PITTSBURGH:

TUESDAY MORNING.....NOVEMBER 23.

☞ No North, no South, no East, no West, under the Constitution; but a sacred maintenance of the Common Rood, and true devotion to the Common Brotherhood.—WENDELL PHILLIPS.

☞ Messrs. S. M. PETTENGILL & Co., who are prompt, honest and gentlemanly in their business transactions, are the only authorized agents in the cities of New York and Boston for the Morning Post. They are authorized to receive Advertisements and Subscriptions for us at our usual rates. Their receipts are regarded as payments. Their offices are at NEW YORK, 122 Nassau street. BOSTON, 10 State street.

☞ FINE JOB PRINTING.

Having recently made large additions of New and Beautiful Type to our Newspaper and Jobbing Offices, we are prepared to do PRINTING OF ALL KINDS, in the neatest style and on the most reasonable terms. Every size and variety of Type, from Any Size Pica down to Diamond, will now be found in our extensive Job Office. Give us a call.

THE MAYORALTY.

This is the next question that will, necessarily, agitate the public mind, and the aspirants on the whig side of the house, are already preparing their thunder. For instance, our cotemporary of the Journal has, through the persuasion of a number of his fellow citizens, consented to be a candidate. This is generous on his part, and most especially so, when it is understood that the request came to him through the efforts of two of his employees. If they had not exercised their talent to get names to his petition to be a candidate, he would have had to announce himself as a candidate, over his own signature. But he is now brought out in a manner that leaves no doubt of his intentions, and he will no doubt be a candidate before the whig convention. But then, he has difficulties to encounter. SAWYER, that old war horse for the Mayoralty, is in the way. He has been a candidate from time immemorial, and if not elected will be one for the natural term of his life. He is a good man, and is worthy of the office; but it is feared by many that from his present profession, he might furnish materials to the captain of the watch, to permit persons to slip out of the cells. We do not suppose that Mr. Sawyer would do such a thing intentionally; but grease and soap are slippery things, and it has been made apparent of late, that his party has had its hands well rubbed with both the articles. We do not imagine that he will suit for the occasion. Many of the whigs think that he has been on hand too long, and that he should now retire and let some other person be defeated. The next man who comes up as a whig aspirant, is Mr. GLENN. This gentleman is fresh from the ranks of whiggery, and, so far as we have been informed, is a very worthy man. But we are apprehensive that he is too fresh to run against the old stagers of the party. It may be allowable for him to hope some ten years hence, but at present, although he is "good looking, he can't come in."

Next to him is the everlasting JOE BARKER.—This person requires no description. He is well known to our citizens, and no person, who has any knowledge of his magisterial capacity, can doubt for a moment that JOE would make just as good a Mayor as he did when he was last elected. He is the especial favorite of the editor of the Gazette, and if he gets the nomination, will be supported by that paper.

Those we named are all that have as yet come out from the Whig party for the Mayoralty, and without desiring to be disrespectful, we may say that they are not the men the people want in the office. We need only point to the two prominent aspirants, K. M. RIDDLE and JOE BARKER.

The former is the editor of the Journal, and in a labored article he has assailed our most excellent Chief Magistrate for having discharged his duty in the manner the law made it obligatory upon him to do. We refer to the Election Frauds. He knew that frauds had been committed; he knew that the Mayor could pursue no other course than he did, yet, this man attempts to censure the Mayor for holding to bail the knaves, whom he, no doubt, thought might be made useful in getting him a nomination—His design has not succeeded, and if he desires the support of honest men, he might just as well announce that he has repudiated his late article, and is not, at the present time, in favor of fraudulent voting. Such an announcement may help him at the present crisis.

BARKER is the next prominent Whig candidate, but he does not need such a "puff" as we are wont to give him. His friends boast that he is now far ahead of all competition, and that he will beat both Riddle and Sawyer, in five Wards. If he can do so, it will secure him the nomination, and with the aid of the editor of the Gazette, he may be elected. This is a matter, however, which is still uncertain. The editor of the Journal may beat Joe yet in the race for distinction, and then play his fantastic tricks over again.

