THE MOTHER TONGUE Translated from the Swedish. BY MARY HOWITT.

The mother's name is a Heavenly sound, As far as the blue sky bendeth; The mother's voice casis gladness round Where the iclest realm extendeth. Sweet in pleasure and sweet in w Sweet in life and in death also, And swcet in rec

Our mother's voice was the cradie song That soothed us beyond all other; And sweetly soundet hte mother tongue When the first-born lispeth " Mother ! "

Our mother longue is that in which Our young souls first found expression And the lover knows no other speech To pour out his heart's full parsion.

Twas spaken by all those kings of old, Round whom our homage gathers. And by those warnors true ard bold Whom we proudly call our fathers.

her-tongue, in the people's mouth With words of power it liveth; Tis loved in the North and in the South, And its echo the green wood giveth.

Our mother-tongue, like a flowery wreath, Both high and low it enfoldeth; Through it the souls of our fathers breathe, And the tracheart fast it holdeth.

Our hearts speak only our mother-tongue, They know no foreign translation; First a lone, whether written or sung, Which from sleep can rouse a nation. Our mother-tongue, by the ren-shore wild,

And in deep woods, Summe: laden, How sweetly it sounds, from man or child, But sweetest from the lips of a maiden. But sweetest from the spectra woe, Sweet in pleasure and sweet in woe, Sweet in life and in death also, And aweet in recollection.

Cigars had been lighted, and, by way of passing our time, we had commenced a crit-ical examination of the mammoth pictorial posters of Barnum's Menagerie, which covered the ious bar-room. Barnum's name opened a faithful topic of conversation; every one present seemed stored with anecdotes of the "Napaleon of Showmen," and the Woolly Horse, the Feejee Mermaid, and Joice-Heth, were not forgotten in the discussion which fol-
