orisoners. Their wives and families shared their ot : their sons, five hundred and twenty-sever in number, their daughters, five hundred and seventy-eix; in the whole, women and babies and old men and children all included, nineteen hundred and twenty three souls. The blow was sudden; they had left home but for the morning, and they never were to return. Their cattle were to stay unfed in the stalls, their fires to die out on their hearths. They had for that first day even no food for themselves or their children, and were compelled to beg for bread.

The 10th of September was the day for the embarkation of a part of the exiles. They were drawn up six deep, and the young men, one hundred and sixty-one in number, were ordered to march first on the vessel. They could leave their farms and cottages, the shady rocks on which they had reclined, and their herds and ers; but nature yearned within them, rents. Yet of what avail was the frenzied despair of the unarmed youth? They had not one weapon; the bayonet drove them to obey; and they marched slowly and heavily from the chapel to the shore, between women and children, who kneeling, prayed for blessings on their heads, likey themselves weeping, and praying, and sing-ling hymns. The seniors were next; the wives and children must wait till other transport ves-sels arrive. The delay had its horrors. The wretched people left behind were kept fogether near the sea, without proper food, or raiment, or shelter, till other ships came to take them away; and December, with its appalling cold, had struck the shivering, half-clad, broken hearted sufferton, from Fort Cumberland, near which he had wives of the men we have prisoners are gone off with their children, in hopes I would not send off their husbands without them." Their hope was vain. Near Annapolis, a hundred heads of fami-lies fled to the woods, and a party was detached hate them," wrote an officer on this occasi and if they can but find a pretext to kill them they will." Did a prisoner seek to escape! He was shot down by the sentinel. Yet some fied to Quebec; more than three thousand had withdrawn to Miramichi, and the region south of the Ristigouche; some found rest on the banks of the 8t John's and its branches; some found a we feel authorised in saying, will be promptly lair in their native forest; some were charitably sheltered from the English in the wigwams of the savages. But seven thousand of these banished people were driven on board ships, and scattered among the English Colonies, from New Hampshire to Georgia alone, one thousand and twenty to South Carolina alone. They were cast ashore without resources; hating the poorhouse as a shelter for their offspring, and abhor-ring the thought of selling themselves as labor-ers. Households, too, were separated; the colouisi newspapers contained advertisements of members of families seeking their companions, of sons anxious to reach and relieve their parents, of mothers mourning for their chil-

The wanderers sighed for their native country; but, to prevent their return, their villages, from Annapolis to the Isthmus, were laid waste. Their old homes were but ruins. In the district of Minas, for instance, two hundred and fifty of their houses, and more than as many barns, were consumed. The live stock which belonged to them, consisting of great numbers of hor cattle, hogs, sheep and horses, were seized as spoils and disposed of by the English officials. A besutiful and fertile tract of country was reduced ashes of the cottages of the Acadians but the faithful watch-dog, seeking the hands that fed him. Thickets of forest-trees choked their orchards; the ocean broke over their neglected dikes, and desolated their meadows.

These symptoms vary in different individuals and constitutions and in many cases bring on kidney disease, dropsy, liver complaint, and a debilitated condition of the whole body and a shattered state of the nervous system, that renders life burdensome.

Dr. Radeliff's Alkalins Digesties Bitters are peculiarly adopted to the deranged condition of the stomach above alluded to, and if taken perseveringly, will reatore it to a healthy condition. These Bitters are made of some of the most valuable mate inla of the Materia Medica, and are prepared in a peculiar manner, known only the proprietor. They do not contain any particle of alcohol, and are perfectly safe in their operation an the human system. The most inactive and deprayed condition of the stomach is often relieved by one bottle—allourners, wind, pain, and depression of spirits, are entirely removed. How can a man be in health when that great reservoir is diseased? Correct the morbid state of the stomach by taking these Bitters, and Dyspepsio, with all its grim horrors, will fly from you.

The Theory and the Practice.

The cures from this medicine have been, and will be The Theory and the Practice.

The cures from this medicine have been, and will be, just in proportion to the number of cases in which it is used. Its only mireculous powers, are those which it possesses from and in common with nature, whose operations it can only assist and hanten. Its action is immediate, and though calm, energetic. It allays irritation, while it promotes secretion and exercion. It can never fail to pulliate, and where a cure is possible; in will cure. This was the theory of the medicine; as in verted; and experience, in numerous cases, of every kind and variety, has demonstrated the correctness of its principles.

"I had been afflicted several years with a soreness of both eyes, which continued to increase antil hat September, (1850), the inflammation at that time having involved the whole lining membrane, of both eyes, and ended in the deposite of a thick film, which wholly destroyed my sight. I had an operation performed, and left me in as bad a condition as before. At this singe of the complaint I made application to several of the most eminent medical men, who informed me that "my eyes would never get well." At his time I could not distinguish any object. By the advice of some friends I commenced the use of the Petroleum, both internally and locally, under which my eyes have improved daily until the present time, and I have recovered my sight entirely. My general health was very much improved by the Petroleum, and I have recovered my sight entirely, My general health was very much improved by the Petroleum, and I have recovered my sight entirely, and will be happy to give any information in relation to my case.