THE EDINBURGH REVIEW.—We have received from the American publishers, Messrs. Leonard, Scott & Co., the October number of the Edinburgh Review. Its contents are as follows:—Joseph de Maistre; Life and Letters of Mr. Justice Story; Japan; Traits of the Irish Peasantry; Cholera and Quarantine; Pardoes Life of Marco de Medici; Representative Reform; Artillery and Ships of War; the Late Elections and Free Trade. For sale by W. A. Gildenfenny & Co., 76 Fourth street, and H. Miner & Co., Smithfield street.

☞ Wm. S. Haven, corner of 2d and Market, has received the Acts of Congress relating to Steamboats; collected by the Rolls at Washington. To every man interested in steamboat navigation this will be an invaluable work.

Rev. Mr. Passavant's Hospital.

This excellent institution once more appeals to our benevolent citizens for assistance, and we earnestly hope that the appeal will be responded to in the most liberal spirit. It is entirely unnecessary for us to write a long article setting forth the usefulness of this Hospital, for every citizen of Pittsburgh is fully aware of its character already. We wish simply to announce the fact, at this time, that collections will be taken up in all the Churches on Thursday, (Thanksgiving Day,) for the benefit of the institution, on which occasion we hope that every citizen will give freely to supply its wants.

"O, fresh! O fresh! how art thou fishified!
—Shakspeare.

This quotation of the immortal bard is pertinently applicable to our citizens at this time, who, since the opening of the Railroad to Cleveland, have been regaling themselves daily on choice fish, fresh from the sparkling waters of the beautiful lakes. Our friend RIDDLE, under the Masonic Hall, Fifth street, daily receives a large supply of white lake fish, Salmon and Mackinaw trout, and waits upon all customers in the politest manner imaginable. Give him a call.

NEW FIRM.—It will be seen by a card in today's paper, that our friends, A. J. Stuart and Geo. W. Mullin have entered into partnership in the wholesale grocery, produce and commission business, at No. 6 Smithfield street.—Mr. Mullin was formerly of the steamer Buckeye State, and is an excellent business-man. We commend the new firm to the patronage of our friends.

☞ We are requested to announce that there will be Divine Service in the Second Presbyterian Church on Thanksgiving Day, (Thursday) at 10½ o'clock, A. M., on which occasion the Rev. W. D. Howard, the Pastor of the Church, will deliver a discourse.

☞ It is estimated that about seven thousand three hundred and fifteen Turkeys will be served up for Thanksgiving Dinners, in this City, on Thursday. Those of our friends who wish to buy some of the best in the market, will find them at RIDDLE's, under the Masonic Hall.

"Now, what a glorious man was David Alroy, lord of the mightiest empire in the world, surrounded by a prosperous people, guarded by invincible armies—one on whom earth showered all its fortune, and Heaven all its favor."

If there was ever one man who had full reason to be perfectly satisfied with himself and with the world, FRANK PIERCE is certainly that man. The ancient saying is that no one should be called fortunate until death has sealed his book of life; and it may be in the years that are coming, disaster and disgrace may dog the steps of this distinguished citizen. He may parallel the Wondrous Tale of Alroy in his downfall as in his rise. But up to the present moment it would surely be an affected misuse of terms to say that he is not lucky and successful; that he was not born under suspicious stars; that he has not every reason to be pleased with himself, satisfied with his kind, and most grateful to the Ruler of the World. Life has been as yet to him one golden tide of uninterrupted success, and now in the very prime and hey-day of existence he stands upon the highest summit of power and renown to which an American can ever attain. But what must of all be the most delightful element in his retrospective reflections is this: that he has won these great prizes by means which friends and foes, and his own innermost conscience, will tell him are honorable and fair. To get that nomination for which the giants of the land strove together, and for which many a mortal wound and many a foul blow was given and received, he never bent his knee or his brow, he did not crook a finger, or spend upon it one longing glance. The unbiased will of his party wound the laurel round his head. And to win the last great prize over which the land had been convulsed and its people arrayed into two huge armies, what single thing has he done to be ashamed of?—what act for which the most fastidious delicacy can reproach him? There is not one. During this terrible summer of suspense, so far as the public can know, he has been the only cool man among all the millions of the republic. No feverish anxiety has betrayed him into one false step. He has preserved the dignity of his position without an effort, and his conduct will in all future time be reckoned the model for those whom time and chance will hereafter place in similar circumstances.

