I believe that Marshal Ney, the favorita of Napoleon, was Michael Rudolf, who was a distinguished officer in our war of the Revolution. He was a captain in Lee's partisan legion, of the Southern army; and he was then, as he was in France, called the "bravest of the brave." In the French army he was called the "American tobacconist," because he carried a cargo of that article to France from this country, when he took part in the French revolution.

The incidents of Marshal Ney's life have been collected by I. K. Tefft, Esq., of Savannah. It held sacred, or has never been violated with impunity.
