feet deep between the bridge and Robinson street, and passengers were conveyed across, by a horse and sengers were conveyed across, by a horse and wagon, honts, rafts, &c., for a compensation.—
From Lacock street to the river, the basements and alleys, are completely under water, the families being compelled either to leave or move up to a higher story. The scene in this vicinity, beggars description.—From Federal down to what is called the Island, is where the effect of the water is more felt than in any other part of the effect of the scire. Here many of the inhabitants are forcinundated. Here many of the inhabitants are forced to vacate the premises altogether, and move, as many of the poorer ones have done, into the basements of the churches, which were generously thrown open for their use.

The rise extends to the foot of the Seminary Hill, while the camal, which has overflowed its banks, has, in some places, formed a junction with the Allegheny. The rolling mills, foundries, cotton factories, near the river, have been compelled to stop.