No pledges, no promises, no doubtful intimations, sit heavy on his conscience for the morrow of action. He will go into the Presidential office entirely untrammelled, with no favors to repay nor injuries to punish, no factions to conciliate and no enmities to appease. He will be supported by the most overwhelming and united majority that ever ruled the destinies of any country. He is strong enough to do right.—Richmond Examiner.

THE HEMPFIELD RAILROAD.

As a matter of interest to our readers, we copy the following article from the Wheeling Intelligencer, in relation to the Hempfield Railroad. It will be seen that the Wheeling folks still talk big about this scheme:

THE HEMPFIELD RAILROAD.—At a full meeting of the Board of Directors, held in this city on Saturday, ISAAC W. MITCHELL, of this city, was elected President of the Company. We learn that there is a determination on the part of the Board to push the road forward to completion. Mr. Mitchell will make an effective and energetic officer, and with the active co-operation of the effective Board of Directors with whom he is associated, which he will assuredly receive, his road must be speedily put in successful operation. We must have it completed speedily, and there should be but one object before the Company, and that is to proceed, by the most harmonious and speedy method practicable, to the completion of this most important and vital improvement to Wheeling and the counties of Washington and Westmoreland, and the city of Philadelphia. Joseph Henderson, of Washington, was re-elected Treasurer of the Company, and Secretary of the Board.

John's Last!

The following is in the best vein of the letters to JESSE HOYT:—

From the Albany (N. Y.) Atlas.

Mr. Dean Richmond: What is the matter with the Evening Journal? I see the Whigs are anxiously enquiring whether they are dead or not, and that the Journal takes the negative; but surely it cannot be necessary to exhibit such convulsions to prove they are not dead, but only dying. Why does the Journal keep scolding at me? For once, it is in error as to a fact. I have not been to Concord since the election. Please say so in the Atlas—and ask the Journal to keep quiet. If the Whig party is dead, the Federal party still lives, and both the editors of the Journal are entitled to a high place in that party. They must not bellow so. It was always a characteristic of the Federal party to lie easy; I will not underscore the last words, but it would be just like you to do it.

Truly yours,
J. VAN BUREN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11th, 1852.

FURTHER FROM HAVANA.—The Havana correspondent of the Journal of Commerce says, under date of Nov. 11th:

"There have been so many changes in the orders of the captain general, that we do not know whether the Crescent City will be allowed entrance to the port or not; that she will come in, we believe, and as to the rest, we wait to learn. The standing last order is, not; while general information has the reverse from high official quarters. Troops are being removed from the city, both its defence to the country, and an increase of force at Cardenas. Field artillery has also been despatched. The health of Havana is good; the people quiet, and there is no cause local here to prevent the usual intercourse for the winter months."

MORTALITY ON THE WESTERN WATERS.—Our Western Exchanges give sad accounts of the mortality among the emigrants on the Western waters. The steamer "Norma," which recently arrived at Louisville from New Orleans, had 18 deaths among the deck passengers. It seems that the poor creatures had eaten freely of wild grapes, and then partaken largely of raw whiskey. They were all Germans. The "Sultana" had 16 deaths on board, and the "Bride" had 10 deaths. The "Dis Vernon" also had 17.—Among the victims were five members of a family of eight, who were traveling from Texas to Alabama. The survivors were a father and two children.

TREASON.—The Trenton True American says: Hon. A. G. Penn, of Louisiana, has been a most indefatigable member of the National Democratic Committee, and has been active during the whole canvass. But the last Washington Union brings the intelligence that, after nobly fighting the battle for Pierce, and after victory had crowned his efforts, he has gone over to Scott. The following is the announcement:

MARRIED.—On Monday morning, the 8th inst., at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. John C. Smith, the Hon. ALEXANDER G. PENN, of Louisiana, to Mrs. ELIZABETH C. SCOTT, of Washington.

