

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL. In justice to the gentlemanly architect, Mr. Oakes, we must state that we are indebted to him for much useful information in making up the following description of this most magnificent structure. We have no desire to speak of Mr. O. as the skill he has displayed in its erection. The building itself is the best and most perfect specimen of the Gothic style that has ever been seen in this country.

The second form of the building is the Roman Cross; its head-part being the sanctuary or chancel, its arms the South and North wings of the transept, with the Dome standing over the center. The stem of the cross forms the Nave, with the choir attached to its sides. The outer aisles are closed by towers, which are connected by a corridor, or rather an arcade, into which the congregation enter by three doorways from Grant street, and two doorways (one on each tower) on the side opposite. This arcade supports the organ loft, and is the termination of the Nave and the inner aisle.

The space covered by the building is about half an acre; the aggregate of the stones is about 5,000 tons. The church proper is calculated to contain 600 persons, while it will hold from 5,000 to 10,000 on extraordinary occasions. The basement church will seat about 1,000 persons, and the upper church will seat 500. The total number of seats is 1,500. The church is situated on the corner of Grant and Third streets, and is bounded by the latter on the north and east, and by the former on the south and west.

It is a pity that the architect, Mr. Oakes, has not been able to give us a more complete description of the building. He has, however, given us a very good idea of the general appearance of the structure. We are sure that our readers will be interested in the description of the building, and we are sure that they will be interested in the description of the building.

A PATRIOTIC PICTURE.

The following is an extract from the eloquent speech of the Hon. J. M. Dawson, delivered in the Assembly Hall, New York, on the evening of the 2d of September, 1852. It is refreshing, not only to the patriotic heart, but to the patriotic eye. It is a picture of the past, and a picture of the future. It is a picture of the past, and a picture of the future.

The election of Franklin Pierce will secure the ascendancy of democratic principles, the recognition of the great and true basis of legislative action. Franklin Pierce stands forth as the champion of the people, and as the champion of the people. He stands forth as the champion of the people, and as the champion of the people.
