Of Hartford, Conn. Capital Stock

Those were the days when books were things
"The People" could not touch;
Made for the use of lords and kings,
And only meant for such.
To work the loom, to till the soil.
To such the coulty seem— To cut the costly gem—
To tread the round of daily toil,
Was quite enough for them.

Now look abroad the light of Truth
Is apreading far and wide.
And that which fills our English youth,
Mustahame our ancient pride
Tis mind alone can wield the sword,
In spite of wealth and rank;
The oritism may face a lord
With thousands in the bank. We scorn not those of high degree, For so twere wrong to do; But poorer men as rich can be, And quite as noble too. The prince may act a gayer part, But he who works for bread.

Then grieve not for it the good old times, Behold a brighter day! The causes of our fathers' crimes Are wearisg fast away.

Before the Pen, the Press, and Rail,
Must old opinions fall;
The mighty project cannot fail—
Then Bid it one and all! A gentleman named Mudd, having mar ried a lady named Mayden, gives rise to the folowing impromptu: Lors wife. his said, in days of yore, For one rebellious halt, Was turned, us we are plainly told, Into a lump of sait. The same propensity of change Sull runs in human blood,

For here we have a case as strange, A Mayden turned to Mudd.