CLARION COUNTY.—It is worthy of remark that in Clarion county where all the iron-masters break up about once in every two years, and where Furnaces are sold by the Sheriff at a shilling each—according to Whig accounts—the majority for PIERCE and KING is larger than ever before given to any Democratic candidate! So much for the trumped-up falsehoods of Federal Whiggery. One of two things is certain—either the Whigs circulated falsehoods about the matter, or the people of that county have become heartily disgusted with their empty professions of "protection."—Reading Gazette.

A BEAUTIFUL SENTIMENT.—The following true and beautiful sentiment was given at a Democratic celebration at Charlottsville, Va., on the 10th ult.:

Winfield Scott: Always victorious over the enemies of his country, he could not conquer its friends.

AN EDITOR IN LUCK.—George Wilkins Kendall, of the New Orleans Picayune, is about to marry and retire to his vast sheep-raising farms in Texas. Kendall has surely seen the world, and a little more; is about 48, and possesses a fortune of $100,000.

GEN. PIERCE IN BOSTON.—On the 2d of November, Gen. Pierce received a plurality of 554 over Scott, in Boston. On the 8th, in the State election, the federal candidate for Governor received a plurality of 3,186—a difference of over 3,700.

CALIFORNIA ITEMS.

We select the following items from late California papers:

A CUB.—We yesterday saw an infantile specimen of the Grizzly Bear tribe, weighing two hundred pounds, hanging at the Bay Market.—Bruin was killed by a young German, on Monday last, across the Bay, a few miles inland.—The animal being but a cub, the hunter thought to capture him alive, and so lassoed him. But the bear made fight, and the young man found it prudent to "get out of the way," by putting his horse to a gallop. The bear, however, proved fleet of foot, and the hunter was at length compelled to turn on his pursuer and defend himself. This he did successfully, by shooting the animal between the eyes and killing him instantly. In the annals of bear hunting, this deserves to be recorded as a dangerous and daring exploit.—Sacramento Union.

PANTHER KILLED.—A very large panther, says the Sonora Bulletin, weighing 200 pounds, was killed last Saturday morning, by Mr. Jas. Spence, his near farm, about two miles from this place. This animal had been prowling about that neighborhood for some time, and it is supposed to have killed several fine colts belonging to Mr. Spence.

GOOD WORK.—The Stockton Journal says that a gentleman who secured one of McCormick's patent reaping and threshing machines, late in the summer, has thrashed out fifteen thousand bushels of barley, since he set his machine to work.

Quinces from San Jose, weighing from one to two pounds each, may be seen occasionally in our markets.

WHEAT.—In the northern section of San Joaquin county, near the line of Sacramento, the Journal says, there will probably be ten thousand acres of land sown with wheat this season.

[San Francisco Times, Oct. 15.

CHINESE JUGGLERS.—Among the features of interest, relating to the amusement of the public, is that of the troupe of Chinese Jugglers, which for some days have been rehearsing at the American Theatre, preparatory to exhibiting their astonishing feats to the lovers of the curious. Many of their exploits will "astonish the natives," as they did the Celestial inhabitants of all the principal cities of the great Empire.—Only think of the idea of cutting a man to pieces with knives, and eating him up, and afterwards producing him again to the wonderstruck observer, in all his vigor and full proportions. Their skill in throwing sharp knives will cast into the shade the stories related of Texas Rangers, &c.

[San Francisco Journal, Oct. 1.

GAME.—Quail in great numbers and of delicious flavor, says the Union, are daily brought to the Sacramento market by the sportsmen who frequent the oak and pine groves at the base of the "foot hills."

A gentleman gardening near Downieville, has raised ninety-six squashes from one seed.

Religion in France.

