In Clacinnati, we see that two boxes have been provided ones for the new of the Democrate, and the other to be used by the Whigs. This is done in order to test which of the two parties have the greatest regard for the name of Washington A-Braye Ginz and a Desperate Villais.—Two scoundrels entired the house of Mr. Forrester, in Bank Lane, Alleghony City, on Sunday morning, about one o'clock, and proceeded to the room of a niceo of Mr. Forrester, detached from the main building. The robbers after rousecking the trunks, drawers, &c., in the room without awakening the young lady, strempted to draw a gold ring from of her funger; this proceeding awoke her, however, and she screamed in order to accuse the inmates of the house. The robber attempted to accuse the joung lady, by the sight of a knife; but she high, cutting it badly. Enraged at this, the scoundrel struck the young lady with his clenched list, and knocked her down stairs, jut the top of which she was standing calling for help. The rascals then left the house of Mr. Reuo, willow of the late Capt. Reuo, on Ann street, was entered and of the late Capt. Reuo, on Ann street, was entered and of the late Capt. OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"He discourses in a truly learned and lively manner upon the original unity of language, and the original derivation and history of words, with their morality and separate spheres of meaning." A. F. Evening Port.

"This is a noble tribute to the divine faculty of speech. Popularly written, for use as loctures, exact in learning, and postic in its vision, it is a book at once for the scholar and the general reader."—New 18th Evenyalist.

"It is one of the most striking and original publications of the day, with nothing of hardness, duliness or dryness about it, but altogether fresh, lively, and entertaining."—Buton Evening Traveler.
