THE SATURDAY MORNING POST.

We commend our weekly of this morning to every reader, democrat and whig. It contains the most complete returns of the election of any paper in the city, and we assure the public they are not made up with respect to parties. In such matters we have always supposed that we had a DUTY to perform to our readers and that we should give the most correct information we could receive, whether it was favorable to us or otherwise. This practice, however, has not been fol-George W. Woodward lowed by our whig cotemporaries; they are en-