The "Revue des Deux Mondes," for September, contains an elaborate and valuable account of the Catholic Church, and the Protestant and Jewish religious Communions in France. The number of Protestants in the country is stated at a million and a half, three quarters of whom are Calvinists. "Sixteen Departments contain independent churches, either Presbyterian or Congregational, which support their own ministers without aid from the public funds. There is a sect called Darbistes, who hold with the Quakers that there should be no official ministry, but that every man is by right a priest; there are also some Quakers; and more than 5000 Anabaptists, or Mennonites, who distinguish themselves here, as well as elsewhere, by their industrious and orderly habits, and by great integrity and sobriety. They live apart from other people, very seldom marry out, and never change the fashion of their dress, which they say is that of the apostles. Two days of the year are devoted to humility and the purification of the body, which consists in washing each others' feet.—Oah who gets drunk, dances, gambles, or seduces a woman is banished from the Church. When baptized, they take an oath never to bear arms. Many of them have emigrated to the United States within a few years past. The Methodists of France are remarkable for their zeal; their number is 8000, but their increase slowly; they number 87,000 souls, but increases slowly; their worship is among those supported from the public treasury.

EARLY LOVES.

BY EDWARD W. DANFORTH.

I mind me of a sunny face,
A light and fairy form;
I mind me of a gentle heart,
With kind affection warm;
I mind me of a little hand,
That us'd to weave me posies,
Making and havoc in the fields,
Where grew the summer roses.

But, ah! that face is wrinkled now,
That form is old and bent,
And care unto that gentle heart,
A chast'ning grief has lent;
But still the same old smile is there,
(Though pearl'd its gladness now,)
As when in youth I softly pressed
Her fair, unsullied brow.

As the soft, fine mists of morning,
Dissolve and fade away,
So fades the light of early dreams,
Of youth's bright hopes decay;
But the loves that childhood hallow'd
Bloom in the heart as fair
As when in our youth and joyance,
Our fancy plied them there.

BOSTON, Nov. 7th, 1852.

The Bloomer Fashions for 1852-3.

Mrs. BLOOMER—who must be the best authority in the world—publishes the following important information relative to the Bloomer Fashions for the season, in the last number of the Lilly, a very pretty little monthly quarto, edited and published by her, at Seneca Falls.

We have several letters of inquiry about the style of making the short dress, and also what style of hat is to be worn the coming winter.

It is a little perplexing to us to answer such questions, for we know very little about fashions, and we do not wish to set ourselves up as a pattern for others. We are not aware that there is any particular style for making the new dress, or any new fashion for it. At least we have none, but make suits just to suit our own fancy and comfort, and hope others will do the same. We believe our dress does not differ materially from those worn by others, except in the length of the skirt and bodice; and in giving ourself room to breathe freely, and depending on our own muscles instead of whalebones for support. And this we consider all important, whether the skirt be long or short—a much more important consideration which we urge upon our lady readers, is the supporting of under skirts by elastic suspenders—(the same as those worn by men, and worn in the same manner)—instead of letting them rest upon the hips. They are perfectly easy, and far preferable to "straps." We are happy to know that they are now worn to a considerable extent, and they will be generally adopted when their advantage becomes known.

The prettiest style of cloak for the short dress, is a full circle or Spanish cloak. The sacque looks well, and is very convenient, as it leaves the arms free.

Both bonnets and hats are worn. If a hat, the beaver is preferable, though they may be made of silk or velvet. Those wishing beaver hats can obtain them by sending an order to J. M. Gentz, hatter, New York, giving the measure of the head and description of the hat wanted. We are not sure but they may be obtained of any hatter. The trousers are made mostly straight and plain, or with "spring bottoms," though some still prefer them full, and confined at the ancle.

The large number of ladies who attended the meeting here on the 14th ult. dressed in short skirts and trousers, proved the falsity of the statements made by some of the papers, that this style of dress had become extinct. The number present on that occasion was by different persons estimated as high as fifty, and these came from different sections of the State.—Lucy Stone, whom all so much admired we are happy to see, still adheres to this style of dress.

The Rout of the Whig Party.

The New York Tribune publishes the following extract from a letter of condolence, addressed (not for publication) to the editor:

"It is certainly very vexatious to think that the people should have paid so little attention to the many good things that you and all of us have said during the campaign,—and that 1,600,000 copies of the Life of Scott should have no other effect than to give Pierce 28 States out of 30.—Nevertheless, we may as well take it quietly, as Socrates drank his hemlock. It vexed me considerably at first, but when I found there was not a single plank left, no chance existed for the reformation of the Whig party. I was consoled.

"I had long since become tired of being cheated by Whig great men at one time, and ridden over by them at another, and it is quite a comfort to me to know that we are rid of them. Five years since I made up my mind that next to electing a good Whig president who could be depended on, the best thing would be that the party should be annihilated. And now, though I have failed in my first wish, I am sure of my second.

"I rejoice that, as Scott could not be elected, Pierce comes in in such a way as frees him from any necessity of looking to any extreme of his party for support. Whig opposition is at an end, and the external force being withdrawn, the internal one will have full play, and the party will be shivered to pieces, after which will come new combinations. Probably things will come right. I have not seen a Whig these twenty-four hours, and the last I did see were buying Salt river tickets."

California Emigration.

The late arrivals from California continue to give advices relative to the immense numbers of adventurous settlers, who are pouring into the Golden Land, to too many, alas! anything but a realization of their dreams of a land of promise. The Sacramento Times says that:—

"The immigrants still continue to pour in from over the plains. Men who have been here before are now returning with their wives and little ones, who come with the determination of making this valley their home. Santa Clara valley (says the Register) seems to have gained a reputation abroad, for in our midst we see numerous strangers who have never been here before, looking around in search of a farm, or a place to squat upon until they are able to procure a spot for themselves. They assure us they have found the place exactly—they desire to look no farther. When the land titles shall have been confirmed, then we shall be able to hold out inducements for all to come who desire. From the best information we can obtain, there are between 150 and 300 wagons now between this place and Carson Valley.

"It will be remembered that the last Legislature, appropriated $25,000 for the assistance of the poor suffering overland immigrants, and that agents were appointed by His Excellency, John Bigler, to make a proper distribution of the stores appropriated for their relief. Within the last fortnight, divers rumors, which have been fully confirmed, bring to light the facts that notorious frauds have been perpetrated by one Bailey, who has swindled the poor immigrants out of their money, stock, and other valuables, charging them, in some instances, as high as a dollar per gallon for water.

☞ Dr. L. A. Silva has furnished us with the particulars of a singular and fatal accident which occurred at 6 o'clock this morning. A worthy German named George Dreger, better known as "Big George," and for the last six years employed in the shops of the Mad River Railroad, was killed by the explosion of a barrel, into which he had put unslacked lime for the purpose of cleansing it. On pouring boiling water upon the lime, and shaking the barrel after closing the bung, it exploded with great force and so badly shattered the German's head as to cause his death in a few moments. He leaves a wife and four small children.—Sandusky Register.

☞ A new Silk Worm, as we learn by the New York Times, has been discovered by the Rev. Mr. Fitch, according to whom all the caterpillars of California are silk worms. They feed on the foliage of the oak, which they prefer to any other food. Their cocoons are about one-third as large as those of the Chinese worm, and the silk is strong, and of a yellow color, the thread being finer than that of our silk worm.—Dr. Fitch was lead to believe that this worm, if fed on the mulberry, would spin its cocoon as large as the Italian or Chinese worm.

Dr. M'Lane's Liver Pills in New York!

☞ The fame of this invaluable medicine has extended with surprising rapidity, only to be accounted for on the ground of its great merit. One trial alone is sufficient to establish its title as the only specific for Liver Complaint.—The following, from a New York druggist, gives evidence of the high estimation in which these Pills are held in that section of country:—

RENSSELAER LAKE, Livingston County, N. Y.
DR. M'LANE: Dear Sir—I have sold out all your Liver Pills, and am anxious to have another lot immediately.—These Pills seem to take their wonderfully. I could have sold a much larger quantity, if I had been provided with them. The inhabitants are sending to Rochester for them; but, whether there are any there or not, I do not know.—Please send me another supply immediately.
F. SHORT, Druggist.

The increasing demand for this sovereign remedy, for all Hepatic affections, has induced some unprincipled persons to counterfeit these Pills. The public are cautioned against such imposition. Take none but those signed C. M'LANE.

For sale by most of the Druggists and Merchants, and by the sole proprietors.
